The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly proposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

A Little Leaven Leaveneth the Whole Lump.

A disease in one part of the body will eventually fill the whole body with disease. Every year or two some part of the system grows weak and begins to decay. Such part should be removed at once and new matter be allowed to take its place. There's no need of cutting it out with the surgeon's scalpel. Purge away the old, diseased and worn out parts with Brandreth's Pills. Then the new body will take care of itself.

MINE OWN.

Some sob "Mine own" above a daisied mound
Whose narrow darkness clasps their all in all;
I, having naught to lose, have nothing lost,
Nor mourn I when the dead leaves round me fall;
And when the summer's gauds forgot to shine,
I need not weep, for they were never mine.
Thou art not mine—thou never hast been mine—
I watch thy happy love through shadows black;
Better 'twould be to wail beside a tomb,
Knowing that heaven's peace would give thee back.
I walk alone to meet the coming night,
And the long years roll on beyond my sight.

STOLEN BY CUBAN BANDITS.

Sons of Rich Parents Held for a Ransom —Fear of a "Venganza."

A young Cuban was lately "secuestrado" by banditti, and afterward restored to his parents for 92 tentenes—near $500. It is quite common, in the country in Cuba, for young men and boys—usually the sons of rich parents—to be "secuestrado," which is being captured and held in concealment by banditti until such sums as they choose to demand of the parents be paid them. The sum exacted is more or less large, according to the reputed wealth of the parents.

The "secustre" is sometimes done in the boldest, most positive but most polite manner, thus:

The banditti find out—often through secret information furnished them by some person or persons living in the neighborhood of the coveted captive—what the movements of the family are and when to make the attack. The latter point settled, they ride up to the house, dismount, enter, salute the family in the most polite manner, and demand a certain sum of money or the son as hostage till the required sum be paid. Fault of money, which is generally the case, the son is carried off. The parents dare not refuse to let him go, for, unlike Sheridan, "they are afraid," as on the least show of resistance politeness takes wings and disappears, and daggers and pistols without coffee appear on the scene.

When the prize is not captured in the highly refined and civilized (?) manner, but is caught wandering off by himself in some lonely spot, the parents are notified of the capture by receiving a note from the banditti—no doubt a B. L. M.—demanding money. This, in return, is sent at once; the son is restored to the happy bosom of his delighted family and no questions are asked.

The parents, considering themselves only too lucky in getting their child safely restored to them, dare not pursue the highway kidnappers or bring them to justice, even if they know their exact whereabouts, as they fear a "vengenza." This—a revenge—is, indeed, quite often serious. In some cases whole plantations, crops, houses and all perish by fire to gratify a "venganza." In fact "venganzas" seemed to be feared to such an extent that many offences which would not be tolerated elsewhere are often unresented by individuals here.—Cuba Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A. T. Stewart and the Apple Woman.

I hear a queer story of the superstition of A. T. Stewart. From the beginning of his career as a New York merchant until shortly before his heath he imagined that his fortune was bound up in that of the little old apple woman who had a stand in front of his store. When his chief store was down by the city hall this little old apple woman was encouraged and protected by him, and when he moved further up Broadway to the big white building now occupied by Denning it is said that he personally superintended the carrying of the little apple woman's effects to a new stand outside of it. Here she stayed during all of its prosperity in these new quarters, but shortly she disappeared. Stewart looked upon her as a mascot, and he often said, so the story goes, that when she died or left the place his good luck would go with her. Strange to say, it was even so. A few months after this Stewart began to decline, and the apple woman was hardly forgotten before he was in his grave.—Cor. Cleveland Leader.

A Plague of Flies.

They are being eaten up by the flies in Lincolnshire just now, and a gentleman has just found out where the fault is. In their short-sighted greed for honey these unprincipled traders have organized and carried out a vigorous campaign against the wasps who kill their bees. But the wasps also kill flies, and the beekeepers, by destroying them, are directly responsible for the Lincolnshire plague. As everybody is not fond of honey, and everybody objects to being indiscriminately crawled over, it is to be hoped that the beemasters will reconsider their position. If they don't, the public will have to take the law into their own hands, and start an anti-bee league for the extermination of queen-bees in the spring.—St. James' Gazette.

New York has decided to have some 6,000 additional acres of park ground north of the Harlem river, and Boston has just determined to add two new parks to the 3,356 acres now under the control of its department of parks. Franklin park is one, with 500 acres, and what is called the Middlesex Fells, another. Both of these parks include wild and picturesque scenery of every variety and aspect.—Demorest's

I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced using CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured. E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful patent nostrums.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilages of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise, price, $1.

The First Keen Twinge.

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after the exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But the thousands benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla, warrant us in urging others who suffer from rheumatism to take it before the first keen twinge.

The Coming King of France.

A Paris despatch says: Orleanist papers report that the crown prince of Germany and the Comte de Paris recently met at Porto Fino, Italy, and breakfasted together. The papers say that the prince treated the comte as the coming King of France, and broached his ideas of ending the system of military armaments in time of peace, which, he said, were rendering Europe unable to compete with American trade and agriculture. A writer in the Matin affirms that the prince further said: "My accession will be a guarantee of peace, for it will mark the end of Bismarck's reign. Count von Hatzfeldt will be made chancellor, and he will conclude an alliance of France, England and Germany."

New Measurement for Yachts

The British Yacht Racing Association, a federation of yacht clubs, has adopted a new scheme of time allowances for racing yachts. Some time ago the association requested reports from all the expert yacht designers, on the subject of time allowance. These reports have been handed in and considered, and, as a result, the association has adopted a rule of allowance based on the products of sail area and length, divided by 6,000 as a constant. The quotient is the sailing length of a boat. This is important, inasmuch as breadth of beam is discarded, and will be no longer taxed. It is due in a great measure to the tax imposed on beam, in taking it into consideration in arriving at a boat's sailing length, that the present type of narrow cutters has been developed. A private letter to a cutter enthusiast in New York city announces the change above described.

What Do We Owe to Inventions?

The extent to which mankind is indebted to a few of its member for many of the conveniences and comforts it possesses is hardly appreciated, even by thinking people. Every labor-saving machine or device invented reduces the price of some necessity or luxury of life, and so in time luxuries become necessities by being placed within the reach of persons of moderate means; and thus it is that the homes of the mass of the people today have more of the comfort and elegance than could be found in those of the wealthy a few generations back.

Princely fortunes have been reaped by many inventors; but it is too often the case that the man from whose active brain is evolved an article of genuine merit fails in obtaining a just return for his ingenuity, even though the patent laws of our country are held to be among the most liberal in the world.

The only safe method to be observed is for the inventor to secure the services of a reliable and experienced solicitor to aid him in securing his patent; one competent to judge of the merits and patentability of his invention; conversant with the routine and details of the Patent office, and whose past success gives guarantee for all business that may be intrusted to his care.

As such a one, we gladly commend Mr. R. H. Eddy, of No. 76 State street, Boston, to all. His card in our present issue (so familiar to our readers for many years) gives more particulars.

He is a Candidate.

The Concord correspondent of the Boston Journal says: "A prominent republican office holder of Manchester, an intimate friend of United States Senator Cheney of that city, states positively that the latter will be a candidate for an election in the next legislature to complete the term of the late Senator Pike."

The Dover Democrat says that the gentleman to whom the Dover city clerk refused to grant a license to wed a girl of fourteen, and whom the Democrat most disrespectfully refers to as "the aged old snoozer" and "the old rat," gave his age as seventy-three years, instead of fifty-three, as before published. The happy groom, after being married by the city clerk of Haverhill, Mass., bought tickets for Newport, Me., a town in Penobscot county, twenty-five miles from Bangor.

Mr. C. F. McClure and family of Gerrish island, Kittery, left their summer home on Tuesday, Dec. 28th, and will pass the remainder of the winter in Boston.

Mrs. J. K. Coggswell, child and nurse, have left Portsmouth for Washington to reside during Lieut. Coggswell's present duty at the bureau of ordnance.

RULED BY PREJUDICE.

Few persons realize how thoroughly they are controlled by prejudice even to their own disadvantage. For many years the treatment of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and headache has been by some outward application, and, therefore, without stopping to think that the origin of these troubles must, from necessity, be internal, the weary sufferer continues to rub, rub and find no relief. Athlophoros is taken internally, and as a proof that this is the correct principle, it cures surely and quickly. The statement of those who have been cured ought to convince the incredulous.

Manchester, N. H., March 15, 1886.

On the 18th of August, 1885, I suffered very badly from an attack of rheumatism and was recommended to try Athlophoros. On taking one-half a bottle my rheumatism left me and I have not suffered any from it since. Would recommend this medicine to all suffering with rheumatism.

FRANK E. PUTNEY, 220 Walnut St.

Lowell, Mass., March 10, 1886.

A man suffering with sciatic rheumatism is liable to do most anything to rid himself of that complaint. By exposure, I contracted the disease, and although being doctored, I grew worse in spite of all that could apparently be done to relieve intense pain. I was obliged to stand while eating, and unless completely exhausted I was unable to get any sleep; at times I would have to get out of bed in the dead of night, go into the street and tire myself out by walking to get sleep. Still the pain and its cause hung to me. I commenced to use Athlophoros. After a few doses there was a change for the better, and in good time came the cure so much hoped for and found at last only in Athlophoros. C. P. JORDAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 3

Railroad surveyors were in Kittery on Friday morning, surveying the lower route, so-called, on the north side of Spruce creek,—the Kittery Point route.

The ox some time ago reported as having been killed in his pasture at Eliot, and torn all to pieces, and devoured by a panther, is now said to be still alive and well, not having yet learned of his rough usage.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Snow or rain, northerly winds, becoming variable, rising temperature.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 30 degrees above zero.

THE FIREMEN'S BALL

The concert and ball of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, New Year's eve, were entirely successful, both in the numbers attending and the entertainment provided.

The concert, which was given in Music hall from eight to nine o'clock—commencing promptly at eight and ending at the time set, a most worthy example, which it is to be hoped others will follow—drew an excellent audience, and all were more than repaid by the brilliant rendering of the select programme by Reeves' celebrated Providence band. A first class instrumental concert was anticipated, and the anticipation was fully realized; and the music lovers of the city are decidedly indebted to Kearsarge engine company for enabling them to enjoy such a genuine musical treat at a merely nominal price.

The ball, which commenced in Franklin hall as soon as the concert at Music hall was over, was very largely attended, the galleries being crowded with spectators, and the spacious floor so thronged with dancers that during the first half of the night it was a real work of art to get around without colliding with others. The floor managers were attentive and efficient, and if any of those present did not enjoy themselves, it was not apparent.

The firemen of Portsmouth always do things up properly, whether the business in hand is the fighting of a fire in zero weather, the forwarding of a Firemen's Muster, or the conduct of a ball; and the management and success of this New Year's entertainment were in the regular line.

EMANCIPATION BALL.

The Lincoln Association will celebrate the anniversary of Emancipation on Monday night, Jan. 3d, 1887, by a dance at the upper Franklin hall. Music by Metcalf's band. Tickets fifty cents, including supper.

PETER WILLIAMS,
For the Association.

A NOVELTY.

Mr. John P. Sweetser has prepared for presentation to his many patrons an elegant and novel calendar for 1887. We extend our thanks for the one presented us. It will make a handsome ornament for the editorial desk. Mr. Sweetser's establishment is the headquarters for everything new and excellent in his branch of business, and he well understands how to keep abreast of the times. We saw there recently a new pattern for wash boards, that very useful article in domestic economy, which he has lately placed upon this market, which is an improvement upon the old style. Call and see.

THE SAME FELLOWS.

A correspondent of the Manchester Union, writing to that paper from Franklin, this state, says:

Two young men by the name of Harry Beck or H. A. Beck and H. S. Lockhead, who came to this town some two weeks since claiming to get up a business index to be published in one of our local papers, have skipped, owing considerable money they had collected. They are the same parties who skipped at Newport owing large amounts.

These are probably the same fellows who not a great while ago worked this city faithfully and well, getting up a "business index" to be published in a local paper, their enterprise and its magnificent prospective value being announced with a grand and well-sustained flourish of trumpets; at least, "H. A. Beck, agent," is the way one of them signed his name to receipts for money paid him for the insertion of business cards in the precious "index." The "agents" probably carried several hundred dollars away with them from this city, and it is said even forgot to pay the paper favored with their patronage for the one insertion given to the "business index," instead of the three months' publication promised by the canvassers.

ODD FELLOWS' ELECTION.

At a meeting of New Hampshire lodge, I. O. O. F., Wednesday evening, Dec. 29th, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

C. H. Kennison, N. G.;
Ernest Johnson, V. G.;
Thornton Betton, Sec.;
Moses H. Tilton, F. S.;
John H. Wells, Treas.;

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

At the late regular meeting of Damon lodge, No. 9, K. of P., of this city, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

Wm. P. Pickett, P. C.;
Geo. A. Sanderson, C. C.;
Geo. W. Pickering, V. C.;
Thornton Betton, K. R. S., and M. F.;
F. F. Furbish, M. E.,
Fredrick Watkins, M. A.;
Frank J. Philbrick, Edward W. Riley, Gustave Peyser, trustees.

Mr. Eugene Sullivan has been elected master workman of the Knights of Labor assembly in this city.

There was a watch meeting in the Methodist vestry, New Year's eve, commencing at nine o'clock and continuing until after midnight.

A musicale by the pupils of Miss Alice M. Swasey will be given in Franklin theatre next Tuesday evening, when two pianos will be used, a novelty in this city. The programme comprises solos, duets, and pieces for six and eight hands, and includes popular as well as classical music.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

A SAD STORY.

A Woman Suffered Nine Years from the Incompetency of Physicians. Relief at Last.

Mrs. T., a lady residing in a country town in Indiana, tells the following painful story: "I had taken treatment from physicians for about nine years and had never received any permanent relief until I took your Compound. I thought I never should get well and cried a good deal of my time. A year ago this spring I was confined to my bed and room for five months, under the doctor's care. I at last made up my mind to quit him and try your Compound, and with what a joyful result! Oh! I feel so glad that I tried it and so sorry that I did not get hold of it nine years ago." The foregoing is from a letter to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and sufferers by taking her Vegetable Compound may escape the w.ler's regret for years wasted in hopeless misery and agony.

A Letter of Thanks.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham: Very Dear Madam: My wife, Arie A. Green, has suffered with a displacement which caused her unknown pains till I had almost given up all hopes of finding any relief for her. But the Guiding Spirit referred me to your Vegetable Compound. I went 12 miles to purchase a bottle and the first two doses gave her immediate relief, and after the use of the first bottle she declared herself a new person. Two bottles entirely cured her. Your medicine is invaluable to me. It was indeed a messenger of peace in my house, it cured my wife, and God knows I am the happiest man alive to-day.

The Fuel of the Future.

It is a fact well known in manufacturing circles that the vast bulk of the heat contained in coal is wasted. Only fourteen out of the hundred parts of carbon is actually utilized. Hence, one of the problems of chemistry has been to get more power, in the way of heat and light, out of a given quality of coal. Professor T. S. C. Lowe claims to have solved this problem, a matter which is of vast importance, if it is a fact. The process is to pulverize the coal, and, in converting it into a gas, the coal is reduced to a powdered form so fine that it will float in the atmosphere, and it is carried into the burning furnace by a current of air artificially produced. In the powdered form everything is consumed, as it makes no smoke and leaves no ashes. This would utilize the mountains of so-called waste, now piled up near coal mines and manufactories.

But Professor Lowe's invention goes farther. The coal is converted into a water gas. A ton of anthracite coal will generate from eighty to a hundred cubic feet of gas. The cost will be about 9 cents a cubic foot. This invention is already in use in the city of Troy, in the laundries of that place, and is also used for power and for heating and cooking in hotels and restaurants. The gas furnished is non-luminous and resembles that from alcohol. It has no odor and is intensely hot. These facts have come out in a report to the Scranton board of trade, which calls the new invention anthracite gas. The result will be a marvelous economy in the heating of houses and the cooking of food, while one ton of coal will go as far as a hundred of tons nowadays.—Demorest's Monthly.

An Untried Experiment.

Edison says that no experiment which he has tried at night ever failed. Now what we want to know is, did Mr. Edison ever try at night to find the matches in his bare feet without disturbing any of the furniture or stubbing his big toe against seventeen different obstructions? —New Haven News.

DR. HAM. March 2, 1885.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once eased me to a degree that I had not a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have used many medicines, but none had the desired effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am, truly yours,

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Insley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to atmospheric germs, uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in perspiration, &c. The important point is, that a cold in the head is a genuine rhinitis, an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

A movement is on foot, which has for its object the holding of the September term of the supreme court of Maine for York county in Saco, instead of Alfred. A paper is in circulation in Saco and Biddeford, and has already received the signatures of nearly all the lawyers there, who unanimously favor such a change, and the legislature at the coming session will undoubtedly be asked to make the change.

The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly proposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

My Family Doctor

for the last two years has been Sulphur Bitters, and until I began using them in my family, we had more or less sickness, and our doctor's bill has been very large. Since we began their use, we have had no doctor to pay, and three dollars invested in Sulphur Bitters has kept health in our family. — E. Knott, Postmaster, Waverly, Iowa.

Catarrh is not a Blood Disease.

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid.

It is reported that Mexican troops and revolutionists have had a terrible fight in Zonlca, and that many were killed on both sides. The report, however, is unconfirmed.

A standard article, universally recommended, is James Pyle's Pearline, which is claimed to be the best thing ever invented for making washing easy, in hard or soft water, without harm to fabric or hands. No soap is required and the work is done thoroughly without it. The genuine is sold by all grocers, and purchasers should beware of imitations.

The preliminary survey of the lower (or Kittery Point) route for the southwesterly end of the York Harbor & Beach railroad was completed on Friday last. The case of Rev. Waldo Messaros, formerly of Kennebunk, Me., but now pastor of a church in Philadelphia, was concluded at ten o'clock on the night of Dec. 31st, by the jury returning a verdict of not guilty. The charge was that he made a felonious assault on Mrs. Mary Coulston in her own house; the defence was that it was a case of conspiracy prompted by personal animosity, and this seems to have been accepted by the jury.

SILK CULTURE IN JAPAN.

An Important Industry—Evolution of the Silk Worm Egg.

The silk industry is the most important of all industries in Japan. The raw silk imported into the United States and Europe alone yearly amounts to 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 pounds, or at an average of $5 per pound to $17,500,000 or $20,000,000. The waste silk which principally finds its way to the European markets, also amounts to nearly 3,000,000 pounds; the price of all grades of this class of silk could be fairly averaged at 75 cents per pound. The exact amount of home consumption has never been ascertained, as some people raise it for their own use. But that the quantity must be something enormous can be easily seen by the fact that the silk is worn by a large majority of people on such occasions as New Year's Day, wedding evenings, festival of temples, and the like. The well-to-do classes use silks for their house-dresses. In this country ladies and gentlemen alike wear silk clothing, and they use it not only for outside garments but for underwear as well. Besides, silk clothing is here usually lined with the same material, unlike the practice in the United States and Europe, where silk dresses are lined with cotton goods. I am inclined to think that there is not a single family in Japan into whose household no silk enters. Even the country peasant, who is supposed to be the plainest and simplest of our people, wears a silk dress on the day of a ceremonial occasion.

It may be interesting to readers to watch the development of the silk-worm's egg into the fine material known as raw silk, in which condition it is placed in the markets of the United States. The eggs are laid on a sheet of paper. Early in the month of May they begin to hatch, and as soon as they do so they are swept on a tray, or paper, with a feather and fed with mulberry leaves cut up in very small pieces. These are replaced every morning with new ones. In the course of seven days they grow quite rapidly, and at the end of that period sleep for twenty-four hours. This is called the first age. Exactly after twenty-four hours of rest the worms begin to feed again on the mulberry leaves cut up into pieces somewhat larger than before. At the end of a week they again sleep for twenty-four hours. When they pass their second age they are given their leaves without cutting.

They continue feeding for a week and sleeping for twenty-four hours till the end of the fifth week, when they begin to climb up the dried straws, cotton plants, or bamboo pieces provided for them, and there they build their little nests called cocoons. They commence their cocoons on the outside, and finish them in a couple of days, leaving just space enough for themselves within. The worm stays inside of the cocoons for two weeks from the first commencement of building them. At the expiration of that time the worms pierce the cocoons for the purpose of laying new eggs. During these fourteen days, therefore, the cocoons must be steamed, boiled, or exposed to the heat of the sun in order to kill the worm inside; otherwise the worms will spoil the threads by breaking out through them.

The cocoons are placed in boiling water and the threads are reeled into spindles; they are again re-reeled into other spindles so as to dry the threads. One thread as it is found in raw silk is made up of three, four, five or more of cocoon fibers, according to the skill of the reelers. The threads, when they weigh about three ounces, are made up into a skein; twenty-five or thirty skeins constitute what is known as a book. The book is tied up with silk cords and the labels of various kinds are attached to it, and then it is wrapped up in a sheet of paper. One bale of raw silk, when deposited in New York, contains from twenty-five to thirty of such books. The books are first put in a muslin bag and then packed up in a thick paper and a waterproof paper goes over it. The outer covering is of two mattings.

The worms which are not killed, as above mentioned, pierce the cocoons, and in the course of a day lay eggs on the papers provided for the purpose. The worm, when it comes out of the cocoon, has undergone a metamorphosis into a butterfly, which, after laying eggs, flies away.—Cor. New York Commercial Advertiser.

Napoleon's Mysterious Visitor.

Of all the incidents which occurred while Napoleon was in Tor bay the most remarkable was a farewell visit paid him by a lady of foreign appearance and surpassing loveliness. Cloaked and veiled, to escape observation, she carried with her a bouquet of choicest flowers, peculiarly arranged in rows, which, when her boat arrived at a convenient distance from the Bellerophon, was dispatched in charge of her servant. As the token of unchanged affection reached the quarter deck, the lady was observed to raise her veil, disclosing features of exceeding beauty. At first the bouquet seemed to awaken no memories in Napoleon's heart, but after a moment he hastily approached the ship's side, and, steadfastly gazing awhile on the fair form disclosed to view, waved a last farewell.—Chambers' Journal.

Lieut. Greely believes in the theory that there is an open sea, some 1,500 miles in diameter, round about the pole, that never freezes, the conjecture being that the pole itself is the center of an ice-capped land, covered with ice from 1,000 to 4,000 feet thick.—New York Sun.

The First Keen Twinge.

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after the exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But the thousands benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla, warrant us in urging others who suffer from rheumatism to take it before the first keen twinge.

A Discredit to the Country.

General Logan, after a lifetime of active service in high positions, died a poor man. While this stands as a tribute to his incorruptible honesty, it is a rebuke to the pennywise policy of the government which underpays its distinguished servants. Five thousand dollars looks like a big sum for a year's services, but the fact that an honest man cannot properly maintain his position as a United States senator upon it without groping in poverty, is evidence that it is too small. It has come to be the case that first-class men who mean to keep their hands clean, cannot afford to serve the government in a high capacity unless they are millionaires to start with.

PYTHIAN ELECTION.

Mr. George W. Randall, of the firm of G. W. Randall & Son, slipped on the icy sidewalk in front of their store on Penhallow street at seven o'clock last Friday evening. Being a heavy man he was so much shaken up by the fall that he was obliged to be taken home in a carriage, and was not able to leave the house on Saturday. Besides the jar he sustained a very unpleasant sprain of his left ankle.

An enterprising tramp went into business at Newmarket on Wednesday, Dec. 29th, and got into trouble. He started in by buying a sled which was exposed for sale in front of a store, but forgot to pay for the same. The store people, missing the sled, went in pursuit of the purchaser, and learned that he had been trying to dispose of it for a quarter. At the railroad station they noticed a quite well dressed man, who on seeing them suddenly departed up the track, but was chased, captured and brought back, when it was found that his good clothes—hat, overcoat and rubber boots—belonged to Mr. I W. Dorring, principal of the Newmarket high school. The tramp went to Dorring's house to dispose of his sled, and having got tired of ringing bells, went into the front door without ringing; and finding the hat, coat and boots in the entry, concluded to make a trade without bothering the people in the house, and did so, leaving the sled as a fair exchange. The peripatetic merchant was on the 30th taken before the police magistrate, who held him in $500 for the grand jury, and committed him to Exeter jail in default of sureties.

The full list of deputy sheriffs for York county has been made up, as follows: Bodwell J. Grant of Acton, Robert M. Stevens (jailer) and Luke H. Roberts of Alfred, Nathaniel N. Hurd of Berwick, John F. Goldthwaite and Timothy Elliott of Biddeford, Horatio N. Bradbury, Jr., of Buxton, James C. Ayer of Cornish, William E. Towne of Kennebunk, Dana S. Beacham of Limerick, Frank A. Knight of North Berwick, William A. Allen of Sanford, Frank N. Butler of Springvale, Freeman C. Ham of South Berwick, Nehemiah Nason of Waterboro, Albert S. Stackpole of West Lebanon, and John C. Stewart of York.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

During the past year the Boston & Maine railroad made at their shops two parlor cars, four passenger cars, four combination cars, two mail and passenger cars, three baggage cars, forty-two box cars, thirty-six platform cars, and eight dump cars; they have also purchased fifteen passenger cars, 200 box cars, fifty platform cars, and 100 dump cars. Of these a greater part take the place of old stock worn out.

The Kennebunk Eastern Star says: "For several years past the management of the Boston & Maine railroad have offered prizes to station agents who improve the appearances about the station by preparing flower gardens, etc. G. C. Farnham at this station has just received $50 as first prize for the neatest and most tasty station for the past year, making three years in succession in which Mr. Farnham has captured the first prize. May he still continue."

The hearing in the case of Carrie T. Burbank of Somersworth, for damages against the Great Falls Manufacturing company, a claim of $10,000 damages for personal injuries received by her two years ago by falling down an unprotected well 13 1-2 feet deep in the company's yard one dark night, was to have been commenced in Great Falls on Thursday, Dec. 30th, but on account of the sudden illness of one of the counsel the hearing was postponed to Jan. 10th. The question of liability has been waived by the corporation, which reduces it now to one of awarding damages.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—
Cooler, fair weather, variable winds.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated zero.

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Saturday being New Year's day, which is a government holiday, there was no work at the navy yard, and the post-office and custom-house were closed. The afternoon papers in New York very generally suspended publication, and the associated press service was only that of other regular holidays. The American people have none too many holidays, but to have two of them only a week apart, although they occur in different years, is sprinkling them in too thick. If the government would only shift Christmas and New Year's day so that they would be say six weeks apart, it would be a good thing.

The day was a dull enough one in this city, the travelling in the country being so bad and the weather so ditto, that few out-of-town people were in; and most of the towns-people having spent all the money they had, for Christmas gifts, there was nothing to tempt them abroad to slide about and fall down upon the slippery sidewalks, in the rain. The "ice storm" of last year was repeated in a mild form, the twigs of the trees, and everything else, being clothed in ice by the freezing of the falling rain, though to a much less thickness than on the former occasion, so that little if any harm was done.

THE POLICE MAIL SERVICE.

From April 1st, 1886, to Dec. 31st, inclusive, there were deposited in the letter-box at the police station, by business men principally, 10,771 letters, which were mailed by the police at the Boston & Maine railroad station to go by the early morning Pullman mail for Boston and the west.

RE-ARRESTED.

George M. Howard escaped from the Lowell, Mass., jail last June. His photograph was sent to various officers, among others to Sheriff Kent of this city. Last Saturday the sheriff was driving in Hampton Falls, and met on the road a man whom he recognized as Howard. He stopped the man, and asked him if his name was Gilchrist, to which he replied "No, it is Munroe," and exhibited considerable nervousness. The sheriff arrested him, when he said, "I know all about it. I was sorry the moment I left." He was brought here, and the authorities at Lowell notified.

BEGINNING THE NEW YEAR WELL.

A very pleasant wedding took place on New Year's eve at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Jacob Hubley, on Hunking street, the contracting parties being Mr. Daniel C. Caswell and Miss Ella Hubley, and Rev. Mr. Hovey performing the ceremony. After the expression of congratulation by the many friends presents, a wedding supper was served, after which dancing was indulged in for several hours, when the guests departed, after wishing the newly married couple a Happy New Year and a sunny and peaceful journey along the path of life.

Friends of Mr. Caswell and wife, to the number of twenty, called on them Saturday evening, and presented them with a handsome chamber-set.

UNIVERSALISM AND THE ORIENTAL RELIGIONS.

The subject considered in the Pleasant street church yesterday was "Universalism and the Oriental Religions." Texts, John 10:16, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold, them also I must bring; they shall hear my voice, and they shall become one flock, one shepherd;" and Matt. 11:28, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." A people's religion is based on its idea of the completest happiness. With the refining of that idea goes the refining of the idea of God. Therefore the great point of comparison between all religions is the idea of happiness, rest, repose. The oriental mind is meditative and mystical, abhors all disturbance and change. Existence involves change, therefore it is evil. Happiness is utter tranquility of body and mind, Heaven an infinite nothing. God is omnipresent unconsciousness. The great duties are, control self to utter passivity, and feel universal pity.

Andover Christianity seeks repose hastily and impatiently. Existence involves sin. Still we love existence, and it must continue. But let no struggling with sin disturb the tranquility, the repose, the rest, of a future life. God must settle the problem by sending sinners away, even if we have to resort to civil courts. True Christianity is love to God and love to man. It is that trust that sees all tranquilly, and that toil that does all tranquilly. Its repose is not in the mechanical facility of blameless habit; but in a definite energy struggling toward a destiny which alone justifies repose and rest, viz.: The full perfection of life in a kingdom of spiritual energy and activity. Then a perfect plan is the first requisite of rest. On this build your New Year resolutions.

THE OLD AND THE NEW IDEAS.

At the Unitarian church, Sunday, the Christmas music performed the previous Sabbath was repeated, with great pleasure to the congregations. Rev. Mr. Gooding's sermon in the morning was especially appropriate to the New Year season, the subject being, the duty of attending church. Formerly, and within a period by no means distant, a main reason for constant attendance at church was the belief that it was one of the essential means of grace; the worshipper who did not go because he was afraid to stay away, went because he hoped to receive some personal spiritual benefit. The nobler and more unselfish motive which actuates the broadest and most generous thinkers of the present day to a constant attendance at church, is the desire to benefit others—to aid in the general advancement of spiritual life and growth in moral character, through the sympathy of Christian fellowship—a motive ennobling in itself, and which should be considered by all.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. H. Winchester and wife left this city for San Francisco on Saturday, Jan. 1st.

Mrs. Sarah H. Marcy and daughter are spending the winter in New Orleans.

We regret to learn that our worthy fellow citizen, Boatswain I. T. Choate, is paying one of the penalties of his long and faithful service in the navy in the shape of an attack of rheumatism.

At the regular weekly dinner of the New England club at Young's hotel, Boston, on Saturday, Mr. Charles P. Berry of this city was elected to membership in the club.

MUSICALE.

A musicale will be given on Tuesday evening of this week by the pupils of Miss Alice M. Swasey, in Franklin Theatre, commencing at 7.45. "On their own merits modest men are dumb."

Now is the time for Old Probs. to make some good resolutions.

At the Kearsarge ball in Franklin hall on New Year's eve there were 115 couples in the grand march.

The winter term of the schools opens to-day, and the spectacle of "the whining school-boy, with his satchel and shining morning face, creeping like snail unwillingly to school" will be seen.

Most of the vessels of the southend fishing fleet started out on Saturday, but were becalmed and obliged to come to ancher.

Speaking of the marriage of an ill-assorted couple performed a few days since by City Clerk Heath of Haverhill, Mass., the Bulletin of that city says that a dispatch from the town clerk of Waterville, Me., states that Mitchell Duston was a bachelor residing in Winslow, Me., and aged seventy years. Hattie Chipian was a girl of about twelve years of age, residing with her aged grandmother. The marriage, until Mr. Heath notified them of it, was unknown to the families of the contracting parties.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PERLE, Salem, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1929 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while battling some years ago was thrown violently against the life line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so, and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Wedding Among the Lapps.

Down the room was a long table, covered with coarse cloth, perhaps, if for grand folks, but much more likely in its native bareness. Upon the arrival of the wedding party the feast began. Boiled meat was brought in a large dish, or just as likely piled up on the table till it was full. On the top of this came dirty bowls full of grease. Round this savory and appetizing repast gathered the hungry Lapps, ravenous as wolves, and fell upon it with appetites that would astonish any western dweller in a cultured land. They came to eat, and they did eat! Lumps of meat were seized by nature's forks—fingers as black as coals, innocent of water for unknown periods, clad in ancient grime—plunged into the grease, and then, all luscious and dripping, conveyed to the cavernous mouths of the assembled. After this came the dessert—reindeer cheese cut into pieces, dipped into grease, and eaten with a horn spoon or fingers. Huge draughts of corn brandy washed all down. Right diligently was the bottle plied, with ever and anon a quaff from the grease bowls to keep the brandy from taking too much effect, the grease leaving its traces on the drinkers' faces, till at last they shone in their fatty coating.

Now began the "real wedding joy"—guests singing and shouting with all the vigor of powerful and healthy lungs. Songs were improvised, generally senseless, because the improviser was so. Soon some of the guests fell asleep on the table, and were shoveled on to the seats—or under them—against the walls by such of their comrades as were able to take part in the next proceedings, i. e., dancing, if such it could be called. Afresh rose a tempest of shouting and jumping—a wild scene, we are told, our ears can not conceive. Fiddlers scraped and scraped, and were encouraged to scrape yet louder, while some Lapp more musical than the others, beat time with a pothook on the kettle bottom. Soon the floor was dotted with the forms of those who were too drunk to jump any more, and there they lay snoring while their comrades hopped and roared over them until they, too, fell amid the slain.—Notes and Queries.

Mr. JOHN W. FURBUSH,

An Army Veteran,

who has probably suffered more than any man or woman in America to-day. Taken sick while in the Army, he has endured untold agonies since. Describing his first symptoms he said: "My head ached and my appetite was poor. I felt a faintness at the pit of the stomach, and a bad taste in my mouth, while my skin was sometimes hot and sometimes cold. I next felt pains in my back and around the lower portion of my body, and noticed a peculiar odor in my water. The water I passed, which was scanty at one time and free at others. Sometimes it pained me to void it, and again it was almost impossible to do so at will. Finally I began to pass clear blood accompanied with the greatest strain and agony."

No less than 20 eminent physicians attended Mr. Furbush at various times, but not one of them could help him. He was near death's door. And yet he says: "I am alive and well to-day, wholly through the wonderful power of Hunt's Remedy, which took me from the verge of the grave."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Insley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Fire, Life & Accident Insurance Agent and Broker.

I Was A Fool.

Yes, they said I was a fool not to try Sulphur Bitters for Rheumatism, from which I had suffered over two years; but I had tried so many doctors and medicines without getting relief that I was discouraged. I am now on my fourth bottle and almost cured. I was a fool that I didn't try that wonderful remedy before.—C. G. Pratt, Manchester, N. H.

The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly proposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

Catarrh is not a Blood Disease.

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid.

A standard article, universally recommended, is James Pyle's Pearline, which is claimed to be the best thing ever invented for making washing easy, in hard or soft water, without harm to fabric or hands. No soap is required and the work is done thoroughly without it. The genuine is sold by all grocers, and purchasers should beware of imitations.

"Caribou were never seen in such large numbers around Moosehead lake as this season. A few days ago a man traveling on the lake, near the outlet, saw ten in the shelter of a point there. He went quickly to the outlet for a rifle, but they were gone when he got back. The next day Ed. Capen saw four near his house on Deer island, and shot two of them, all he is allowed by law. Other parties have also killed large numbers of them," says the Bangor Whig.

AS AN AFTER DINNER TALKER.

Nibbling Bread and Sipping Apollinaris. A Dinner at Delmonico's.

Henry Ward Beecher is fond of attending public dinners, although on such occasions he scarcely ever eats anything. While those around him are stowing away all of the solids and fluids within their reach the Plymouth pastor nibbles bread and sips Apollinaris. He, however, keeps up a steady flow of talk that puts every person within sound of his voice in a merry humor. Mr. Beecher's presence at a banquet insures an enjoyable evening to all of the other participants. It seems impossible for him to talk and not be entertaining. No matter how many other distinguished men and able speakers there may be at the festive board, Beecher is sure to be the oratorical lion of the feast. His versatility and eloquence seem to have no limit. He says that he never prepares himself for an after dinner speech, but takes his cue from the inspiration of the moment. "Oh, please do not put me down for any stated topic," he invariably remonstrates when approached by the toast master; "just let me know when my turn comes to speak and I will rattle off something." One night at Delmonico's, after a particularly effective speech by Mr. Beecher, a newspaper reporter asked "the old man eloquent" for his notes. Mr. Beecher handed the reporter a crumpled bit of paper on which were traced almost illegibly the words "Huxley," "Darwin," "Pshaw."

It is Mr. Beecher's boast that he never wore a dress coat. He wears his every day suit of black broadcloth wherever he goes, and though he may be—as he often is—the only man among 200 or 300 banqueters not attired in the regulation evening dress, nobody would notice any incongruity. Beecher's strong personality completely overshadows such petty details as dress. About three years ago a big dinner was given at Delmonico's by the chamber of commerce, at which there were present President Arthur, Gen. Grant, Governor Cleveland and the governors of ten other states. The affair was intended to be very "swell" and so it was. Mr. Beecher arrived late, and a few of his friends could not help noticing that he had paid less attention to his toilet than usual. But the sturdy expounder had no apologies to offer. In the course of his speech, which was one of the most eloquent he was ever heard to utter, he explained that he had just come from his farm at Peekskill and had hurried to catch the train. The charm of his oratory set the company wild with enthusiasm, and at the finish, after the cheering and waving of handkerchiefs and napkins had ceased, Gen. Grant clasped the speaker's hand and in tones of genuine admiration said: "Mr. Beecher, I don't know what kind of a farmer you are, but as a talker you are some pumpkins."

On a subsequent occasion the Plymouth pastor made a notable speech in Delmonico's. It was at a great banquet given in honor of Henry Irving. Mr. Beecher's tribute to the drama and his word pictures of some of Shakespeare's noblest creations touched chords of sympathy in every listener's heart. The demonstration that followed the speech lasted nearly three minutes, and almost every person in the room evinced an irrepressible desire to shake hands with Mr. Beecher. More than 100 of the menus were passed up to receive the autographs of Mr. Irving and Mr. Beecher. The writer of these recollections was one of the guilty persons who solicited those autographs, and after he had obtained them he showed the card to poor John McCullough, who wrote under the two names: "The pulpit and the stage—the powerful educators of the world—John McCullough."—New York Times.

Getting Rid of Fat.

An eye witness describes an apparatus recently constructed for the anti-fat cures of Professors Schweninger, Oertel and Ebstein in the following humorous way: "Imagine to yourself a gentleman of aldermanic rotundity, standing in a sort of treadmill, and hard at work trying to mount an imaginary staircase without ever getting above the first step, inasmuch as the upper ones are constantly receding under his weight. This exercise may strengthen his lungs and even make him lose a pound or two of adipose; but the total effect would not be half accomplished, if the builder of this gymnastic machine had not also, in addition to this simulated mountain ascension, taken care to provide for a corresponding change of air. The physical exertion of ascending the continuously descending steps, causes the unhappy climber to set in motion a system of bellows, which inhale the outer air and blow it full in his face. Instead of the common street air, however, the victim can also be made to inhale air impregnated with extract of pine and other forest trees, and oxygen, thereby procuring him, within the walls of the city, the illusion of filling his lungs with the invigorating air of high mountains. Besides all this, the steps are so constructed as to be placed more perpendicularly, if desired, in imitation of a steep mountain. Bon voyage!—American Register."

200000 Labor Saving Implements.

Professor Roberts, speaking of the great efficiency of modern implements and machines, says: "The boy of to-day, with his sulky plow and self binder, can rob the soil of more plant food in a year than his grandfather could in all his lifetime, though his muscular grandfather might have carried off with ease two such boys, one under each arm.—Chicago Times.

No, Not To-morrow.

"Ah! my beloved, may I hope to clasp you to-morrow to my arms and depict to you again our future happiness in the glowing colors of phantasy?" "No, love, not to-morrow—to-morrow is washing day."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Four Lives Saved.—Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved four of my children of a most alarming attack of whooping cough, from which their throat and necks became so swollen as to prevent them from swallowing. Nothing would give them even temporary relief, until this Syrup was tried. One bottle, in one night, saved their lives, I verily believe.

The First Keen Twinge.

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after the exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But the thousands benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla, warrant us in urging others who suffer from rheumatism to take it before the first keen twinge.

A Remarkable Death List.

The death list of the past sixteen months includes the names of ten men who have been presidents or vice-presidents, or candidates before the people for one of those offices: Ulysses S. Grant, George B. McClellan, Thomas A. Hendricks, B. Gratz Brown, Winfield S. Hancock, Horatio Seymour, David Davis, Chester A. Arthur, Charles Francis Adams, John A. Logan.

An Ancient and Honorable Compact.

A Washington despatch of the 2d inst. says:

"The Mystic Five," an organization formed nearly half a century ago, and consisting of Messrs. J. S. Abbott of Washington, C. A. Hill and George A. Blanchard of Concord, N. H., Dr. Charles A. Tufts of Dover, N. H., and Dr. W. W. Hurd of New York, held its forty-third annual dinner at the National hotel last Friday night. Every member was present, and a very pleasant evening was spent. The organization was formed in Concord, N. H., forty-three years ago, and each member pledged himself to abstain from spirituous liquors and games of chance, and each was to attend the marriage and funeral of the others. So far they have not been called upon to carry out the latter part of the compact. It was also agreed then that a meeting should be held at nine o'clock in the evening of the last day in each year, each being the host alternately. Friday night Mr. Abbott acted as host. The wives of several of the gentlemen were present.

A Horrible Affair.

A despatch of Jan. 2d from Madras, India, says the fire in the reserved inclosure at the People's park on Friday lasted only fifteen minutes. It is now ascertained that 300 persons lost their lives, being either burned to death or suffocated, while the number injured is placed at the same figure. The commander-in-chief and the first prince of Travancore, who were present, escaped, but were injured. Among the victims were two European women, and many European children are missing. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company.

At a meeting of the directors of the New Hampshire Fire Ins. Co. last week, it was voted to pay to the stockholders the usual semi-annual dividend of four per cent, on January 1st. The business of the past year has yielded a fair profit, and added materially to the cash assets of the corporation. The number of losses during the year 1886 were 988, and $324,231.00 in amount, and all was promptly paid. The public have reason to be satisfied and proud of the standing and continued success of the New Hampshire Fire Insurance company during all the changes of the past seventeen years.

A Headstrong Fool.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., on the evening of the 1st inst., a sled containing twenty young people going to a country dance was struck by a fast express train. Two younk women of seventeen years were killed, and seven others had arms or legs broken, or were otherwise seriously injured. The party were being driven by Byron Westromb, who saw the train approaching rapidly and was implored by the gentlemen to stop, but did not heed them. The gentlemen jumped out, but the ladies were too late.

Gorgeous Religious Outfit.

A newspaper correspondent in New York writes about the fashionable church girl and her outfit for religious services. Her most recent agonizing caper she labels "Art wedded to religion," "Art etherialized and religion beautified," and other meaningless appellations. Her Bible, belonging to the set which arouses her to such enthusiasm, is printed on India paper, has an ivory back, a carved cross, a spray of orange blossoms, and white calf flexible sides, lined with white silk. On one side is her monogram in gold letters. Her prayer book and hymnal are in a severely simple alligator case, lined with ivory white satin. On one side there is a collection coin pocket, held down by a gold clasp. The telescope handle is held by two gold chased bands. The prayer book and hymnal are both printed on India paper, with gold edges. Both have carved ivory backs, with the titles in sunken gold letters. Each has her monogram near the upper right hand corner in gold letters, with a tiny sapphire apparently riveting the letters at each angle to the cover. In the church-girl's room, above her toilet table, so that it may be often present to her eyes, hangs a calendar, printed on heavy cream white satin ribbons. This is a most thorough and complete affair. The first page gives all the feast and fast days in monthly groups, but, on lifting up the cover, you find a leaf for each month, with all the saints' days and feast days and fast days, and also the morning and evening lesson for the month.

At Providence, R. I., Mr. Foster sued for a divorce from his wife on account of her improper dealings with Rev. Mr. Goodell; and Mrs. Goodell sued for a divorce from her husband on account of his dealings with Mrs. Foster. Mr. Foster's suit was granted and Mrs. Goodell's denied!

The striking brewery men in Philadelphia held a meeting on Sunday, and decided to stand firm.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

MAN LOST OVERBOARD.

The schooner Active, Frisbee, at New Haven, Conn., Jan. 3d, with a cargo of coal from Hoboken for this port, reports that when off New Haven light on the night of the 1st, the mate, William L. Hobbs of North Hampton, aged forty-five years, when hauling down the flying-jib slipped on the ice-covered deck, and the vessel taking a heavy roll at the same time he went overboard and was lost. The Active would ship a mate at New Haven, and continue her voyage.

THE EMANCIPATION BALL.

The annual ball of the Austin-Lincoln association, commemorative of the singing of the emancipation proclamation by President Lincoln, was held in Franklin upper hall on Monday evening, the 3d inst. The hall was quite elaborately decorated. Pendant from the ceiling was a large bell, and on one wall were the words "Austin-Lincoln" in large letters, formed of tissue-paper flowers; in front of the orchestra was a large anchor and cross, and at the foot of the cross a small anchor and crown, also made of paper flowers; and other flower pieces ornamented the windows. These, with a liberal use of bunting, streamers and flags, set the hall off finely, and the whole presented a very brilliant and pleasing appearance. Besides the members of the association and their immediate friends there were present during the early hours of the ball a very large number of citizens, including members of the city government, and many ladies. Music was furnished by Lord & Medcalf's orchestra, and the ball was a grand success. A choice supper was served to the holders of floor tickets.

THE POLICE MAIL SERVICE.

From Jan. 1st, 1886, to Dec. 31st, inclusive, there were deposited in the letter-box at the police station, by business men principally, 13,171 letters, which were mailed by the police at the Boston & Maine railroad station to go by the early morning Pullman mail for Boston and the west.

A despatch was received in this city last evening announcing the sudden death in Boston of Mr. Horace W. Moses, formerly of this city. Mr. Moses has been residing in Boston for the past three years, and has been in poor health for some six months, but his death was unexpected.

J. S. H. Frink, Esq., is at Concord, engaged in the trial of an important case involving the claim to have a valuable piece of real estate in a western city conveyed to an alleged purchaser. The hearing is before Ex-Judge Ladd as referee.

The continued docket of the term of the supreme court to be held at Exeter on the 18th inst. shows 182 cases, besides forty-six on the equity docket. Judge Bingham will preside.

The Eldredge Brewing Co. have commenced cutting the ice on their pond near the brewery buildings. The ice is about a foot thick, and of good quality.

The Times of Calais, Me., says that "George H. Emerson, special inspector of customs, has received notice that his official residence will be at Eastport instead of at Portsmouth, N. H."

George W. Webber, Esq., of York, was in the city Monday.

Inasmuch as the democratic state committee in Maine is troubled to find a chairman who can have influence with the administration, the Lewiston Journal suggests Hon. Frank Jones of this city for the place.

Mr. Andrew R. Webber of York is engaged in cutting ice at Preble's pond in that town, and employs all the available labor in the neighborhood of the beach, a large part of the working force having previously been engaged to aid in constructing the new railroad.

The fish arrivals on Monday were very light, there being brought in by the schooner Northern Eagle 1,800 lbs.; the Charles Parkhurst, 2,000; Helen F. Tredick, 1,000; Golden Rule, 5,000; M. E. Smith, 2,200; Emerald, 1,500; Alabama, 1,000. Prices ruled high—$7 per hundred being paid.

Some lobsters have been lately caught above Portsmouth bridge. Mr. Horace Tetherly of Eliot neck a few days since brought down to G. W. Randall & Son about thirty of the crustaceans of good size.

THE WEATHER.

A Cape Neddick correspondent who has been for many years connected with the brick-carrying trade between the Piscataqua river and Boston, sends us the following general account of the weather for the past three years:

"During the year 1884 the wind blew from a point within the quadrant embraced between north-northeast and east-southeast on 230 days, and rain or snow fell on 127 days.

In 1885 the wind was from N. N. E. to E. S. E. on 188 days, and rain or snow fell on 119 days.

In 1886 the wind was from N. N. E. to E. S. E. on 222 days, and rain or snow fell on 126 days.

This record does not mean that on the days when the wind is put down as from the eastward it blew from that quarter the entire day on every occasion, but that it was from the eastward some part of the day."

HUNTING FOR HAIT.

A letter received in this city on the 1st inst. from Capt. Albert White, at Eastport, explains the difficulties and annoyances in the way of American buyers of herring in Nova Scotia. First they have to take the barrels from Eastport, and enter them at the custom house on the Nova Scotia side; then go ten miles and fill the barrels, and get the American consul's certificate; then re-enter the barrels at the Nova Scotia custom-house as containing herring in transport, carry them twenty-seven miles on a steamer and enter them at the custom-house in Eastport, and then they are ready to be shipped to Portsmouth or Gloucester. At the time of writing there were 150,000 frozen herring ready to be shipped for Boston. Capt. White made a shipment of 150 bbls. from White Head, which arrived Saturday morning to E. Newton & Co. A telegram from him received on the 2d said the weather was rainy and foggy, and he should start north by the steamer New Brunswick on Monday morning, herring being reported plentiful and large about 250 miles to the northward.

Mr. C. E. Boynton at Christmas time had two swine, about a year old, slaughtered, which weighed respectively 363 and 371 lbs. The pork is very fine, but, although Mr. Boynton has not yet reckoned up the cost, he thinks the profits would not authorize his going into the provision business this year.

John W. Blake, the veteran winter fisherman of Great bay, is renewing operations under the ice there. On Monday he brought in to Stott about thirty pounds of smelts. The Great bay smelts are considered a great delicacy, and consequently bring a much higher price than the smelts brought here from eastern Maine and the British provinces.

Mr. Fred Donaldson, employed by E. Newton & Co., recently cut out fifty pounds of cod cheeks in an hour and fifteen minutes, and now rates himself the top cutter of Commercial wharf.

The gondola Electric Light, Capt. Nason, is now frozen in at Sturgeon creek, Eliot, and will probably stop there for the rest of the winter. Until within a few days Capt. Nason has been engaged in carrying bricks from the Eliot yards to Kittery Point for Frisbee's new hotel, and has been assisted by Capt. Freeman of the schooner Triton since the schooner was hauled up. On some of the gondola's later trips she was pulled through the ice by the tug Ann.

The Piscataqua was steaming on Monday morning, but scarcely a particle of floating ice was to be seen in the harbor.

Charles E. Grover, division superintendent of the Boston & Albany railroad, died last week.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Is a Positive Cure For All of those Painful Diseases, Complaints and Complicated troubles and Weaknesses so common among our Wives, Mothers, and Daughters.

PINKHAM'S "GUIDE TO HEALTH" AND CONTAINS THAT CIRCULAR MAILED TO ANY LADY SENDING ADDRESS AND STAMP TO LYNN, MASS. Mention this Paper.

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1339 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the life line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge was equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Certain Causes of Disease.

A paper read before the Academy of Medicine by Dr. Blaine deals with a subject of great importance to the inhabitants of large cities who know so little about the condition of the animals who furnish their supplies of milk and beef. Dr. Blaine holds that consumption, or tuberculosis, not only is transmitted in the human family by inheritance, but is also acquired by human beings from animals through the medium of milk or beef.

It is well known that certain diseases are propagated through the agency of milk. Epidemics of typhoid fever, scarlet fever and other similar diseases have had their origin in polluted milk, as well as in polluted water, but in cases that have been investigated the disease was caused by morbid matter, for which the milk served as a conveying agent, and which was not derived from the cow and was not present in the milk when it was taken from the cow. But is milk taken from a cow suffering with tuberculosis so tainted with the germs of that disease that it causes tuberculosis in the human being who drinks it?

The results of investigation thus far point to the conclusion that the disease is communicated in this way. And in support of the theory it is shown that the use of milk taken from cows suffering from foot and mouth disease causes a disease like that with which the animal is afflicted. "It has been asserted," said Nature recently, "that tuberculosis can be propagated from animals to man by the consumption of diseased meat, or, in the case of the cow, from the milk of the tuberculous animal. Further proof is required before we can accept such a hypothesis, but there is nothing impossible in such a mode of conveyance of the disease, especially in the case of children with a tubercular predisposition."

An Antedote for Arsenic.

Dr. Joseph Jones, of New Orleans, recommends most highly the drinking of large quantities of fresh milk in cases of arsenical poisoning. His explanation of its action is, that it dilutes the poison, incloses it in its coagula, sheathes the inflamed surface of the mucous membrane, and when the stomach is capable of absorption and digestion, it forms an aliment of the greatest value. His experience includes more than thirteen cases, all of which recovered.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Mr. JOHN W. FURBUSH,

An Army Veteran,

OF WAKEFIELD,

who has probably suffered more than any man or woman in America to-day. Taken sick while in the Army, he has endured untold agonies since. Describing his first symptoms he said: "My head ached and my appetite was poor. I felt a faintness at the pit of the stomach, and a bad taste in my mouth, while my skin was sometimes hot and sometimes cold. I next felt pains in my back and around the lower portion of my body, and noticed a peculiar odor and color in the water I passed, which was scanty at one time and free at others. Sometimes it pained me to void it, and again it was almost impossible to do so at all. Finally I began to pass clear blood accompanied with the greatest strain and agony."

No less than 20 eminent physicians attended Mr. Furbush at various times, but not one of them could help him. He was near death's door. And yet he says: "I am well and well to-day, wholly through the wonderful power of Hunt's Remedy, which took me from the verge of the grave."

This remedy is almost absolutely cures all Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly proposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

Jabez H. Whitehead, overseer of the mule spinning room in the York mill, Saco, was caught by his clothing on Monday morning, and whirled several times over a shaft which was turning 200 times a minute, each time passing through a space of less than two feet. He was saved from immediate death by his clothing giving way, but it was feared his injuries would prove fatal.

Catarrh is not a Blood Disease.

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid.

John Dunn, sixty years old, fell down the stairs of his home in Newburyport, Mass., last Monday morning, breaking his neck, causing instant death. He leaves a widow.

A standard article, universally recommended, is James Pyle's Pearline, which is claimed to be the best thing ever invented for making washing easy, in hard or soft water, without harm to fabric or hands. No soap is required and the work is done thoroughly without it. The genuine is sold by all grocers, and purchasers should beware of imitations.

Yes, they said I was a fool not to try Sulphur Bitters for Rheumatism, from which I had suffered over two years; but I had tried so many doctors and medicines without getting relief that I was discouraged. WINTER.

The winter, O the winter!
Who does not know it well?
When day after day, the fields stretch gray,
And the peewit walks on the fell.
When we close up the crannies and shut out the cold,
And the wind sounds hoarse and hollow,
And our dead loves sleep in the churchyard mold,
And we pray that we soon may follow;
In the winter, mournful winter.
—Atlantic Monthly.

PECULIARITIES OF FASTING.

A Scientific Man's Theory—Some Singular Cases—The Feeling of Hunger.

M. Bernheim, of the Nancy faculty, who has just made his review public in The Revue Scientifique, is disposed to believe in M. Succi, and does not find anything very extraordinary in fasting per se. Thus he cites the cases of patients ill of typhoid fever, who remain weeks without taking nourishment, and still do not die. In a disease to which young girls are especially liable, known as "nervous anorexy," or loathing of food, which is characterized by a total loss of appetite, the patient for weeks and even months eats nothing, or scarcely anything. In this connection M. Bernheim quotes the case of a young girl who was unable to keep food on her stomach through constant vomiting, although she had a good appetite and ate and drank. She lived over a year in that condition, although it was impossible to say by what life was supported. Thus a healthy person will die after a few days' fast, while an invalid will linger for weeks under the same conditions.

The writer explains this curious anomaly by the theory that the healthy man does not really die of inanition, since he is a colossus in comparison with the emaciated invalid who drags himself through the weeks like a walking corpse, or with the convalescent from typhoid, who, though reduced to nothing but skin and bone, still recovers his health. The inference, therefore, is that it is hunger that kills and not inanition, or rather that hunger kills before inanition. Thus, to keep the starving man from dying, we must take away the feeling of hunger.

To support this ingenious hypothesis—an hypothesis which Succi's experiments would seem to bear out, he asserts that he does away with the sensation of hunger by the use of his remarkable liquid—the case is cited of Guillame Granie, a prisoner, who determined to starve himself to death in his cell at Toulouse, in 1831. This faster lived just seventy-three days on nothing but water, but at his death his body only weighed twenty-six kilos, or less than fifteen pounds! Patients suffering from melancholia have also been known to live from twenty to sixty days without eating, and, generally, it may be said, that any powerful emotion greatly modifies the feeling of hunger.

Dr. Sowicke gives the particulars in the cases of eight miners who were imprisoned in a coal pit at Bois Monzil for 135 hours, or over five days, during which time life was supported on two glasses of wine and half a pound of bread, which they shared between them. They could also quench their thirst with water. When released they declared that they had suffered but very little. M. Lepine quotes the experience of a girl who swallowed a quantity of sulphuric acid, which seven months after the accident resulted in the complete eating away of the gullet. She lingered on for sixteen days, complaining not of hunger, but sometimes of thirst.—New York Graphic.

The World's Hungry Children.

I sometimes wonder how anybody with a heart can endure to live in so unjustly balanced a world. There are so many to suffer, while so few are really happy. There are so many who go hungry while pet dogs are pampered and beribboned, poodles and cats are fed and caressed. There are so many little children who never knew how a juicy tenderloin tastes or how good for the stomach a hot and creamy cup can prove. There are so many frozen and flattened little nozes pressed against the outer pane, while warmth and feasting go on within. "My eye!" said one of these little nose-flatteners in my hearing once, "SMELL the soup, Johnnie!" Did he ever TASTE it, I wonder, poor little man? Did any revelation of its warmth and cheer ever reach him, save through the sad little nipped nose of his. Oh, for another "Pied Piper" to gather the hungry children from off the streets, and out from the shadow of squalid homes, not to entomb them in the hillside, but to sit them down to a dinner as fine as your dog has daily, madam.

In Munich, they tell me, there are tables spread constantly for the poor, where they may eat without pay and go their way. In such a city as this, perhaps the free spreads would call together a rabble and create a riot; brazen effrontery would often crowd actual merit to the wall, and the lazy vagabond would get his fill, while the timid woman and the little child went hungry; but, even then, the vast burden of pressing want would be lifted, and we who sit at bountiful tables and bask before warm fires would not feel quite so selfish and so mean.—"Amber" in Chicago Journal.

Dental Caries in Bakers.

Professor Dr. Hesse, of Leipsic, in The Deutsche Monatschrift, points out the deplorable condition of the teeth of bakers, and says that he is often able to tell the profession of the patients by the condition of their teeth. The caries is soft and rapidly progressive. The principal parts attacked are the labial and buccal surfaces of the teeth, commencing at the cervix and rapidly extending to the grinding surface. The approximal surfaces do not seem to be attacked more than in other patients. He believes the disease to be due to the inhalation of flour dust, the caries being caused by the action of an acid which is formed in the presence of fermentable carbohydrates.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. HELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured.
E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Klotz, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.
MRS. ISAAC PHELPS, Ravenna, O.

NO MEDICINE LIKE THEM.

We have sold your CUTICURA REMEDIES for the last six years, and no medicines on our shelves give better satisfaction. C. F. GILBERTSON, Druggist, Albany, N. Y.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are sold everywhere. Price: CUTICURA, 50 cents; RESOLVENT, $1.00; SOAP, 25 cents. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., Boston, Mass. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

GRUBS, Pimples, Skin Blemishes, and Baby Humors, cured by CUTICURA SOAP.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful yet latives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stage. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

Railroad Disasters.

A frightful disaster occurred on the Boston & Albany railroad at Mittineague, Mass., early in the morning on Tuesday, the 4th inst., a truck on the baggage car of the Modoc train breaking when the train was close to the depot, causing the train to jump the track and crash into a freight train on a siding, wrecking the baggage and mail car, smoking car, a passenger car and the freight engine; the passenger engine kept the track, and two sleepers were not damaged. The wreck instantly broke out in flames, and two bodies were found in the ruins; one was that of an unknown soldier, the other being a corpse in transit. Nineteen other persons were injured, but only four or five of them seriously.

Eight miles east of Tiffin, Ohio, about 2:15 A. M. Tuesday, the Baltimore & Ohio limited express train, running at full speed on a down grade, ran into the engine of a freight train which was stalled; both engines were demolished, and a baggage and passenger car were driven into and through each other, the wreck instantly taking fire, and soon destroying the mangled and imprisoned passengers. Eight charred bodies were taken from the ruins in a short time. The engineer of the express was badly hurt, and his fireman killed; the freight engineer, fireman and conductor escaped. Mrs. Fish, Gen. Logan's sister, and her son, were on the train, but were not hurt. Five of the killed were train men.

Disastrous Fire at Hanover.

The most disastrous fire Hanover has ever had broke out at two o'clock Tuesday morning, the 4th, and burned till nine in the forenoon, destroying $130,000 worth of property, including the Dartmouth hotel, where the fire started, Carter's block, Tontine block, the post-office, and many stores, houses and barns. The insurance was mostly in New Hampshire companies. A special train from Lebanon carried an engine company, who with the local department worked gallantly, with the temperature twenty-five degrees below zero.

He Rather Likes It.

Phil Armour, the great pork and beef packer of Chicago, being asked on the 3d inst. how he thought the boycott that had been declared against him would affect his business, replied: "Never heard of it until this morning, but we have been doing an increased business for some weeks past, and I began to suspect something of the kind was up. Why, a boycott helps business. We gain ten or a dozen customers where we lose one, and everyone seems to be in sympathy with anyone against whom a boycott is declared. No, sir. It is no weapon for this country, and the American people will not countenance any such proceeding."

A PLEASANT AFFAIR.

A number of Dover young ladies spent their New Year's day at the Strafford county farm, trying to let a ray of sunshine into the lives of the unfortunate poor. There were two Christmas trees for the children, one for the boys and one for the girls; each little girl received a nice doll, and there was a present of some kind for every child, each receiving also a bag of nice candy and an orange. The old ladies and old men all received presents; also bags of candy and dried fruits, and oranges. Each inmate of the institution received a beautiful Christmas card. After this the sick and the infirm were visited in the hospital and in their various rooms, and supplied with jellies, preserves, and such other things as sick people enjoy. Many of the articles distributed, including two boxes of extra nice Florida oranges, were contributed by generous citizens of Dover, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union gave fifty pounds of choice candy.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Jan. 3d.

The Christmas season passed very pleasantly in this town. On Christmas eve there were Christmas trees at the Congregational and Baptist churches, and they were well filled with useful and ornamental gifts for all. The pieces spoken by the children were excellent, and the singing fine, at both festivals. Expressman Batchelder had a hundred bundles which he was unable to get down from Boston until Saturday afternoon, and cards and packages by mail and express continued arriving as late as Tuesday.

There was a dance at the Union house Christmas eve, and a grand time was enjoyed by a large company. There was another similar good time at the same place on New Year's eve.

Sufficient funds have been raised by the citizens to erect a shoe factory as soon as a site can be decided on and secured.

Within a distance of three and a half miles in this town are thirteen families with only one child each, and there are nineteen dogs in the same district. —

Of Course.

A despatch from London says that "Sir Lionel Sackville West, British minister at Washington, informs the government that he is in receipt of communications from Canada showing a favorable prospect for a resumption of negotiations at Washington looking to a renewal of the fisheries treaty on the basis approved by the Dominion government, as already made public. The minister expresses his belief that the project will be favorably considered, and finally accepted in its substantial entirety by the American government."

Undoubtedly Minister West has good grounds for this cheering information to his government. With the president of the United States and his secretary of state steadily and actively backing up the demands of Canada, in opposition to the interests and plainly expressed desires of the American fishermen, he is fully justified in anticipating the acquiescence of our government in any demand the Dominion government can possibly think of making.

We published Tuesday morning a list of ten men who have been presidents or vice-presidents, or candidates before the people for one of those offices, and who have died within less than a year and a half. In this list was one very important omission; the name of Samuel J. Tilden was not included in it.

Of all the men who have been presidential candidates of either or both the great parties, all are dead save Fremont, Hayes, Blaine and Cleveland. Gen. Logan's death has left but four persons living who have run for the vice presidency on either of the two principal tickets—Hamlin, Pendleton, Wheeler and English—Hamlin and Wheeler having been elected. Mr. Hayes is the only surviving ex-president. Within less than a year and a half two ex-presidents—Grant and Arthur—have died. Of the national candidates of 1880 — Garfield, Arthur, Hancock and English, the latter alone survives.

Detectives are to be employed at Old Orchard to ferret out the firebugs.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

It is rather interesting to read the gush about Gen. Logan which overflows the democratic press. While he was alive the meanest slanders against him were greedily seized upon and paraded; he was disloyal; he was an ignoramus, a shallow, noisy declaimer, etc. To-day, even the New York Sun, which persistently charged him with treason at the breaking out of the rebellion and has followed him with the relentlessness of a demon, shows how true, and loyal and noble he was from the very start! If such papers are honest now, what were they then?—Biddeford Journal.

CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."

EDMUND BURKE, late Commissioner of Patents.

BOSTON, October 19, 1876.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you.

Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.

PARENTS TAKE NOTICE.

The attention of parents is called to the regulation of the Board of Instruction that pupils may be admitted to the lowest grade of primary schools only at the beginning of each term. The time for receiving new pupils for the winter term ends Saturday, Jan. 8th.

THEY ARE MUCH PLEASED.

Although the expenses incurred by Kearsarge engine company in running their New Year's eve concert and ball amounted to very nearly three hundred dollars, the treasurer reports a clean profit of $125, which goes into the company's general fund to be expended in whatever manner the boys think they can do the most good with it. They did not anticipate any such success, and were not over-confident of coming out square on their expenses, but were determined to give a first-class entertainment to the public, even though they had to draw their own wallets to help pay for it. It gives us pleasure to record their success, for they deserved it.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION.

The monthly meeting of the Board of Instruction was holden in the aldermen's room in the city building on Tuesday evening, 4th inst. Present, Messrs. Laskey, Hodgdon, Gooding, Pender, Batchelder, Sinclair, and Goodrich. In the absence of the mayor, Col. Pender was called to the chair.

It was voted that the chairman be authorized to secure the services of Mr. Boyd, music teacher in the schools of Concord, to teach music in the schools of this city, provided satisfactory arrangements can be made. [Mr. Boyd teaches in Concord the first three days in each week, and it is desired to have him here the other three days.]

Bill of Benj. F. Russell, amounting to $183.75, for wood supplied in district three, was referred back to the committee to see if a reduction in the price per cord could not be effected, to make it correspond with the price previously paid for wood of the same quality.

Bills amounting to $137.76 were ordered to be paid.

The superintendent called the attention of the board to the prevalence of truancy in the city; after discussion the matter was referred to the superintendent, to report at the next meeting what remedy can be employed to correct this serious evil.

The superintendent reported that the writing master will in future visit each suburban school once in two weeks.

Adjourned.

MUSICALE.

The musicale in Franklin theatre on Tuesday evening, by the pupils of Miss Alice M. Swasey, was attended by a large audience. The performance, which included solos, and pieces for four, six and eight hands, on two pianos, by Miss Swasey and her pupils, was interesting and pleasing, and gave abundant evidence of careful and skillful teaching and earnest study.

NO DAMAGE DONE.

Sheriff-elect Coffin's horse ran away from near the post-office about noon on Tuesday, up Warren street and by the Rockingham house at a rate which made several young men give into the billiard-room door, through Middle street to the academy corner, in turning which he came near going through the window of a peanut shop on the opposite side, and up Islington street to his home at the Creek, where he stopped to get dinner. The sleigh and contents were unharmed, and the horse none the worse for his breathing; but the sheriff-elect had to walk home.

A SENSIBLE CHANGE.

During the late vacation quite extensive repairs have been made at the Walker schoolhouse on Hanover street, and one most judicious and excellent alteration carried out, namely, the changing of the seats so that the pupils now do not face the light.

A CARD.

The members of Kearsarge Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 3, desire to express their thanks to the police, Chronicle, Penny Post, Times, Journal, Portsmouth Athletic club, John O. Ayers, D. J. Flanders, (Gen. Ticket Ag't B. & M. R. R.,) the Webster House, and the public in general, for the generous patronage given and the favors shown at the 11th annual ball of this company on New Year's eve. PER ORDER.

THE SCHOOLS IN DECEMBER.

The following is a summary of the monthly reports of the several schools (not including the High school) for December:

Whole number of pupils enrolled, 1,228—males 674, females 554; average number, 1,152; average daily attendance, 1,028; average daily absence, 124; number tardy, 619; number dismissed, 135; number of pupils not absent, tardy or dismissed, 368.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Jan. 4th.

John Reardon and Thomas Geddin, tramps, were held in $100 to answer at the April term of the supreme court, and were commited to jail in default of bail.

HE IS CERTAINLY MISINFORMED.

The Portsmouth correspondent of the Dover Democrat writes that paper as follows:

These are the days of "hide and go seek" at the navy yard. 'Tis interesting to hear the stories told by the apprentices about dodging the boss and constructor. These are democratic times surely, when it takes two men four hours to saw one cut off an eight-by-ten stick, and one man three hours and a half to bore an inch and a quarter hole nine inches in depth.

The correspondent has evidently been grossly imposed upon by some slanderous person. The days of "navy yard loafers" and "government pap-suckers" departed when the democratic reform administration took charge, and slurs at the "shiftless brigade" are no longer staples in the stock-in-trade of democratic papers. It is simple impossible that there could be on the navy yard, now, any of the dodging and loafing alleged to have prevailed under republican bosses who were appointed through political influence, and which caused our democratic brethren of the press to groan so agonizingly in cold type.

SONS OF VETERANS.

The following officers of Henry L. Richards camp, S. O. V., were appointed and installed at the regular meeting on Tuesday evening, Jan. 4th:

Quar. Sergt., Michael Crowley;
Ord. Sergt., Charles A. Stevens;
Sergt. of Guard, William Schreiter;
Corp. of Guard, William McCaffrey;
Camp Guard, James Rutledge;
Chaplain, Albert Entwistle;
Color Sergt., Herbert Lear;
Picket Guard, Herman C. Moore;

Lieut. Col. M. Crowley conducted the installation, which was attended by a delegation of about fifteen from the camp at Dover.

Voted to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Logan on the death of her husband.

It was decided to hold the third annual ball of the camp on the evening of Thursday, Feb. 17th.

Prayer and conference meeting at the Congregational chapel on Middle street this evening at 7:30 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Rev. Wm. P. Israel will speak in the south wardroom this evening at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Subject, "Gospel Temperance." All invited; please bring Gospel Hymns.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Niles will be at St. John's church on Sunday, Feb. 27th, to administer the rite of confirmation.

A telegram was received in this city on Tuesday announcing the death of Mrs. Melissa Dunton of Camden, Me., on the 3d of January, at the age of sixty-seven years. She was the mother of thirteen children, of whom two are deceased and the remainder scattered over different portions of the United States, one of them being the wife of John Stott, Esq., of Portsmouth.

The school house on the Durham road in Newmarket was burned early Sunday morning, the fire being caused, as is supposed, from the placing of wood ashes in the woodshed the previous day. The fire department quickly responded to the alarm, but owing to the difficulty in getting water the house was burned to the ground. Loss $1000; no insurance. After the fire the firemen were invited by a neighbor to a collation of hot coffee, crackers and cheese.

The fire-alarm gong at the Portsmouth brewery did not sound at half-past twelve o'clock Tuesday afternoon, workmen being engaged in boxing in the apparatus so that winter storms can have no further effect in the line of impairing its working.

The total amount of death claims paid by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York for the week ending Dec. 30th, 1886, was $87,358.89. The total amount of endowments paid for the same time was $16,851.80.

Mr. Robert Pickering brought in to Flynn Bros., on Market street, Tuesday, thirty pounds of smelts caught by him at Great day. The retail price of Great bay smelts in Portsmouth at present is 12 1-2 cents per lb.

A section gang on the Boston & Maine railroad had a narrow escape last Saturday afternoon while returning to Newmarket from the Durham section. The faternoon freight train had just gone by, and the men replaced their car on the track and proceeded, when a wild engine which had not been flagged came suddenly upon them, and they had barely time to jump off when the engine struck their car and smashed it to pieces.

Mrs. Menzies L. Moody of Biddeford, who was terribly burned early last week by her clothes taking fire from a stove, died on Monday afternoon last, leaving a husband and one child. She was about twenty-six years old.

John Roach, the great shipbuilder, is dying with the same trouble which caused Gen. Grant's death. He has never seen a well day since the entire nervous prostration caused by his assignment eighteen months ago, consequent on the hostile action of the navy department.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1839 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the life line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

The Streets of St. Petersburg.

Driving in the streets of St. Petersburg is something to be remembered. The private carriages are fine barouches, quite like our own and generally drawn by black Tartarian or Bulgarian stallion horses. These animals have long manes and tails and are driven at a rate of speed that would make the commissioners of Central park stare and clear the concourse of people in a short time. The drosky is a small four-wheeled, one-horse carriage, very low in the body, seating two passengers and a driver in front. All drivers wear long surtout coats reaching to their feet, plaited over the hips and bustled behind. The cap is low, broad on top, with a curved rim, exactly like that of a gentleman's stove-pipe hat. Around the top of the hat are attached several small quills or feathers, in numbers according to the Cossack or provincial rank of the driver.

The harness is made of very small pieces of strong leather. It is attached to the carriage or wagon with double traces, one to the whiffletree and one at the end of the axletree, outside of the hub—an extra precaution against accidents. Over the horse's shoulder and his collar is raised an ornamental ox-bow, about twenty inches in height. Within and on this bow are arranged pretty tassels and small bells. In Moscow horses attached to omnibuses, hotel coaches and private carriages are driven four abreast. Being conveyed from the depot in one of those Oriental equipages one feels as if he or she were entering the chariot races of the Olympian feats.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Italian ministry have directed that the great collection of musical works which formed part of the Musical library in Rome shall be transferred to the Academia di Santa Cecilia. The collection has been described as the richest of its kind in the world, and the catalogue of musical works which it contains said to be the most complete in existence.—Chicago Herald.

A Cure for Malaria.

"I feel depressed to-night," remarked a large, down-town trunk manufacturer to his wife, "I think I have touch of malaria." "I fancy it will soon pass away," replied the lady, without much concern. "Why don't you go around to the Grand Central station and watch them handle trunks for an hour? That will brighten you up."—New York Sun.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have long suffered from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I remain, Yours truly,

The Only Way to Conquer Dyspepsia.

It is perfectly proposterous to introduce pepsin and other artificial solvents into the stomach, in the expectation that they will assist digestion by acting on the food itself. They will not. Nor is it possible thus to overcome dyspepsia. The only way to conquer that disorder, and prevent the numerous diseases and disabilities which it assuredly provokes, is to renew the activity of gastric action by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters eradicates the most inveterate forms of indigestion by restoring vitality to the alimentary organs, and those which are tributary to them. The liver, the bowels, the kidneys and the nerves, no less than the stomach, experience the invigorative effects of that standard tonic, which possesses alterative properties that greatly enhance its beneficial influence, and give a permanence to its effects which they would not otherwise possess.

Twenty-one years ago the steamer Brother Jonathan went down off the Oregon coast with $2,000,000 in specie on board. Various unsuccessful efforts have been made to get the money, and new another effort on an elaborate scale is to be made.

I Was A Fool.

Yes, they said I was a fool not to try Sulphur Bitters for Rheumatism, from which I had suffered over two years; but I had tried so many doctors and medicines without getting relief that I was discouraged. I am now on my fourth bottle and almost cured. I was a fool that I didn't try that wonderful remedy before.—C. G. Pratt, Manchester, N. H.

A despatch from Neuvo Laredo, Mexico, says: A desperate fight took place on the 3d inst. between the guardas rurales and about fifty smugglers from the American side, coveying about $20,0000 worth of goods into the interior. The finale was ten dead smugglers and three dead guards, with the goods in the hands of the authorities.

The Britisa steamer Cranbrook, from Newport, Eng., Nov. 30th, for New York, is supposed to have gone down in the December gales with all on board, thirty lives being lost. She was a new steamer, and loaded with 2000 tons of steel rails.

Has Used Them for 15 Years.

Sing Sing, N. Y., May 27th, 1886. I have been using Allcock's Porous Plasters for the last fifteen years in my family and can conscientiously recommend them as invaluable when applied where pain is to be relieved. Two years ago I contracted pneumonia from a heavy cold, and during my convalescence, and in the winter months since, have worn one on each lung across my back and have experienced great benefit therefrom, and was relieved from a threatened return in less than twenty-four hours.—Ira J. The members of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and Sunday school of Providence, R. I., have decided by a large majority—a practically unanimous vote, in fact—to maintain Rev. Charles L. Goodell in his relations as pastor of the congregation. On this the Providence Journal remarks: "This is a case where argument and warning are apparently useless, and the church which chooses to maintain at its head a man who has been pronounced by the supreme court to be the guilty cause of a shameful and shocking divorce, must take the consequences of its action to itself and the religion which it professes to sustain. They will be inevitable and serious."

MUSIC AMONG THE GYPSIES.

Their Favorite Instruments—Apt Pupils in Music—Singing at Concerts.

In the days of yore, long ere the hills of England were tunneled, its rivers crossed, or its valleys were invaded to make way for railway trains, it was sweet to listen to the mild music, which, emanating from some Gypsy camp in a secluded dell, mingled with the rich notes of the nightingale and other birds of song, just as the sun, on his vermilion car, sank below the horizon in the distant west. Although inroads have been made on the haunts of the gypsy tribes, and their music is not heard so often now as formerly, the old love of it still lingers in the tents and lives in the hearts of this singular people. Their home life is now and then enlivened by music and dancing, especially when the women have had "good luck," and the men have been successful in their speculations.

It is then they indulge, more than they usually do, both in eating and drinking. A few of "fortune's smiles" will make them so light hearted, and they become so merry, that a tune on the violin is proposed, to which all that are able and so disposed dance with great hilarity, especially to that known as "The White Cockade." Many of the men dance well, and the women and girls generally move lightly and elegantly, and all of them seem to enjoy the pastime. The favorite instruments of the Gypries are the harp, fiddle, tambourine and tin whistle. Such apt pupils in music are many of them, that if they had proper facilities and efficient tutors they would be no disgrace whatever either to the most eminent composers or to the most accomplished musicians.

In different parts of Europe, particularly in Russia and Hungary, many Gypsies have become very popular as singers in cathedrals and churches, and have often been employed to sing before princes and fashionable assemblies, both private and public. In Spain some of the Gitanos are theatrical performers, and cases are not infrequent in which they have attained great efficiency and popularity. In Hungary a writer relates of knowing several Gypsy women who were popular as public singers, and one in particular, whose voice was of such remarkable sweetness that she was almost constantly engaged in singing at concerts given in the private mansions of the rich and noble for many miles around, and for which she was always very munificently paid.—Brooklyn Magazine.

The Hotels of New York.

The hotels of New York are its history. Time was when the Astor house was so far up town that people went up there to see it. Its erection was midway of an era, which went back to the old City hotel and Howard hotel, and forward to the Metropolitan and St. Nicholas. The hostelries of those days took their names from home subjects, the old Clinton, where the pioneer of the Leland family made a beginning of the hotel business in some humble capacity, was named after the governor who planned "the big ditch," just as the Hoffman in recent times was named after another chief magistrate of the Empire state. French's, Lovejoy's, the Brandreth, the Gilsey, the Coleman, the Sturtevant and the Everett were and are perpetuations of individuals. Then came topical or local designations, such as the New York, the Union Square and the Fifth Avenue.

The St. Nicholas was a tribute to the city's patron saint; the Metroplitan marked the era when New York assumed metropolitan rank, and the United States was the home of sea captains, who conducted our international commerce. The epoch of traveled Americans and visiting Englishmen came next with such hotels as the Clarendon, Albemarle, St. James, Windsor, Westminster, Brunswick and Buckingham. The French and continental fashion of putting the word "hotel" before the name came with and succeeded this stage of nomenclature. The Hotel Normandy is a happy illustration. Numerous others might be cited, among the latest of them the Hotel Bartholdi, which was quite an inspiration of its sponsor, and the Hotel Gladstone, which is artistically a success in point of euphony.—Brooklyn Citizen.

The Use of Snakes.

Persons who dislike snakes continually ask: "What is the use of them?" That they are not without use will, I hope, appear in the course of this work, were it necessary to preach that all things have their use. But in one habit that offended Lord Bacon, namely, of "going on their belly," lies one of the greatest uses, because that, together with their form and external covering, enables them to penetrate where no larger carniverous animal could venture, into dark and noisome morasses, bog jungles, swamps, amid the vegetation of the tropics, where the swarms of the lesser reptiles, on which so many of them feed, would otherwise outbalance the harmony of nature, die and produce pestilence. Wondrously and exquisitely constructed for their habit, they are able to enter where the higher animals could not, and while they help to clear those inaccessible places of the lesser vermin, they themselves supply food for a number of smaller mamalia, which, with many carnivorous birds, devour vast numbers of young snakes. The hedgehog, weasel, ichneumon, rat, peccary, badgar, hog, goat, and an immense number of birds keep snakes within due limits, while the latter perform their part among the grain-devouring and herbivorous lesser creatures. Thus beautifully is the balance of nature maintained.—New Orleans Picayune.

"Did you know that short mustaches like mine are all the rage now?" asked a Soho youth of his girl.

"No; are they?" she replied.

"Yes: they are the latest things out."

"I might have known that, too, for if they are like yours they haven't been out long."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

A farmer of New Hope, Cal., who planted 500 acres in potatoes has had such an abundant crop that he calculates it will yield him $50,000.

Washington

Drew his last breath in the last hour of the last day of the last week of the last month of the last year of the last century. He died Saturday night, at 12 o'clock, Dec. 31st, 1799. Aged people need a pure alcoholic stimulant to maintain vitality, and none equals the G. O. Taylor Bourbon and Rye Whiskey, bottled by C. H. Graves & Sons, Boston, and sold by respectable grocers and druggists everywhere.

How the Reformers Secured a Majority.

The democrats in the New Jersey legislature appear to have one majority on a joint ballot. This is the way they got one seat. In one of the Camden county districts the returns showed on the night of the election that the republican candidate was elected by forty-five majority, and no one thought of disputing it at the time. A recount was demanded, and the republicans were warned that a job had been put up on them. When the recount was made several boxes turned out dozens of ballots with the name of the republican candidate scratched and that of the democratic written on, in every case in the same handwriting, in the same place, and in such a manner that it was plain that it was done after the ballots were strung. In one township the five democratic and three republican election officers unanimously swore that the returns as given out on the night of election were correct. These showed 172 votes for Haines, the republican candidate; the doctored count gave him only 152. One hundred and seventy citizens and voters in the township were then produced who swore that they had voted for Haines. The change of twenty votes in this township is alone enough to seat Haines. The situation in two other townships is precisely similar to this one.

It Is Only Free Trade.

The owners of the great British steamship lines are much incensed because the British postal authorities have contracted with a line of German steamers to carry the mails between England and this country. They say the German lines are heavily subsidized by the German government, while the British lines have to depend solely on what they can earn; hence it is unfair to give the carrying of the mails to the Germans, simply because they will do the carrying a little cheaper than the Britons can afford to. They evidently do not believe in free trade when applied to their own business.

A Shocking Mystery.

On Tuesday, 4th inst., between Lincoln and Lexington, Mass., a number of articles of gentleman's clothing, soaked with blood and apparently cut with a knife from the body of the person wearing them, were found on and near the road. Wednesday morning, as Mr. L. I. Brooks of Lincoln was riding toward Lexington, he discovered on the side of the road the head of a man which had been severed from the body, and afterward found an arm in the snow near by. He immediately rode to Lexington and informed the selectmen. On the arrival of the selectmen at the scene of the discovery, the head was found to have been terribly gashed in several places by some sharp instrument, probably a knife, and was also bruised by something blunt, such as the poll of an axe. The body was afterward discovered over a mile from the rest of the remains, in a deep gully in the midst of a lot of bushes. One arm and the right leg had been severed from the body, and an attempt had been made to cut off the other leg, but it had not been done.

"Honor Among Thieves" Not to be Enforced by the Courts.

Judge Daniels of New York has decided that Jim Keene and others, who engineered a "corner" in lard in 1880, and made a great deal of money, have no redress in the courts against their brokers, whom Keene charged with defrauding them of considerable of the ill-gotten gains. Judge Daniels said the "deal" was not only a form of gambling, but was an unlawful conspiracy to enhance the price of an article of public necessity; and concluded by saying that Keene "has no right to expect the court to interpose its authority in his behalf to enforce that well-known principle of honor upon which his alleged rights must be successfully dependent,"—alluding, of course, to the principle of "honor among thieves."

A Basis of Religious Union.

The New York Independent finds the following points of agreement among the Protestant denominations, leaving out the Unitarians, and recommends a union on this basis:

1. The existence and authority of God.
2. The divinity and authority of His Son Jesus Christ, our Lord.
3. The converting and indwelling presence of His Holy Spirit.
4. The inspiration and authority of the Holy Scriptures.
5. The guilt and ill desert of sin.
6. Redemption and pardon through Jesus Christ.
7. The necessity of conversion from a life of sin and selfishness to a life of holiness and consecration to the service of God and man.
8. The supernatural history of Jesus Christ, His crucifixion and burial, His resurrection from the dead and His ascension to heaven, where He sitteth at the right hand of God.
9. The immortality of the soul, and the just awards of the future world, to the righteous eternal life, and to the finally impenitent eternal death.
10. The establishment by our Lord of His church, with the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's supper.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

The republican legislative caucus of Nevada nominated William M. Stewart for the United States senate on the 4th.

HOTEL CHANGE.

Mr. O. L. Frisbee, for several seasons past the successful manager of the Oceanic at Star island, Isles of Shoals, has leased the hotel of Laighton Bros., and will run it on his own account. From the time he assumed the management Mr. Frisbee was a popular landlord, so much so that a large proportion of one year's guests were sure to put in an appearance the following year; and last season was the most prosperous one the house ever had, counting from the time the first Oceanic was built. Quite naturally, Mr. Frisbee hopes the coming season will be better still, and has reasonable grounds for expecting it, as a large proportion of the rooms are engaged, and he has already received assurances from many of his former guests that they will be at the island again next season. The steamer Oceanic will make four trips a day to and from Portsmouth and the Shoals, instead of two as in previous seasons, thus giving the people of this city and vicinity a chance to remain all day at the Oceanic, in place of two or three hours.

MATRIMONIAL.

Mr. William H. Moore, of the insurance firm of Ilsley & Moore, and a member of the Journal's editorial staff, was on Wednesday afternoon, the 5th inst., united in marriage with Miss Arabel B. Bowles, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Henry E. Hovey. Mr. Moore and wife left on the afternoon train for a short wedding trip, on their return from which they will commence housekeeping at No. 21 Cabot street. We wish them every good fortune.

CORPORATION ELECTIONS.

The annual meetings of the shareholders of the Portsmouth Athenæum and the Portsmouth Aqueduct were held on Wednesday, Jan. 5th, and the officers of last year re-elected, as follows:

ATHENÆUM—Dr. Francis E. Langdon, president; William H. Rollins, John S. H. Frink, John S. Pray, T. Salter Tredick, John Sise, directors; George Annable, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Olivia S. Drake, librarian.

PORTSMOUTH AQUEDUCT—John J. Pickering, president; John J. Pickering, William A. Peirce, William L. Dwight, T. Salter Tredick, Samuel H. Ayers, directors; John O. Ayers, treasurer and proprietors' clerk.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 5th.

Isaac Henderson and James Burns each accused the other of assault, the two charges being the outcome of a disturbance in a saloon, which from the evidence appeared to have been started by Burns, who got the worst of it. After hearing all the testimony the magistrate dismissed both complaints.

B. & M. R. R. R. A.

The second annual meeting of the Boston & Maine Railroad Relief Association was held in the auditor's room of the Eastern railroad station in Boston on the evening of the 4th inst., D. W. Sanborn presiding. Secretary A. A. Ingalls reported that the membership at the beginning of the year was 343; deaths during the year, three; dropped from membership during the year, seventeen; present membership, 388. The treasurer's report was read, showing that the receipts of the year were $8353.51; sick benefits paid, $1580.41; death benefits, $1578; cash on hand, $4525.43. The following officers were unanimously elected: President, D. W. Sanborn; vice president, A. Colby; secretary and treasurer, A. A. Ingalls; directors, D. W. Sanborn, W. E. Mead, A. Colby, W. H. Holt, R. H. Hunnewell, W. H. Hatch, C. A. Prescott, W. H. Holmes, A. A. Pickering, D. A. Smith; finance committee, J. H. McDonald, E. A. Maxfield, N. E. Cate.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE ALABAMA AWARD DIVISION.

A Washington despatch says that a discovery interesting to the Alabama claimants has been made, and is causing considerable consternation at the treasury department. It appears that the expenses of the original Geneva Commission were taken out of the amount of the award. Now it is maintained that there was no authority in law for the taking of this money, and as a matter of fact the government officers have not been able to find any. If the government is compelled to refund this money to the claimants, it will increase their awards about four per cent.

MARITIME NOTES.

The repairs on the schooner Annie F. Conlon, lately ashore at False Cape, cost but little over $300; the wrecking company's bill, however, was a heavy one, though the first claim was reduced somewhat. The schooner is now loading coal at Baltimore for this port.

The schooner Franklin S. Schenck, Capt. Thomas Jameson, arrived on Sunday with only the bolt-ropes of her foresail left, the rest having been blown away. Charles S. Drowne is making her a new sail.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Capt. Levi Downs, arrived on Monday night from Gloucester, where she had her steering gear repaired. She has been haddocking of late, but will now sail from this port cod-fishing.

The fishing arrivals on Tuesday, the 4th, was the schooner I Am Here with 2500 lbs.; Northern Eagle, 1800; Albert Woodbury, 1500; Franklin S. Schenck, 6500; A. C. Newhall, 1800; Gertie Freeman, 4000; Abby Snow, 2700; William H. Cross, 25,000; Josie Johnson, 2000; Lady Thorn, 4000; Clyde, 1000; Flora Temple, 2000; Charles A. Dyer, 2500. The price paid was $3 a hundred.

The steamer Pinafore, Capt. Oscar Laighton, was in from Appledore on Wednesday.

The schooner B. R. Stevenson, of St. Andrew's, N. B., was seized a few days ago by the Dominion cutter Gen. Middleton, on the charge of having an American master and crew, and was fined $400. The real offence of the vessel was smuggling sardines, purchased in Canadian waters, to the factories at Eastport, Me.

The total number of vessels built in the state of Maine the past year was fifty-six, with an aggregate tonnage of 15,095. They comprised eight steamers, one bark, two barkentines, thirty-five schooners and ten sloops. This is the smallest amount of tonnage built in that state in a year, for many years.

Smelting and eeling are being prosecuted through the ice on Back river, at Dover neck, with good success; and some eels are being taken on the main river above the Dover point bridge.

Mr. Charles E. Hodgdon commenced cutting ice from his pond at Gravelly Ridge on the 30th ult. It was a foot thick then, and should have increased liberally during the cold days following.

Mr. Freeman Pearson has bought the house No. 23 South street, and will extensively repair and improve it.

By the river and harbor bill drafted during the recess of Congress by the subcommittee of the appropriation committee, $7,500 is allowed for the improvement of Portsmouth harbor, $2,000 for the Cocheco river, $15,000 for Newburyport harbor, $3,000 for the Saco river, and $60,000 for Boston harbor.

Hon. Frank Jones will shortly start on a visit to Florida.

The January term of the supreme judicial court of Maine for York county opened in Saco on Tuesday, Jan. 4th, Hon. Enoch Foster of Bethel presiding, and the new county attorney, Horace H. Burbank, and the new sheriff, Samuel C. Hamilton, being in attendance. Among the traverse jurors present were Alpheus S. Hanscom of Lebanon, Daniel W. Spencer of Berwick, John G. Littlefied of Wells, and Freeman Staples of Limerick. Samuel L. Paul of Kittery, Andrew S. Perkins of York, Charles H. Coates of South Berwick, and Walter H. Cloudman and Caleb S. Gurney of Kennebunk, were excused from service as jurors at this term.

One of the things which the legislature of Maine will be called upon to settle at this session will be the fate of Mrs. Barrows, who was sentenced to be hanged, and was respited by Governor Robie and council until April next to give the people, through the legislature, an opportunity to express their opinions as to the propriety of hanging female murderers in general and this female in particular. A parallel to this case has arisen in the case of Mrs. Druise of New York, who has been reprieved by Gov. Hill until after the meeting of the legislature for precisely the same purpose that Mrs. Barrows was reprieved by Gov. Robie. The law in neither state makes any distinction between the male and female murderer, but in both states there exists a strong public sentiment against hanging women. Both Gov. Robie and Gov. Hill heeded this sentiment.

In a small school district in Wells live twenty marriageable women and ten marriageable men. Forty years ago over a hundred scholars were registered in that district; now about a quarter of that number. Query, what will the next forty years bring forth?—North Berwick News.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Quaker Testimony.

MRS. A. M. Dauphin of 1630 Ridge Ave, Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city which for building some years ago was thrown violently a about the life line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

MRS. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." For Kidney Complaints equal that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subject of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means place before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Having spacious and cool accommodations and long and large experience he solicits patronage in his line.

Lincoln as Postmaster.

In the spring of this year, 1833, he was appointed postmaster of New Salem, and held the office for three years. Its emoluments were slender and its duties light, but there was in all probability no citizen in the village who could have made so much of it as he. The mails were so scanty that he was said to carry them in his hat, and he is also reported to have read every newspaper that arrived. It is altogether likely that this formed the leading inducement to his taking the office. His incumbency lasted until New Salem ceased to be populous enough for a post station and the mail went by to Petersburg. Dr. Holland relates a sequel to this official experience which illustrates the quaint honesty of the man. Several years later, when he was a practicing lawyer, an agent of the postoffice department called upon him, and asked for a balance due from the New Salem office, some $17. Lincoln arose, and opening a little trunk which lay in the corner of the room, took from it a cotton rag in which was tied up the exact sum required. "I never use any man's money but my own," he quietly remarked. When we consider the pinching poverty in which these years had been passed, we may appreciate the self-denial which had kept him from making even a temporary use of this little sum of government money.—The Century.

A Gambler's Superstition.

There was a mild looking little hunchback standing in front of a New York store last evening, in the rain, looking at the Christmas traps in the window. While I stood near him I saw a rather overdressed man absently approach under pretense of looking at them, too. He had his handkerchief in his hand, and I saw him wrap it around his finger and softly, with great caution and an appearance of rapt indifference, gently—almost imperceptibly—touch the little man's hump, and then walk contentedly away. It was a touch "for luck." Had he touched the lump with his bare hand, or had the hunchback noticed the touch, it would have been ill luck of a very distinct variety. It is not safe to assume that man was a gambler. Some very clever men who are not at all touched with the gambler's weakness, would hurry five blocks to overtake a hunchback and touch his hump.—New York Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

JOSEPH P. MORSE,
Fire, Life & Accident Insurance Agent and Broker.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va.
Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured.
E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Kintz, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of Itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, until which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of pur fying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

Yes, they said I was a fool not to try Sulphur Bitters for Rheumatism, from which I had suffered over two years; but I had tried so many doctors and medicines without getting relief that I was discouraged. THE RUSSIAN STILETTO DANCE.

A Weird Custom Indulged in by the Chehets of Caucasus.

Speaking of Chehets, who are creating considerable disturbance in their mountains of the Caucasus, a traveler says: "While in a little villa, several versts distant from Tiflis, I witnessed one of their annual festivals, and the peculiar and unique dance, which, somewhat modified, has been adopted in Russia under the name of Lieazinka. The lieazinka is a relic of centuries, about the only and the last custom kept that was formerly practiced by their nomadic ancestors on special occasions, such as the return from a victorious campaign, the wedding of a popular youth, or the death of a brave.

"The long, finely drawn dagger worn by the Chehets at their hips is taken off; each sticks his own into the ground at intervals varying from a few inches to about a couple of feet. Two stilettos are then taken out, one in each hand, and the dance begins. At first to the tune of reeds playing a dirge like song, the gray haired old warriors advance. Their step is slow and measured. They enter the magic circle of daggers and when fully in the younger men begin to fall into line. Then the music assumes a livelier spirit. The dancers begin to leap and arms now sway in cadence to the music. A feverish excitement seems to creep among them. Faster and faster fall the reed notes, now joined by tinkling cymbals and drums made of bark and stretched leather.

"The arms wave wildly about. The stilettos flash like silver threads in the light of the glowing fires. The excitement is intense. Shrieks rend the air, and a confusion of sounds make a perfect pandemonium of the place. They revolve about the daggers, leap over them and whirl each other about with surprising rapidity and agility. All physical senses seem aroused to the keenest alertness, their whole mind is concentrated upon their actions and all consciousness of outside things is for the time being unknown. Their flowing beard, disheveled locks and eyes staring vacantly from their sockets form a contrast particularly striking and awful.

"Gradually the music slows up, and now they advance back and forth, then whirl about, circling round and round; the stilettos in rhythmic motions are borne first to the nose, then the ears, elbows and other parts of the body. After an hour or so of such exercise one by one they fall out through sheer exhaustion, until the musicians themselves, worn out, sound the final note, when the remaining few recover themselves and leave the charmed circle to receive the congratulations of their women friends. Such is the dancer.—Book Review.

Some Dogs Live Long Under Water.

The poundmaster reported to Health Commissioner Martin the drowning of seven dogs under the authority of the ordinance providing for the slaughter of unmuzzled dogs. He suggested to the health commissioner that the plan of drowning the dogs is extremely barbarous. He had drowned about 100 dogs up to the present time, he said, and it was very disagreeable work, besides being cruel to the dogs. He thought there might be a number of ways devised to end the existence of the unfortunate brutes more humane than the drowning method. "There is a great difference in the way water affects different animals," said the poundmaster. "Some of them are dead within a minute after being put in the water, while others live much longer, some as long as fifteen minutes. I can't understand how it is possible for them to live so long, but they seem to be almost like fish. I often leave a dog that appears to be particularly long lived in the water over night, so as to be sure that he is dead."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Realistic View of War.

War is a kind of superstition; the parade of arms and badges corrupts the imagination of men. How far more appropriate would be the symbols of an inconsolable grief, muffled drums, and the melancholy music and arms reversed, the livery of sorrow. When men mourn at funerals for what do they mourn in comparison with the calamities which they hasten with all circumstance of festivity to suffer and to inflict? Visit in imagination the scene of a field of battle or a city taken by assault. Collect we into one group the groans and the lamentations of the innumerable dying, the inconsolable grief and horror of their sorrowing friends, the hellish exultation and unnatural drunkenness of destruction of the conquerors, the burning of the harvests, and the obliterations of the traces of cultivation.—Shellye's Philosophical Views of Reform.

How California Was Named.

At a meeting of the California Historical society a paper was read by Professor Davidson on the early discoveries in California. He said the word "California" first occurred in a novel entitled "Las Sergas de Esplandian," published in 1510 and that the name was first given to this country by Bernal Diaz Costello, who served under Cortez, who writes in his memoirs of the voyage from "Santa Cruz to California." The bay of San Francisco was discovered in 1769 by several French savants who came here to see the transit of Venus. This party perished of malarial fever near Point St. Lucas. The Columbia river was discovered in 1775 by Heceta, a Spaniard.—San Francisco Examiner.

Grief Stricken, of Course.

The woman who heats a kettle of water to boil, and then sets it off on the floor and goes upstairs to whitewash her bedroom ceiling, leaving the baby to sit down in the kettle, is always mentioned in the papers as terribly grief stricken at the funeral. It never occurred to her that an accident could possibly happen.—Detroit Free Press.

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

A Terrible Crime.

The mystery of the bloody clothing and dismembered body found on the road between Lexington and Lincoln, Mass., Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, has been quickly solved, and horrible enough the solution is.

Tuesday night the police of Somerville were notified of the discoveries at Lexington, and early Wednesday morning they learned that George A. Codman, a young man who arrived in Somerville last summer from New Hampshire, and purchased a milk route from John Spear, was missing. Following up this clue, the Somerville officers interrogated Eddie Nowlan, a youth of seventeen years employed by Codman, and were by him informed that Codman at eleven A. M. Tuesday drove off in his sleigh, accompanied by a man he addressed as Frank; that before starting he directed Nowlan to get him all the money there was in a box he carried on his milk team, and his coat, and after saying he did not know when he should return, left the milk business in Nowlan's hands. This story the officers did not credit. Taking to Somerville the clothing found on the road, it was fully identified by Codman's brother, who lives in Charlestown, and by Miss Jennie Fisher of Somerville, to whom Codman had been very attentive and in whose company he passed the early evening on Monday, the 3d inst., as having been worn by the missing man. A pair of mittens that were among the articles found, were mended with ticking by Miss Fisher that evening.

Nowlan was taken to the Somerville police station late Wednesday afternoon, and after a long private interview with several of the police officials, was locked up on a charge of being accessory to the murder of Mr. Codman. What his confession or statement was, the reporters could not learn, the officers courteously but firmly declining to give any information whatever. About 10:30 o'clock a young man, about twenty-two years of age, arrived at the station in custody; and an hour later a third man, about twenty-five years old, was also locked up. The police captain refused to divulge their names, but said the latter two arrests were made on the charge of murder. It was learned that Nowlan returned from his milk route at eleven A. M. on Tuesday, although he usually returned at one P. M.; and that he then went to the house of Mr. Pillsbury, where Codman had a room, and asked for a box belonging to Codman. This was the box in which the murdered man was accustomed to keep his money, $285 of which was recovered by the police Wednesday night, in Nowlan's room.

The two men arrested easily proved their innocence, and were released on Thursday. That forenoon the boy was confronted with a bloody axe found in Codman's stable, when he broke down and confessed that he alone committed the hideous crime, in order to get Codman's money. The bare outline of his confession is all we care to publish, eliminating the sickening details.

He had meditated the murder several days, and on Tuesday morning at two o'clock, being in the stable with Codman, he stabbed him in the throat from behind with a keen, sharp pointed carving knife. The victim fell, and died without a cry or groan. The murderer then pushed the body under a pung, covered it with a blanket, and washed the floor; then went over the milk route, coolly delivering the milk; returned home, ate dinner, and then tried to put the body in the pung. Finding it too heavy he cut off one arm and one leg with the axe, and then put the remains and the axe in the pung; drove to Lexington, threw the arm and head (which latter he chopped off in the road, and disfigured so it should not be recognized) over a wall; drove on further and threw the body where it was found, and then returned to the barn and endeavored to efface all traces of his crime.

A young boy arrived at the Rockingham house during the snow storm on Wednesday evening of this week, without baggage or clothing. He was warmly welcomed by Manager Hill, who proudly mentions the new arrival as his son.

The pay-car of the Concord railroad was in this city on Thursday, and the employes at this station received their monthly compensation.

The Portland Locomotive company has received an order for twelve locomotives for the Boston & Maine railroad. This is the first order ever placed with that company by the Boston & Maine.

In the court at Saco on the 5th inst. the case of Winfield S. Dennett vs. Dennis O'Connor was put over to the May term at Alfred. This is the suit which grew out of the death of a man from drinking poisoned cider, from a cask in which an undertaker had previously had an embalming fluid.

—The Biddeford Journal thinks that the old way of getting married, with the publishing-box in the church vestibule and all the ceremony and celebration, was the best way.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Jan. 6th, Mayor Eldredge in the chair:

Present, the full board.

Records of the last meeting were read and approved.

Gideon H. Rundlett asked to be reimbursed for expense incurred in building fence between his own and the city's land. Referred to the committee on claims, to report.

Petition of Lawrence K. Lydston and others, for a street light on Hanover street, between High and Market streets, near the carriage factory, was referred back to the petitioners for more definite information as to the kind of light, etc.

The drum corps, who have been occupying the ward room on Elm street, were granted leave to continue six months longer under the same conditions as before.

The committee on fire department reported having agreed to pay the Portsmouth Brewing Co. $200 for the use of steam for the gong for one year, to Jan. 1, 1888.

Application of superintendent of fire alarm for increase of pay, was taken from the committee on claims, and referred to the committee on fire department.

The committee to whom was referred the subject of regulating the keeping of dogs, reported the following ordinance, which was referred to the committee on bills on their second reading:

Be it ordained by the City Councils of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SECTION 1. No dog shall be permitted to go at large or loose in this city until the owner or keeper of such dog, or the head of the family, or the keeper of the house or place where such dog is harbored, shall have procured from the city marshal a license for such dog.

SECTION 2. The city marshal shall grant a license to any resident of this city for his dog on the payment of two dollars for a male dog, and five dollars for a female dog, which license shall expire on the first day of July annually.

SECTION 3. The city marshal shall keep a record of all licenses so granted, each license to be numbered, and he shall make a report to the mayor and aldermen on the first day of July annually and every three months thereafter of all licenses granted, and shall at the same time pay to the city treasurer all moneys received for the use of the city.

SECTION 4. The person named in each license so granted shall cause his name and the number of the license to be distinctly marked on a collar which shall be constantly kept about the neck of the dog so licensed, and no dog shall be considered as licensed unless this requisition shall be complied with.

SECTION 5. No person shall harbor or keep any dog which by loud and frequent or habitual barking, yelping or howling, shall cause serious annoyance to the neighborhood or to the people passing upon the public streets or roads.

SECTION 6. The board of mayor and aldermen shall provide a building or pound in which shall be impounded all dogs that may be found running at large contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, and a member of the police force shall be designated by said board as pound-keeper and have charge of such pound.

SECTION 7. It shall be the duty of every member of said police force, and of every other person who may be appointed by the board of mayor and aldermen for that purpose, to promptly seize, take up, and place in said pound all the dogs that may be found running at large contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, in any of the streets, roads, alleys, or other public or open spaces or places within the city, and for every dog so impounded the party appointed as hereinbefore provided delivering the same at the pound shall be entitled to receive from the city treasury fifty cents upon the surrender to the treasurer of the receipt mentioned in Sec. 8 hereof.

SECTION 8. To the party delivering the same the poundmaster shall give a receipt for each dog, carefully describing the same, stating the hour and date of such delivery.

SECTION 9. No such dog shall be released from the pound unless the owner or person entitled to demand the same shall pay to the poundmaster one dollar for a male and two dollars for a female, provided however, that any owner of an impounded dog who shall exhibit a license, showing the licensing of such dog and that he duly provided the same with the collar herein required, shall be entitled to have such dog surrendered to him without payment of a releasing fee. The poundmaster shall keep a careful record of all dogs received by him, with a description thereof, and the disposition of the same. He shall weekly pay into the city treasury all moneys received by him for the impounding, release or sale of dogs, and shall monthly file with the mayor and aldermen a report showing the number and sex of all dogs impounded during the month, the disposition of the same, and containing the treasurer's receipt for all money paid into the treasury.

SECTION 10. All dogs not claimed and released within forty-eight hours after being impounded shall be killed, or if the animal is worthy and valuable the same shall be sold by the poundmaster at the pound by public auction to the highest bidder at the hour of noon next succeeding the said forty-eight hours.

SECTION 11. The poundmaster shall be entitled to receive from the city the following compensation for his services as such officer viz.: For each dog impounded and the care thereof, twenty-five cents; for each dog killed as provided in Sec. 10 hereof, and for burying the same, one dollar; for each dog sold at public auction, agreeably to this ordinance, ten per centum of the amount received for such sales.

SECTION 12. In case any dog shall be kept or harbored contrary to Sec. 5 of this ordinance or shall be found loose or going at large contrary to any of the foregoing provisions, or in case any dog not licensed shall be provided with a collar marked as required in this ordinance, the owner or keeper thereof or the head of the family or keeper of the house or place where such dog is kept or harbored upon conviction thereof shall be fined five dollars.

SECTION 13. All moneys received from taxes on dogs or impounding the same remaining on the first day of March in each year in the treasury of the city (all claims therefrom being first legally satisfied) shall be transferred to the appropriation for the support of schools.

SECTION 14. This ordinance shall take effect on and after the first day of March, 1887.

Bills amounting to $7098.40 were ordered to be paid.

Resignation of George E. Hodgdon as member of the board of instruction, was laid on the table.

Aldermen Conlon, Urch and Billings were appointed a committee to act with the committee appointed by the board of instruction, to enquire into the general condition of the school buildings.

Annual report of the city solicitor was accepted and placed on file.

A message was received from the common council, asking concurrence in bills fixing the compensation of city laborers, and increasing the pay of police officers. The bill in regard to laborers was referred to the committee on bills on their second reading; the other was referred back to the council for correction.

Adjourned to the call of the mayor.

In Common Council, President Crowley in the chair:

Present the full board, with one exception.

Records of the last meeting were read and approved.

Further time was granted the committee, in regard to the bills authorizing the sale of the city farm, and fixing the salary of the city solicitor.

Bills were passed and sent up for concurrence, increasing the pay of city laborers, and of the police.

Adjourned for one week.

G. A. R. INSTALLATION.

Commander Collis, escorted by a delegation of comrades from Storer Post, left this city last evening in barges, their destination Exeter, and their mission the installation of the officers of the Grand Army Post in that borough. Nobody could perform this duty more gracefully than Comrade Collis, and we can well imagine how brightly burned the camp fire.

WRECKS.

The fishing schooner Flying Dart, of this port, Capt. C. O. Johnson, went ashore early Thursday morning, the 6th inst., close to the life-saving station at Rye beach. She had been fishing in the bay, and the weather becoming threatening and very thick, ran for this harbor; and the captain mistaking two lights on or near the beach for the Whale's-back and Fort point lights, she was piled up a short distance from the station.

The Flying Dart was built in Gloucester in 1855, but has since been new topped, and was a good vessel; she registered about forty-seven tons, and was valued at $2400 or thereabouts; there was no insurance on her. Her owners were Capt. Ed. Jameson, Joseph Jameson, James Carter and Mrs. Wm. Niles, a small part being owned in Swampscott, Mass.

One of the owners, who went to Rye on Thursday forenoon, found the vessel well up on the beach about a hundred yards from the life-saving station, and full of water. He thought she might possibly be saved.

On Thursday evening, the steamer James Sampson sighted outside the harbor a schooner flying signals of distress, and proceeding to her, found she was a coal schooner bound to Portland, in a sinking condition from having been on a ledge. The steamer towed her to an anchorage in the lower harbor, and came up town, shortly returning to the schooner. Capt. Duncan reported that efforts would be made to keep the vessel afloat till high tide Friday morning, when she would be laid ashore; in case she should appear likely to sink during the night, she would be beached at once.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." "I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1239 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their peculiar and painful diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the sides and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until she was a mere skeleton. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and relieving the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge and experience that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language, yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of curing and relieving all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Tenements and the Death Rate.

In London apartment houses have afforded great relief, and the fact that thousands of disgraceful tenements have been torn down, that landlords pay more attention to the cleanliness and convenience of their houses; that, notwithstanding the scores of natural drawbacks, the city possesses the smallest death rate of any of the large cities of the world, and that within the past decade there has been a remarkable decrease both in poverty and crime, are significant results, traceable, we believe, largely to the construction of successful apartment houses. The erection of these houses both in London and other parts of Europe has been characterized by a general desire to abstain from all methods which would tend to pauperize tenants and lead them to look upon their homes as a piece of charity.

Even the great Peabody fund, which was given with the primary intention of relieving the condition of the poor, has been construed by the trustees (with the subsequent sanction of the donor) to mean the working poor. Ample proof of the wisdom of this decision is found in the last report of the trustees of the fund, which shows that the original donation of £500,000 now affords home for 18,000 people in over 10,000 rooms; that the annual income is over £30,000, and that new buildings are being yearly erected. —Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

The Fair Sex in Turkey.

Girls arrive at legal majority at 9 years of age, and are frequently married at 10. Children of 12 and 13 are often seen with babies of their own. They are old at 25. The old Turkish women have a hard lot of it. Beyond a respect for age which they contrive to inspire by tooth and nail among other wives younger than they, their lives are not happy. Still, they are provided for, and as long as a man lives he feeds his family, one and all alike.—Brooklyn Magazine.

A Sort of Enoch Arden.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine in the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try some of your invigorator which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your good work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

Catarrh is not a Blood Disease.

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. Italian Effort and German Endeavor.

I wonder if you who are fond of music, and who understand the not very subtle distinction between Italian effort and and German endeavor, not to mention the French flippancies of opera bouffe, have ever thought to any extent of the marked characteristics that distinguish singers of these differing lines of music. We have had here, and of course you have had the same there, many scores of first class Italian artists. The men and women alike run to fat, with the exception of Le Grange, who was tall and stately, and preserved the elegance of her figure far into later life. I recollect no distinguished woman who was not given to adiposity. It was the same way with the male singers.

The Italian is the language of love, the rotundity of Italian phraseology seems to serve as rounded wheels on which the words of amorousness can best be carried from lip to heart. Italian singers hereabouts frequent always maccaroni furnishing restaurants, where oily dishes have the call, where morality is not up to par. Their scraps, social and personal, are matters of record, and the peculiarity of their domesticity has ever been an open secret. The light and airy audience of opera bouffe singers we all understand. It has neither the voluptuous self-indulgence of the Italians nor the solid scientific self-denial of the Germans. It is, as matter of fact, unsubstantial, insincere, without solid basis of any sort or kind. The men as a rule are dancing jacks, oily-haired, with upturned mustaches, pointed beards, dandified costumes, a sort of a-dog-under-the-arm strut, which counts for nothing.

Now, the Germans are a big class of people wherever you find them, and it is their credit that German artists, as a rule, are a fair index of the German people. They are so solid even as to be stolid. Almost invariably they are people, men and women alike, of heroic build, over-large, with over-loud voices, with big ox-like faces, lion-like countenances, and always, especially in their work, panoplied as it were in sincerity and in truthfulness, in an earnest endeavor to convey some thought. This is particularly the case with singers who interpret Wagner's music, where every singer has attending him a significant and characteristic strain, where each one typifies some marked development of human or supernal nature. I have been particularly struck by that this year.—Joe Howard in Boston Globe.

The Necktie Charm.

If there is one thing more than another that a "dressy" belle adores it is a hobby. Something new in this line is invented every little while by some fair sister, for hobbies grow stale and uninteresting in a short time. The latest out is the collection of the small neckties which gentlemen now wear, and are used by the dear creatures who beg them in a most moral and sentimental manner. A small cord is stretched from post to post across the head and shoulder of the young lady's bed, to which the ties are fastened. A tie, when presented by, or begged of, a gentleman, must be accompanied by a miniature card, bearing his name or monogram, under which the lady writes the prettiest compliment the giver has ever paid her. The ties are arranged artistically, with regard to color, and the belles of fashion vie with each other in endeavoring to be the first to have her couch fully decked. Each night a tie is taken from the line and placed under the pillow to insure pleasant dreams. If at the end of two months after a girl has completed the task of the decoration she be not engaged to marry, the ties are put into a black bag, tied with a black ribbon, and hung in an obscure corner. She must then begin over again, in hopes that her luck will turn. After marriage a silk quilt must be made, and the ties are fastened in clusters here and there all over the top of it. This will in all probability remain a thing of beauty and adornment until after the first quarrel, when the sight of the ties of his wife's former admirers excites the young husband to greater anger, and he yanks them off, one by one, and throws them into the fire.—Cleveland News.

Happiness on Sixty Kreutzers a Week.

The Neue Freie Press gives an interesting and instructive account of the speeches made and the arguments used at the vegetarian congress recently held in Vienna.

One advocate of the vegetable diet told a story which is a gem in its way. It narrated the experiences of two lovers in humble circumstances who were long restrained from perpetrating matrimony by fear of the cost of housekeeping. Finally the vegetarian idea struck them, and they ventured to become one. In the morning they took bread soup, at noon vegetables, at night potatoes, with occasional indulgence in "health coffee," made of burnt corn and maize. Their expenses, in fact, did not exceed sixty kreutzers a week, and their domestic enjoyment was without bounds.

The superficial may sneer at a story like this, but the wise will easily understand its moral and wonder anew at the fewness and simplicity of the elements really necessary to human happiness.—New York Herald.

Valuable Microscopic Discovery.

A valuable microscopical discovery has been made by D. W. Smith, a Syracuse, N. Y., amateur. Mr. Smith devoted months to the effort of producing a light for the illumination of the microscope which should possess sufficient intensity for the resolution of the finer tests with lenses of moderate powers, and at last succeeded. Before a meeting of the Syracuse Microscopical society he demonstrated that he could, by using a lime light, resolve clearly the lines on certain test diatoms with an object which would not show them at all with any other light, no matter how manipulated.—Chicago Times.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured. E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

SCALPS, Pimples, Skin Blemishes, and Baby Humors, cured by CUTICURA SOAP.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful experiments.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting are affected, as to be painful, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distress-ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathesome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1. POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON.

After Diphtheria.

Diphtheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatest medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great persistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Wood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system.

John Knox and James Brooks were probably fatally injured while coasting at Concord, on the evening of the 5th inst.

Washington

Drew his last breath at the last hour of the last day of the last week of the last month of the last year of the last century. He died Saturday night, at 12 o'clock, Dec. 31st, 1799. Aged people need a pure alcoholic stimulant to maintain vitality, and none equals the G. O. Taylor Bourbon and Rye Whiskey, bottled by C. H. Graves & Sons, Boston, and sold by respectable grocers and druggists everywhere.

For sale by the bottle or case by John Laighton.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1887.

☞ Copies of the GAZETTE and of the DAILY CHRONICLE can be had of Moses Brothers, at their Newspaper Store in Congress Block.

A Democratic Remedy.

Mr. S. S. Cox desires to fill Mr. Hewitt's place on the committee of ways and means. He is reported as intending to make an aggressive action toward a reduction of the revenue at this session.

Mr. Cox accomplished somewhat in that direction when he succeeded in obtaining back pay for the time there was a vacancy in the office of representative to Congress to which he was subsequently chosen, and at the same time drew his salary as minister to Turkey. But these are the days of reform, if we may credit administration journals.

Farming in Merrie England.

For several years past, at intervals, have come reports of refusals by the Scotch crofters, or small tenant farmers, to pay the rentals of their holdings, and of their hopeless defiance of the law, and the wide-spread destitution and distress prevailing among them, consequent on the relentless oppression and heartless exactions of their landlords. At length a parliamentary commission was appointed to investigate the matter; and the report of this commission, just made public, betrays the existence of a system of rack-rents in the Highlands of Scotland, and the islands adjacent to it, as deplorable as any known in Ireland. The decision of the commissioners provides for a reduction of rent ranging from fifteen to fifty per cent, and averaging thirty-five per cent. And this decision, it should not be forgotten, is not made by a committee of crofters, but by a commission whose members all belong to the so-called upper classes.

Referring to this matter a London paper remarks: "The English tenant farmers are, it is needless to say, looking on with great interest while their Irish and Scoten brethren are being relieved from a quarter to a third of their crushing burdens, and it cannot be doubted that the next imperative demand for redress will come from England, where in some sections the rack-rent system is carried to almost as great an extent as in the localities mentioned."

The Ocean Yacht Race.

The New York World says: "There will be at last four, and passibly six, schooners entered for the proposed yacht race from Sandy Hook to Cowes. This includes only the keel schooners. It was said yesterday at the New York yacht club that it was not probable that there would be any objection on the part of the owners of the keel schooners to the entry of centre-board vessels if any desired to enter, but Mr. Brush's schooner being a keel boat, and he deeming keel vessels best fitted for ocean work, naturally invites entries from that class only. Should the Montauk or Vesta, or any of the other large centre-board crafts, desire to join in the proposed sweepstakes, they will, it is said, be cordially welcomed. An effort is to be made to get up a sloop race in connection with the proposed schooner race, but for a separate prize. All, however, are to start together. The owner of the Atlantic, whose name has not yet transpired, is, it is reported, willing to start her in such a contest provided two other entries can be obtained, and a wealthy member of the New York yacht club is reported as saying that if the Atlantic and Puritan would go in for such a race, he would buy the Priscilla and enter her. It is felt very desirable in the event of the reported 1000 guinea race on the other side being definitely arranged, that some one or more of the American single-sticked vessels should be there to take part in it against the British cutters.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner reported as towed into the lower harbor in distress on Thursday evening was the three-master John F. Merrow, bound from New York to Portland with a cargo of 1140 tons of coal. During the thick weather of Thursday forenoon the captain found his vessel in shoal water, and anchored. After bringing her up, the lead showed so little water that it was evident the vessel could not remain there, and the anchor was hove short, when a very heavy sea lifted the vessel, breaking out the anchor, and then letting the vessel down on the bottom with a heavy thump. Fortunately she struck but once, and canted the right way as she fell off the wind, the sails soon taking her into deep water. As nearly as can be made out she struck on the Triangles off York. Along in the afternoon she arrived off this harbor, and her signals being seen, was towed in. A gang of men to pump went aboard from Newcastle, and succeeded in keeping her afloat. She remained in the lower harbor through Friday and Friday night, awaiting instructions from the owners, the pumps being kept at work all the time.

A letter was received in this city Friday from Capt. Call, master of the schooner Lizzie J. Call, written from Delaware breaker. Capt. Call reported leaving Hampton roads in company with eighty other vessels, only two of which reached the breakwater ahead of him, some of the others coming in more than twenty-four hours later.

Collector Warren of Cape Vincent, New York, has seized the Canadian tug Thistle, of Collingwood, Ont., for towing American boats in American waters. The offence committed was the towing of lighters to the wrecked schooner Comanche, where they were loaded with corn, and then towing them back to Sackett's Harbor. The fine imposed amounts to $90, being fifty cents per ton on the vessel's tonnage.

The ice for the hotel Wentworth has been cut from the pond at the junction of Sagamore and Wentworth roads; it is about thirteen inches thick, and of very good quality.

Messrs. Fred W. Moses, John E. Milton and George W. Fernald have been drawn as jurors from ward one to serve at the January term of the supreme court at Exeter.

The comrades of Storer Post who escorted Commander Collis to Exeter, Thursday evening, on the occasion of the installation of the officers of Moses N. Collins Post, G. A. R., report a delightful time and the most hospitable treatment.

We were honored on Friday with a brief call from Senior Vice Commander O. H. Wyatt, of the New Hampshire Department, G. A. R. Comrade Wyatt is a candiate for department commander, and will probably be elected to that honorable position.

A private party had a social assembly in Mechanics' hall on Friday evening.

The time for holding the Masonic ball has been set for Monday evening, Feb. 21st.

Capt. Ira W. Whidden, of the schooner Chilion, who is the youngest master sailing a vessel in the brick fleet out of this port, is credited by his brother captains with being possessed of enterprise and shrewdness in a marked degree. In proof they cite his judicious action in securing, during the winter season while his vessel is hauled up in consequence of the closing of the upper Piscataqua by ice, a first-class mate to accompany, aid and cheer him on the voyage of life. The contract between the popular young captain and his charming mate, who was carefully selected by him from a large number eligible for the position, was sanctioned and attested by Rev. Mr. Thompson of Newington, after he had received satisfactory answers to questions addressed by him to both the contracting parties, on the evening of the 5th inst. at the house of Mr. Benjamin Pearson, father of Miss Nellie M. Pearson, now Mrs. Whidden.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 11th, the officers elect of Storer Relief Corps will be installed at their hall on Daniel street, by Mrs. A. P. Kent. The exercises will be private.

The Board of Instruction have secured the services of Mr. Boyd, musical instructor in Concord, to teach music in the schools of this city, commencing Thursday, Jan. 13th. Mr. Boyd will devote Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week to this work. This is a progressive step by the Board of Instruction, and will receive the hearty commendation of the public.

Some astonishment is expressed because Thomas Johnson of Springfield, Ill., ate one quail each day for thirty consecutive days, and enjoyed them all. There is a man in this city who has eaten a potato every day for more than sixty years, and is not tired of them yet.

A young man from Portsmouth with one of Stoddard's teams came to this city last night, took his girl to ride, and when about to leave her at her home again he drove up against a post and overturned the sleigh, breaking it badly, but neither person was injured. After the accident he exchanged his broken sleigh with a stable keeper here, and drove back to Portsmouth.—Dover Democrat, 6th.

During the year just ended the Boston & Maine railroad delivered in Boston 5,496,045 passengers, against 5,245,363 in 1885. It brought away from Boston 5,511,934 passengers, against 5,239,474 in 1885.

The full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court has overruled the defendant's exceptions in the case of Isaac Krulenitz vs. the Eastern Railroad Co. Krulenitz purchased a ticket from Lawrence to Salem and return, and had used the one going to Salem, and tried to use the one that was good only from Salem to Lawrence, the same as the first. The conductor refused to accept it, and instead of arresting him himself, had him arrested by an officer at Salem. Krulenitz brought suit against the railroad for false arrest, and obtained judgment against the road. The defendant appealed with the above result, and Krulenitz is entitled to his judgment. The court held that the police officer had no right to arrest him without a warrant, and that it belonged to the conductor to arrest Krulenitz.

The tax in Maine on the Boston & Maine railroad for 1885 was $41,074.19; for 1886, $46,444.85. The Portland, Saco & Portsmouth road is included in the Boston & Maine, and no separate tax assessed.

On Tuesday afternoon, the 5th inst., a large number of prominent democrats met at the Saco house, Saco, and organized the Democratic Club of York county by the choice of the following officers: President, George F. Clifford of Cornish; vice-president, Ira C. Doe of Saco; secretary, Edgar A. Hubbard of Biddeford; treasurer, S. S. Mitchell of Saco; executive committee, J. B. Donovan of Alfred, J. G. Shaw of Biddeford, Stephen Perkins of Kennebunk, Charles H. West of Wells, James S. Meserve of Buxton. The executive committee were empowered to prepare a constitution and by-laws to be reported for adoption at an adjourned meeting in Bradford, Tuesday, Jan. 18th. On motion of John Hanscom of Biddeford, resolutions complimentary to the democratic county committee of York county were unanimously adopted.

The capacity of Maine thermometers was submitted to a pretty severe test during the early part of this week. On Monday night Houlton's weather gauge indicated 40 degrees below zero; Milo's, 42; Caribou's, 44; Fort Fairfield's, 45; while Presque Isle beat the record by getting down to 46 below.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

Quaker Testimony.

MRS. A. M. Dauphin of 1329 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has it on a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes us that a friend of hers lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the life line and the injuries received resulted in a tumor in her which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means place before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Practical Hints Concerning Health.

"In our city schools all the training is mental training, and not physical. The courses of study are so elaborate that a mere superficial knowledge is gained, while the brain is simply overloaded, and instead of being strengthened it is weakened. Perhaps some one will say, 'Why, the children are all taught in calisthenics.' Did you ever see children go through their calisthenic exercises? They make me think of an old teacher of mine who one day set us boys at work translating English into Greek. I worked pretty steadily until the teacher came over to where I was sitting and scanned my work. 'That's right Blaikie,' said he; 'If you can't do the real thing, why go through the motions.' So it is with the children. They go through the motions, but don't get the real good out of the exercise. When they are older and get into business they are hollow-chested, or pale, or weak lunged. How can you expect such men to amount to anything? Why is it that the elder Vanderbilt, or Cyrus Field, or Russell Sage, or Jay Gould have succeeded as they have? It was because they worked hard physically in their youth. Perhaps the business man will say 'I have no time to exercise now,' but there he is mistaken. If he will watch himself he will find that he can get half an hour a day to put into a gymnasium."—William Blaikie's Lecture.

Grounds for Divorce in China.

The Chinese have a firm belief in marriages being made in heaven. A certain deity, whom they call "The Old Man in the Moon," links with a silken cord, they say, all predestined couples. Early marriage is earnestly inculcated. One of their maxims states that there are three cardinal sins, and that to die without offspring is the chief. As in other countries, spring is the time when young people's minds turn to thoughts of love, and most marriages are celebrated in February, when the peach tree blossoms appear. Among the marriage presents are live geese, which are supposed to be emblematical of the concord and happiness of the marriage state. A Chinaman may divorce his wife for seven different reasons, and in the list are ill-temper and a talkative disposition. The birth of a son is the occasion of much rejoicing, for without sons a man lives without honor and dies unhappy, with no one to worship at his grave and none to continue the family line.—Nineteenth Century.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to exhaust your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

"The Golden Argosy" for January 15th contains the opening chapters of a new serial by Oliver Optic, the famous writer for young people. Serials by Horatio Alger, Jr., Edward S. Ellis, Frank H. Converse and Captain Ashley are also running in this popular periodical, as well as a second by Oliver Optic. Sketches of George W. Childs, "M. Quad," and Colonel Taylor, of the Boston Globe, have appeared during the month, as well as many short stories and other matter of general interest. The illustrations are always of a very high class, but in the present number they are unusually attractive. Altogether there is no more finely gotten up paper than "The Golden Argosy," which is published by Frank A. Munsey, at No. 81 Warren street, New York.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

Animals' Love of Lavender.

A short cut to the heart of any of the larger felidæ is to be found in lavender water, a fact which I discovered by accident. The late Mrs. Lee, whose leopard "Sal" was so interesting an inmate of her household, trained the animal almost wholly by taking advantage of its love for this perfume. So, wanting to be on good terms with the leopard "Old Man," I took some lavender water with me. Before giving it to the leopard I thought I would try the effect on "Bessy," a female tigress, who has for some time been very gracious in her conduct toward me. I poured a few drops of the perfume on a small piece of brown paper and held it to her. She first gave a prolonged sniff and then scraped the paper out of my hand and laid it on the floor of the cage. First, she sniffed at it repeatedly, raising her nose high in the air after every sniff. Then she tore it into little pieces, which she strewed over the floor. Then she rolled over and over on the perfumed fragments, giving a series of muffled yelps of delight, and then began leaping all over the cage, springing up until her head struck against the roof, turning over in the air, and coming down on the boarded floor with a mighty thump, as might be expected from an animal weighing more than 300 pounds.

Next, I tried the effect on the leopard "Old Man" who occupied the next cage, and found that he was even more powerfully affected than the tigress, slobbering over the perfume until the floor of the cage was quite wet, and rolling over and over, exactly as his neighbor had done. Meantime "Empress," who occupied a cage on the opposite side of the building had scented the lavender water from a distance, and was loudly expressing her opinion that she had been shamefully neglected. So I gave her a liberal dose of the perfume, and she, being only a young thing, and unaccustomed to self control, straightway proceeded to go mad over it.—Rev. J. G. Woods.

Charity as an Atonement.

Probably none but the good men and women that devote themselves honestly to the poor know the base and hypocritical uses to which "charity" is put. The somber cloak is used to cover a vast multitude of gay weaknesses, follies and sins, the wearer thinking no one to be the wiser. Women of no position at all seek to gain friends in circles where they would otherwise never be admitted. Women of little position seek to improve it. Women who have everything use charity to crown it all! Once in a while, I fancy, it is a matter of conscience—conscience of the sort that possesses highwaymen to become the Lords Bountiful of a famine stricken community. A woman is extravagant, she is envious, she is overbearing, she is continually striving to outdo her neighbors, and—she realizes the fact. In atonement she gives so many hours a week to such and such a good object. Her mind is made easy. Never mind that the very goods she donates are unpaid for; never mind anything of that sort. Does she not pity and sympathize with the poor and the unfortunate? Is she not a charitable woman? Most certainly. Then why should she not be content?—New York Graphic.

Ancient Egyptian Perfumes.

Two ancient Egyptian perfumes have been reconstituted through the researches of a French professor at Lyons, who has devoted himself to studying the Egyptian sculpture and the plants of the Nile valley. By hunting through the papyrus texts and the inscriptions on the walls of the temple lavatories he has found the recipes for the manufacture of "tasi" and "kyphi." The former was a temple perfume, used to anoint the statue of the Egyptian Venus. "Kyphi" was more important, and besides being used at home for the rites of Isis and Serapis, was imported into Greece and Rome after the conquest of Egypt. It then became the favorite perfume among the luxurious Greeks and Romans, who were anointed with "kyphi" after the bath, and were sprinkled with the essence during the grand banquets, while sometimes it was used to perfume the wine.—Chicago Herald.

England's Picturesque Scenery.

English scenery, already famous, has not been overpraised. A day's ride through England in almost any direction will reveal some of the most beautiful and picturesque scenery in the world. The eye is never wearied of reaching out over the round hills and exquisite valleys and the charming alternation of harvest fields, of grounds plowed as if a ruler had drawn the lines for straightness, the hedges for fences, the absence of barns and the substitution of ricks of grain or of hay, beautifully formed, clustered together, furnish a succession of delights. In Wales the scenery is bolder, but not less beautiful. All the world knows of the rugged beauty of Scotland.—Henry Ward Beecher in New York World.

A Precious Oil.

"Here is a little vial, the contents of which are worth more than its weight in gold. It has the trade name of melon oil because it has the fragrance of the muskmelon. This oil is a secretion in the nose of the pilot whale. No other oil has so low a congealing point as melon oil. It remains liquid with the thermometer at zero. There is absolutely no corrosiveness in it and for that reason it is used as a lubricant for the most delicate mechanism. It is about as rare as ambergris, that strange secretion of the whale."—New York Sun Interview.

The Ladder of Fame.

A Family Quarrel.

The Star, the administration organ in New York city, takes Mr. Samuel J. Randall to do for his persistent hostility to all appropriations for our needed coast defences. The Star in its review of the situation says:

Congress, and Congress alone, is responsible—not indeed every man who belongs to that body, for an enlightened and progressive few have from time to time sought to remedy the weak and defenceless condition of the country, but all in vain. But the leaders of the democratic party in the lower branch of Congress are the responsible parties. We mean Mr. Speaker Carlisle. We mean Mr. William R. Morrison. We mean especially Mr. William S. Holman, and, above and beyond all, because his position in Congress gave him the power to remedy this great evil, we mean Mr. Samuel J. Randall. He it is who has baffled every effort, thwarted every plan, fought every measure, that looked to fortifying our defenceless seaboard. Without any plan or idea of his own, he has fought the ideas of everybody else. Densely ignorant of the whole question of defences, he has refused to receive light and instruction from any quarter, and has blindly fought every suggestion for armament, no matter how patriotically urged or wisely conceived.

The Star shows how Randall has appeared to accede to the popular demands by allowing Holman, whom he controls, to permit boards of investigation to be raised to consider the subject. The showing up of Randall could not have been accomplished so heartily by any republican paper, and it is all the more courageous in the Star because it is a rebuke of that narrowness which has so long characterized the leaders of the democracy whenever measures of a public nature have come before Congress, only to be smothered by the magnate who rules his satellites with a rod of Pennsylvania iron.

A Precedent.

The contest in Indiana over the election of a United States senator to fill the vacancy which will be caused by the ending of Senator Harrison's term on the 4th of March, excites a good deal of interest in political circles at Washington; and it has been suggested that if the democrats cannot elect a senator they might combine to prevent an election, with the view of procuring the senator by the appointment of the governor, who is a democrat.

A precedent in a case of appointment by the governor when the legislature of a state has neglected its duty, was established by the senate in the case of Senator S. S. Phelps of Vermont. He was appointed to the thirty-second Congress to fill a vacancy caused by the death of William Upham. Senator Phelps took his seat Jan. 19th, 1853, and in October of that year the Vermont legislature met, but adjourned in December without electing a senator. Mr. Phelps sat through that Congress, and through a special session of the senate that was convened on March 4th ensuing. In the next December he presented himself as a senator of Vermont for the thirty-third Congress, and the question of his title under appointment of the governor, the legislature having failed to elect, was referred to the judiciary committee. Two reports were submitted by the committee, the majority declaring that Mr. Phelps was entitled to his seat; the minority that he was not. The majority report was rejected, and the senate declared that Mr. Phelps was not entitled to a seat. The senate then consisted of thirty-eight democrats, twenty-two whigs and two free-soilers.

Following this precedent, the senate would reject a senator appointed by the governor of Indiana to fill a vacancy purposely caused by the legislature.

AROUND HOME.

In the superior court at Boston, law term, Jan. 7th, a decision was rendered in the case Lillian E. Whitney vs. the Pullman Palace Car company. The case, in which judgement was given the defendant, was an action to recover $200 which was stolen from the defendant's car at Portsmouth as the plaintiff was on a journey to the White mountains, over the Eastern railroad. It appeared that when the car reached Portsmouth she left the money in a bag on the window sill of the car, and went out to get dinner. On her return she found her money gone, and brought a suit for its loss. The case went to the full court on a report, and the court decides that the plaintiff was not in the exercise of due care.

Mr. Charles S. Drowne, purchaser of the wrecked schooner Flying Dart, went to Rye beach Saturday morning with a gang of men to strip the vessel, and took along a large lot of empty casks to be used in an endeavor to float her. The sails, rigging and ballast were removed to lighten her, but she had not been gotten off up to four o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Newmarket did very well for temperature one morning last week, the thermometers about the town indicating from eight to seventeen degrees below zero, according to location, at sunrise.

W. J. Fraser, Esq., superintendent of the Direct United States Cable Co.'s station at Rye beach, will sail on the 15th inst. from New York for England, to join his family, who went across the Atlantic several months ago.

The Exeter Machine Works will furnish a 75-horse power engine and two 60-horse power boilers for the new factory of the Portsmouth Shoe Co.

The Concord Monitor's Washington correspondent is authority for stating that Col. Aaron Young is expected to visit Washington during the winter. The colonel goes out in the interest of the New Hampshire Agricultural society, to see that the farmers of the Granite State have their share of seeds sent in season for the spring campaign.

Three very fine old paintings owned by Col. Charles A. Sinclair were hung upon the walls of the parlors at the Rockingham house on New Year's day.

The story about a well-off farmer of Newington having recently placed a $500 piano in his parlor, while the front entry of his house is not plastered and the front doorstep is an inverted dry goods box, which originated in the Penny Post, found its way into the columns of a New York paper credited to the Monitor.

Rockingham Lodge of Good Templars had a corn-party in Good Templar's hall, Pleasant street, Friday evening of last week, which was largely attended, not only by members of the order but by others. During the evening Mr. Francis E. Hall was presented with a grand lodge regalia, as a mark of the appreciation in which his efforts for the good of the order are held by the lodge.

"Hon. Marcellus Eldredge, Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H.," was reported by the Boston papers of Saturday as among the dazzling throng enjoying the brilliant weather and fine sleighing on Brighton road, Friday.

A large delegation from Rockingham lodge, I. O. G. T., will visit the Dover lodge this evening.

GEN. LOGAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

Is a great shock to the nation. Few new that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sudden change from health and vigor to cold and silent death. For the past twenty-five years there has been no man more constantly before the public than General John A. Logan. Through all his whole career he has been noted for his fearlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of victims to sudden and acute rheumatism. Probably no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangerous, and there is certainly none which so completely baffles medical skill.

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for rheumatism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athlophoros. In thousands of cases Athlophoros has proved a quick and certain cure for these diseases. In connection with Athlophoros Pills it has never yet failed to speedily effect a cure. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.

Rheumatism, even though in a very mild form, is extremely dangerous, for it is liable at any moment to go the heart and cause instant death. Why trifle with a disease so fatal when a certain cure can be obtained of any druggist?

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

The New York Tribune a year ago began the publication of a series of war stories, and promised prizes of $200 and $100 for the first and second best stories. Mr. Edmund C. Stedman at the request of the Tribune consented to read twenty-seven stories submitted, for the purpose of indicating to the publishers of the Tribune the prize winners. The first prize, Mr. Stedman adjudges, should be awarded to E. W. Gurley of North Carolina for "The Story of Our Mess," published last March; the second to be awarded to C. W. Eccb of Sidney Plains, N. Y., who wrote "The Three Bummers," a capital sketch published in January of last year. We agree with the learned critic "that 'The Three Bummers' was one of the cleverest short stories recently published." It was as good as a play throughout.

George L. Walsh, an employe of the Boston & Maine railroad, in shackling cars in the yard at Portland, Me., Saturday, slipped and fell on the track. The wheels passed over one leg and arm, killing him. He was about thirty years of age, and leaves a family.

The 23d annual ball of the Granite fire engine company, of Newmarket, will be given in the town hall at Newmarket on Friday evening, the 14th inst.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Snow, northerly to easterly winds, slowly rising temperature, falling barometer.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 11 degrees above zero.

Snowing.

WINTER WEATHER.

Saturday was a "ball day" at the navy yard, the thermometer indicating zero or lower; and not only were the out-of-doors men laid off for the day, but the hands in the steam engineering department, boat shop, etc., were granted a day's vacation—the low state of the finances probably having as much to do with the shut-down as the low state of the mercury. The temperature in this city at sunrise varied from zero, in the centre of the town, to six and eight below on Christian Shore, and ten below at the Eldredge brewery. Saturday night was colder than Friday night, and on Sunday morning the thermometers generally reported the temperature about four degrees lower than on Saturday morning. Notwithstanding the story told by the mercury there was little discomfort in being out of doors, owing to the absence of wind. A large number of country teams of all kinds were in the city on Saturday, the sleighing being very near perfection; and apparently about all the pleasure turnouts in the city were on the streets during the day.

AN INVASION OF A PASTOR'S HOUSE.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 9th, the members of the Universalist society of this city assembled at the residence of their pastor, the Rev. L. H. Fisher, in force, and proceeded to make themselves quietly and thoroughly at home. The reverend gentleman although considerably surprised by the invasion, was not at all dismayed, but performed the duties of host so suddenly thrust upon him easily and gracefully. The occasion was in honor of Mr. Fisher's birthday, which event falling at this time on Sunday, it was deemed proper to celebrate the event previously.

After the company had assembled, two little misses, members of the Sunday school, undertook the task of explaining to their beloved minister the reason of this gathering of so many friends, and in pleasant verse they extended hearty congratulations, cheering and encouraging words, and presented him with a substantial offering, the gift of members of the parish. The scene was very impressive, as, standing in front of the pastor, the two children recited in clear, bird-like tones, the kind and appreciative sentiments which had been prepared. Mr. Fisher responded feelingly and appropriately. The evening was further spent in quiet converse and interchange of good wishes, and after partaking of the refreshments which the thoughtfulness of the invaders had provided, the highly pleased but a little bewildered pastor was left to prepare himself for his Sunday duties.

FLIGHT OF PIGEONS.

A low resort on Bow street, called the "Pigeon coop," occupied by a man and three women, said to be recent arrivals from Gloucester, Mass., was raided by the police on Friday night, and the inmates taken to the lockup. As the object of the movement was to clean out the "coop," and not to get more occupants for the jail or county house of correction, both of which are already overpopulated, the arrested parties were not brought to trial, as they promised to clear out of town as quick as possible if let off.

The rigid enforcement of the liquor law in Gloucester, which is being done more effectually than ever under the new administration, has driven many of the objectionable characters out of that city, and several detachments of them are reported to have located here within a recent period. This is a little too much for our police, who have all they care to attend to in looking after the local industries of that class, so the new-comers are remorselessly hustled over the boundary line the first time they are caught looking crosswise.

THE AIM OF UNIVERSALISM.

The sermon yesterday in the Pleasant street church was upon "Universalism and other Christian religions." Text, Luke 12:51, "Think ye that I am come to bring peace in the earth? I tell you nay, but rather division." Or as Matthew says, "Not peace but a sword." I Cor. 3:6, l. c., "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life." All great differences of opinion in the Christian world arise from an endeavor to classify the utterances of a purely moral and religious being, and reduce them to an ethical system, and to deduce from them an intellectual statement of man's destiny.

There are minor differences, such as arise from confounding the various manifestations of the Supreme Spiritual Life, with that Life itself, and in worshipping signs instead of the thing signified. Herein lie the "division," the "sword," the "letter that killeth."

In these two above statements we have the formulated cause of the horror, the martyrdom, the bloody persecutions, the tyranny over thought, that have attended the rise of Christianity.

He who brought peace on earth, brought it by bringing a divine spiritual motive to man. He brought no system of morals or theology. In trying to span the chasm between flesh and spirit, there is the divine spirit on God's side, seeking human expression on man's side, and just here we have tribulation; for the expression of a spiritual ideal to man, will, because of man's limitations on every moral and spiritual point, be met, on some points, with his contradiction. So, to us, Christ often contradicts himself, and contradicts also the fondest practice of the closest and most orthodox adherent to the plenary inspiration of certain texts, who, seeing the letter only, cannot see the spirit of Christ's "impossible commands." The perfect organic unity of Christian sects, when found, will be found in the spirit or mind of Christ himself. In that unity is to be found the unity of man's destiny. There, the unity of God is manifested in the perfection of man. There, is the expressed value of all symbols. That is the Spirit that giveth Life. To find this is the aim of Universalism.

THE TITLE TO APPLEDORE.

Several years ago Jeremiah Mason of Limerick, Me., and others, bought of the state of Maine for a small sum—either $50 or $150, we forget which—all the state's possible right and title to Appledore island, and the other islands of the Shoals situated within the boundaries of Maine, namely, Cedar, Smuttynose and Duck islands; Star and Lunging islands being in New Hampshire. The Laighton Bros. were so confident in the perfection of their title, which reached back to the first settlement of the islands, that they felt very little uneasiness as to their being dispossessed by this new claim to their property; and Mr. Mason and his partners in the purchase, on examination, came to the same conclusion, and have recently sold to the Laighton Bros. the state of Maine's quitclaim for what it cost them. This gives to the Messrs. Laighton an undisputed and apparently indisputable title, not only to Appledore and Smuttynose islands, which they owned before, but to Duck island as well, the latter, so far as we are aware, never having been formally claimed by anybody as private property, although it has been occupied at different times by parties of lobster catchers and others, and had buildings erected upon it. The best landing place on the Isles of Shoals is said by the fishermen to be at Duck island.

The entertainment given by the Congregational society of Rye on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week, the performances being wholly by local talent, netted $200. A number of teams went to Rye from this city on Wednesday evening, conveying about thirty persons to the entertainment.

The Great Eastern Tea store, on Market square, was not open Saturday evening, and an assignment was reported.

The big gas lantern in the middle of the Parade, which the Gaslight Co. has generously supplied with gas free of expense to the city ever since it was erected, is dark now o' nights, the gas not having been lighted since Jan. 1st. This is all very well as long as the electric light on the front of the city building is showing effectively, but that is a very intermittent affair, so far. The old gas light, though not so brilliant, was reliable, which certainly cannot be said of the new electric light.

Mr. E. H. Winchester of this city reached San Francisco on Saturday morning, the 8th inst.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

Biscuits for Dogs.

Twenty years ago the business of making dog biscuit was represented by a small shop in Holborn, nearly opposite Chancery lane, and a weekly sale of a couple of tons. Now there is a vast factory near London bridge and another in New York, between which is a daily output and sale of from thirty to forty tons. This dog food is made of wheaten flour (chiefly that known as middlings), oatmeal, dates, beetroot and prairie meat. Dates were the first article of a vegetable or fruity nature introduced, and have had the anti scorbutic effect so desirable in the feeding of dogs. For many years they only were employed, and at that time it was advised that fresh vegetables should be given twice a week, additional to the biscuits.

Searching for something that would obviate the need for this addition, it was discovered that the only vegetable which did not lose its distinguishing properties under the great heat to which the cakes are subjected in baking is beetroot, and as it has all the desirable elements; for some years all the biscuits sent out have contained beetroot. The last ingredient is prairie meat, which is not, as many suppose, tallow greaves or butchers' refuse. It is meat from mid and South America. From it all fat has been removed, but the most valuable gristle and bones remain to be ground up, and is not only of the highest quality from a feeding point of view, but perfectly sweet and good. Analysis has shown that it is much more nutritious than the beef usually sold in our butchers' shops, for it contains only 5 per cent. of water. —London News.

Daniel Webster's Prophecy.

It is only about forty-five years since Daniel Webster spoke in the senate with the loftiest contempt of the "worthless country west of the Missouri—that region of savages and wild beasts, of deserts of shifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie dogs." It could never be of use! In the same speech he described our magnificent western coast as "rock-bound, cheerless, uninviting, and not a harbor on it!" At that time California was still a Mexican province.—Youth's Companion.

In Cuba soap is made of plaintain; sometimes dried and ground to a powder, and sometimes used fresh and green for a piece.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become reigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every point and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilages of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; PRICE $1.

Dr. Ham, March 2, 1885.
Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine in the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings: He felt tired instead of vigorous; nervous instead of strong. His appetite became poor and his sleep broken. He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and then the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the Captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it whenever they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife, (whom the best physicians of New York said was dying of tumor,) to perfect health, I swear by it."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is prepared in a perfectly agreeable form, at the same time increasing the remedial Potency of both of these specifics. It is acknowledged by leading physicians to be marvellous in its curative powers in consumption, scrofula, chronic coughs and wasting diseases. Take no other.

Henry Morris, Jr., in sole charge of the New York Textile Filtering Co.'s factory and business at Woodridge, N. J., disappeared a week ago. The company's safe was finally broken open, and not a thing was found, the books and every trace of the concern's business having been destroyed. Protested checks and dishonored notes amounting to $70,000 have come in, and it is known that Morris mortgaged his father's handsome place at Woodbridge by forging the father's name to the deed.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of pur fying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

Two freight trains collided on the Washington & Northern railroad, near Lenope station, Pa., Jan. 9th, killing two men and fatally wounding two others.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

Virtue in Brandreth's Pills.

There is more virtue in one Brandreth Pill than in a bottle of the best sarsaparilla. The solid extract of sarsaparilla contained in Brandreth's Pills in combination with other vegetable extracts, makes them the strongest blood purifier known. One or two at night for a week will remove all pimples and eruptions of the skin, and make the complexion fair as an infant.

Four of nine young men condemned to death recently at Sydney, New South Wales, for an outrageous assault upon a servent girl, were hanged there on the 6th inst. Two others, who were to have been executed the same day, were reprieved; and the sentences of three others had previously been committed to imprisonment for life.

How often do we hear of the sudden and fatal termination of a case of croup, when a young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ayer's Almanac for the new year is out. Get one.

Fire in Seth Warren's hardware store at Biddeford, on the night of the 6th inst., damaged the stock to the amount of $4,000; loss covered by insurance. Dr. Warren's block, in which the store is located, was considerably damaged. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Covetousness in Disguise. The wonderful success of James Pyle's Pearline has given rise to a flood of imitations with an "ine" to their names, evidently to have them sound like Pearline. Enterprises of this sort are quite liable to be more selfish than beneficial.

British naval pensioners have been ordered to notify the government of the names of the ships they would prefer to serve upon, or the ports they would prefer to be employed at, in view of their being called into possible active service.

Talk is cheap. Actual results count. Use Hop Porous Plasters for pains, aches and weaknesses.

It is announced that the Vatican has made an arrangement with the prince of Monaco, by which, in the event of an outbreak of war involving Italy, the pope, with his ministers and the prefects of the congregations, will remove their residence to the principality of Monaco, and there transact all papal business until peace shall have been restored, and some kind of a European agreement obtained guaranteeing the independence of the Holy See in its dealing with the Catholic world. A special clause of the compact with the prince pledges the abolition of the gaming tables. It is expected that adequate compensation for the loss of revenue thus involved will be afforded by crowds of visitors to the pope, or by an indemnity to the prince.

Three ladies can keep a secret when two of them are dead; all druggists keep Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The telephone line between Rockland, Me., and the White Head life-saving station, is completed. The cable is 900 feet long, and connects the station with the mainland. This will prove of great benefit to mariners coasting along that dangerous locality.

The Army and Navy Journal says: "The friends of the late Rear Admiral Beaumont, U. S. N., will be interested in knowing that his charming widow is living a quiet but busy life in the venerable burgh of Hagerstown, Md., where three children are being educated immediately under their mother's eyes. Mrs. Beaumont was well known in Washington previous to her marriage, as Fanny King, whose mother was a sister of Mrs. W. Plume Moran, wife of the well known registrar of the navy."

The violation of any of nature's laws brings its warning by the feeling of discomfort. Exposure will induce colds, throat diseases, consumption, etc., all of which give warning by a troublesome cough. Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in time, and remove both the cause and effect of your discomfort.

Pastor Goodell of Providence, R. I., occupied his pulpit on Sunday, and was heartily welcomed by his congregation.

QUESTIONS.

I wonder sometimes, when the world lies still,
Tired out with all earth's turmoil, strife and noise—
I wonder, then, if quite against your will
Your heart remembers those departed joys
Which, if not heavenly were almost divine!
Do such thoughts haunt your pillow?—they do mine.

When the blonde head of the unconscious Day
Lies buried in the soft-dark breast of Night,
I wonder if your wilful fancies stray
Back to that season of supreme delight
When our fair ship skimmed o'er Love's Summer Sea;
Do such vain dreams pursue you?—they do me.

Down thro' the aching silence Fate let fall
Between our souls, does your rebellious heart
Sometimes send forth a wild, impassioned call?
I often think I hear your voice, and start
With sudden rapture. Do you think it true
That souls can hear thro' space, or death?—I do.

New ties, new pleasures, fill my life, and yours,
So far away our past seems, oh, so far!
And yet I think a love like that endures
All things, as thro' earth's changes shines a star;
Sometimes do you feel willing, if you could,
To give up life for that last dream?—I would.

—Ella Wheeler-Wilcox in Frank Leslie's.

THE LAND OF LAKES.

Strange Sights That are to be Seen in Finland—Rough Traveling.

Finland is, in the language of the country, suomesimaa, "the land of lakes," and this is really the truth, as no less than one-third is under water. Much of this is, however, marsh land, though the lakes Saima, Lodogo, Enara, etc., cover some thousands of square miles. The surface of the country is flat, with a chain of low hills about the center, the highest of these being the mountain Asvassa. The coasts are deeply indentured and picturesque, with bold granite cliffs standing clear out against the deep blue sky, and many islands belonging to the Archipelago of Aland dot the surface of its western waters. Inland there are dense forests of pine, fir and birch, which have a strange and enthralling influence on the imagination.

Notwithstanding their usually somber aspect, there are innumerable pleasant glades in the recesses of these woods, where the tall, white stemmed birch and great bowlders, covered with lichens, crop up from the grass and form a pleasant picture; beside this, the lakes have a beauty—solemn and romantic—which can scarcely be found elsewhere. The landscape, too, dotted with numerous windmills, and the church towers, built apart from the places of worship, present strange pictures. From these towers the night watchmen sound their horns or play upon triangles as an alarm of fire. Often in the dead of night a great blaze on the horizon will tell of some forest fire. These are mainly owing to the carelessness of the peasantry, and, combined with the great exportation of timber and its lavish use for firewood and for building purposes, have caused a great rise in its value within the last few years.

Traveling in the country, though cheap, is not always pleasant. Many of the roads are what would be described as "corduroy"—that is, having rough logs laid across, over which one's vehicle bumps and jumps in a manner calculated to make the bones sore for a considerable time after a journey. The velocity with which the natives send the carriage down the hills is also likely to try the nerves of any not to the manner born. Most persons posting through Finland have their own vehicles—wheeled ones for the summer and sledges for the winter—and they change horses at each stage of about fifteen versts (ten English miles). Should you have to trust to the post house for a conveyance you are more likely than not condemned to travel in a cart without springs and a hard seat with no back to it, or an ordinary work sledge. The charge for posting is little enough, being ten Finnish pennies (1d. English) per verst, and the driver is required by law to take you at the rate of one Swedish or seven English miles per hour.—Foreign Letter.

The Toiling Masses of China.

Another thing that is of still greater potency in keeping content among the toiling masses of China is that they are to such a vast extent their own employers. They have among them no vast manufacturing concerns, where hundreds, or even thousands of men, employed in similar work, are all but parts of a gigantic machine, and subject to the same conditions of existence, with perhaps an equal hopelessness of ever attaining any other position than that of subordinate dependency. There are very many thousands of men who earn their living by some sort of manual labor in China, who carry on business on their own account, who inherit their little business from a line of ancestors, and whose personalities are representative of gekerations of contented workers. If individuals have been so fortunate that the demand for their work, by reason of its excellence, or cheapness, or for any other reason, has come to exceed what they and their children can supply, they employ their relatives. A man's children, grandchildren and nephews are not likely to be ill-treated in the matter of employment by him, or to organize labor unions to protect themselves against him, or inaugurate strikes to cripple his business, and injure both him and themselves. The workingmen have no trades unions, and do not need them. The one solitary feature possessed by some of those organizations that would be of use, viz., beneficiary character, they already have in great perfection. In every Chinese city, town and village there are societies to care for members in case of sickness and bury them when they die. —Mr. Lieu, of the Chinese consulate, in New York Sun.

Main Cause of Cholera.

Cholera, according to The Times, has invaded Genoa and Milan. The important fact, however, is pointed out that it never establishes a foothold in an Italian town when all impure sources of water are cut off, and the town is supplied by an aqueduct.—London Truth.

AUGUSTA, MAINE.

The popular idea has been that the world contains seven wonders, but the eighth made his appearance at the Capitol. It was a poor benighted man limping with rheumatism who had never heard of Salvation Oil. It is sold by all druggists at twenty-five cents a bottle.

The body of the unknown man killed and cremated in the railroad accident at West Springfield, Mass., has been recognized as that of John Jenkins, a young stone-cutter of Concord, N. H., who was returning from Amsterdam, N. Y., where he had been to set up a monument. He leaves a young wife, and a boy five months old.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Tie-Up in Boston.

The conductors, drivers, hostlers and other employes of the Consolidated Street Railway of Boston, to the number of 600, struck on Monday, owning to a dispute about the working hours, extra trips, etc. Much inconvenience results to the public, but no disturbances occured Monday.

He Took a Needless Precaution.

A Washington letter writer says "The Anglomaniac does not flourish here. The duke of Sutherland, who spent a week in Washington and left for the south a few days ago, evidently carried that impression with him. When his grace came to Washington he took rooms at one of the best hotels, giving orders that no cards were to be sent to him. But his precaution was quite unnecessary. Nobody called. The old gentleman trotted about the city, saw everything there was to be seen, and was severely let alone. Nobody tried to force themselves upon him, and he was left to the society of his valet and his suite. Before leaving he remarked to a friend that New York was a provincial town. The only real metropolis in America was Washington."

"Save Me From My Friends."

A despatch of Jan. 8th from Columbus, Ohio, to the Boston Sunday Globe, says:

Judge Thurman is not and was not seriously ill. Privately, he had imbibed too much at a banquet, and had to be taken home. Correspondents of democratic newspapers, thinking republican papers would be so uncharitable as to spread news of the ex-senator's true condition, concocted the story of his illness. Happily no paper alluded to the true state of affairs, the republican papers saying nothing at all of it, and the democratic papers are now sorry they sent out the stupid statement "Thurman is all right to-day."

Heroism and Death.

The German ship Elizabeth, from Hamburg for Baltimore, went ashore on the Virginia coast fourteen miles south of Cape Henry, in a perilous position on a bar 300 yards from the beach, at two o'clock in the morning on the 8th inst. The life-saving crews from the Little Island and Dam Neck stations soon arrived at the spot, and fired six shots in the endeavor to get a life-line to the vessel, but the furious gale frustrated their efforts, and as a last hope the gallant fellows determined to brave the tremendous sea in one of their boats. Capt. Abel Belanza, of life-saving station No. 4 (Little Island) gave the word of command, and the boat after a hard pull reached the ship in safety; fifteen of the ship's company were taken off, five in the surf boat and ten in a ship's boat launched for the purpose, and the boats were making good way to the shore when an enormous wave threw both boats end-over-end. Then ensued a long and desperate struggle for life in the surf, the men on shore endeavoring, at the risk of their own lives, to aid their drowning mates and the seamen; several of the bodies were snatched from the surf, and two of them, both life-saving men, were resuscitated, though one of them was so badly hurt that it is supposed he must die.

The ship's crew numbered twenty-two men, all of whom were lost. Of the life-saving crews the following perished: Abel Belanza, (captain,) J. W. Land, George W. Stone, Little Island station; J. A. Belanza (brother to Abel,) and Joseph Spratley, of Dam Neck station. John Etheridge and Frank Telford of Little Island station were picked up, and Telford will live.

An Anarchist Victory.

In Chicago, on the 9th inst., the anarchists in the Trades Assembly captured all the offices, and put pronounced sympathizers with the condemned murderer in all the places. The bricklayers' and stonemasons' union, and one Knights of Labor assemby, immediately withdrew from the Trades Assembly.

In New York, the democrats celebrated the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans by a lunch at the Hoffman house. The remarks of A. S. Sullivan eulogizing Mr. Cleveland were followed by some pretty loud talk against civil service ideas, and a demand for a renewal of the spoils system. Chas. A. Dana, of the Sun, did not want an aristocracy of office-holders resulting from Cleveland's views on the civil service. The Boston democrats on a similar occasion, Saturday, were rather more subdued in their remarks. Judge Page of this city sent a letter of regret that his public duties prevented him from being present. Pretty much the same speeches that are usually made on this annual festival were aired on this occasion.

George Leighton of Farmington, who went on a fishing excursion to Merrymeeting pond on Thursday with Frederick McIntyre, was overcome by the cold while returning in the afternoon, a fierce storm setting in, and had to be abandoned by his companion, who reached a place of shelter with great difficulty. A party was at once sent out to rescue Leighton, who was brought in unconscious, and died soon after.

The temperature in Dover, Saturday morning, was from eight to sixteen degrees below zero at seven o'clock, in different localities. Outside the city, along the line of the Dover & Winnepiseogee railroad, it was from fourteen to twenty-four below.

William Ballantine, the famous English seargent-at-law, is dead.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros for rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a large proportion of those who have these diseases.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

Allow me to say a few words in favor of Athlophoros. Having been troubled with rheumatism for several years I had tried many remedies but with no satisfactory results. I was at last persuaded to try a bottle of Athlophoros and I was surprised at the immediate relief it afforded. I would highly recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatic trouble.

T. D. PHELPS.

Leominster, Mass., May 13, 1886.

I think Athlophoros is a grand, good medicine. I used not quite one bottle for neuralgia in the shoulders and neck, and experienced great relief, the pain subsided and in twenty-four hours disappeared altogether. I recommend Athlophoros to any and everybody afflicted with neuralgia, for it will kill that disease. MRS. FREEMAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

STAWBERRY BANK ENCAMPMENT.

A public installation, banquet, and other entertainment, will be given by Strawberry Bank Encampment, No. 5, I. O. O. F., on Friday evening, Jan. 14th, in commemoration of the consolidation of Strawberry Bank and Mt. Sinai Encampments. The arrangements are in the hands of a very competent committee, and the exercises will be very interesting.

THEY MUST HAVE HAD A COLD RIDE.

Two open barges, well filled, left this city last evening at 7 o'clock bound for Dover to attend the installation of officers of Cocheco Lodge, I. O. G. T. Beyond doubt a hospitable reception awaited them on their arrival, but—the going and coming on such a night!

THE CARRIER SYSTEM OF POSTAL DELIVERY.

It is stated that there are about thirty applicants for the position of postman in this city when the letter carrier system of delivery is put in force.

This new mode of sending home letters will be of great service to many who live at a distance from the post-office; but what will the frequenters of the vestibule, of either sex, who delight to make frequent visits to the office, do for amusement? It is true that those whose correspondence is the smallest and possibly of the least consequence, are the most impatient to receive their letters. Shall such as these be compelled to wait the carrier's round, or will they still enjoy the visit to the post-office on the arrival of every mail? It will be hard to change the old habit of going down to the office after the evening meal, or of dropping in on the way home "from the store" to see if there is anything by the "Pullman mail," and hard to give up the gratification enjoyed in looking into the lock-box and finding—perhaps nothing—but still being assured that if there were letters, one would have them.

Are these long-enjoyed privileges to be cut off? No, not if we desire to retain them. The delivery by carrier will be optional with those to whom letters are addressed. For persons who will enjoy waiting for the postman's ring at the door, for those who have no one to send to the office, or for those whose residence or daily employment is far from the government building, the delivery system will be a convenience. But there are many will not give up their boxes, or cease—for the present at least—to examine the boards in the vestibule to see if the clerks have "got 'em on the list." Such rights, privileges and enjoyments cannot and should not be too summarily sundered from a people of settled habits.

A DELUSIVE HOPE.

The Concord Patriot favors the consolidation of the three internal revenue districts, which comprise the states of Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, and the establishment of the collector's office at Concord, which it says, would save expense and furnish an occupant for the new public building that is going up (not very fast) in the rear of the state house. Behind this consideration is doubtless a hope that it would open a fleshpot to Henry H. Metcalf, who feels that, unless there is a new departure somewhere, Cleveland's term will expire without his getting his fingers into one. But so long as Frank Jones pays more than half of the revenue collected in the three states, and owns nine-tenths of the democratic party in New Hampshire, and is absolute master of the administration in New England, and entertains his present opinions of the Patriot and its editors, we guess the internal revenue office will be left at Portsmouth, and brother Metcalf will be left—as usual.—Mirror.

CHEAP FARE TO BOSTON.

The second annual ball of the Boston & Maine R. R. Relief Association will be held in Mechanics' building, Boston, on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst. Tickets are placed at one dollar each; and each ticket entitles the holder to purchase two tickets to Boston and back, if desired, at half rates. These tickets are good going to Boston on any train on the 12th; returning, either by special train leaving Boston at three A. M. on the 13th, or on any regular train during the day. For tickets and further information apply to N. C. Trickey, ticket seller, G. A. Silsbee, conductor, or G. B. Wallace at telegraph office, B. & M. depot, this city.

THE SHOALS STEAMBOAT SERVICE.

The steamboat service to the Isles of Shoals for the coming summer is promised to be a great improvement over that of past seasons, even when two rival boats performed the work. The plan is to have the Oceanic leave the Shoals at about a quarter past six in the morning, landing passengers in season to take the sea-shore express train to Boston at 7:30 A. M., and also to go on the 7:55 train over the Concord & Portsmouth railroad. The boat will start on a return trip to the Shoals about 8:00 A. M., or perhaps after the arrival of the 8:20 train from Wolfeboro' Junction and the north, carrying the mails received the evening previous; and on her second trip in, will reach her dock in season for passengers to go east and west by trains which will leave Boston and Mount Desert at 11:00 A. M. The return trip will be made as formerly, at eleven o'clock; and the afternoon trips will be regulated to accommodate passengers going and arriving by the three o'clock P. M. trains, east and west. The last trip will be made after the arrival of trains from Concord, so that visitors coming from the mountains, via the Concord afternoon trains, can go to the Shoals the same evening. The new arrangement will do much toward increasing the number of visitors at these famous islands. The managers of the Appledore and Oceanic are fully alive to the advisability of reaching out for business without depending solely upon the acknowledged attractions in which the sea-girt isles abound.

Visitors to the Shoals from Portsmouth and vicinity, by the new arrangements will be able to enjoy a long visit at the islands when they go out for the day, as they will reach the spot at about nine o'clock in the morning, and can remain until the last boat leaves, between four and five o'clock P. M.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Jan. 10th.

John McMahon, otherwise called Frank Nelson, was fined $3, with $6.90 costs, for drunkenness; county farm in default of payment.

A Vaughan street restaurant keeper, charged with having his place open for business on Sunday, had his case continued to Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

Cryus H. Rand and Benjamin Tufts have been drawn in ward three drawn in ward three to serve as jurymen at Exeter during the January term of the supreme court.

The train from the eastward due in this city at 11 o'clock Monday forenoon, was about three-quarters of an hour late, having been delayed by snow on the Maine Central and Conway roads.

The Sunday school of the Congregational church gave a very interesting concert at their chapel on Middle street last Sunday evening, a large number of people being in attendance. Music was furnished for the occasion by an orchestra composed of Messrs. McIntire, piano, Noyes, violin, Hutchinson and Kingsbury, flutes, and Chadwick, 'cello. Mr. John Pickard, the High school principal, gave a very interesting discourse on the misson work which is needed in the far western states and territories of our country.

Colonel Chas. E. Blunt, of the corps of engineers, United States army, was retired for age on Monday, Jan. 10th. Col. Blunt, who is a native of this city, has an excellent record of service, dating from 1846, when he was graduated from the military academy, third in a class of which General McClellan was second. During the war he performed valuable and arduous service, for which he holds brevets of lieutenant-colonel and colonel. He attained his present grade of colonel on the 30th of June, 1882.

Capt. Griffin, of the tug L. A. Belknap, which came around to this port last Friday to tow the distressed schooner John F. Merrow to Portland, reports having had a very hard and uncomfortable job of it. The tug started from the lower harbor with her tow at eight o'clock Friday evening, and arrived at Portland at eleven o'clock Saturday forenoon. During the night the wind was at one time so strong that for three hours no perceptible progress was made; and in spite of the efforts of the tug's crew, ice accumulated so fast on the boat that she was at least six inches by the head when she entered Portland harbor. The schooner was leaking so freely that her crew, aided by four extra men procured here, had to keep the pumps going all the passage.

The wrecked schooner Flying Dart had not been floated off the beach at Rye up to Monday evening; the sea was rolling in heavily on Monday, and the wreck had been driven higher on the rocks than she was at first. It is doubtful if she ever comes off.

The steamer Mystic has discontinued her late trip, from Kittery at eight o'clock and from this city at nine, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings for the rest of the winter; the late trip on Saturday evening will continue to be made, whenever the weather is favorable.

A man who came into this city on Monday afternoon from York reported that a fire was seen on Boon island in the morning on that day, but could give no particulars. The sea was very rough, so that no boat could reach the island, or leave it.

An Eliot correspondent writes the Dover Democrat that the steamer Bradish Johnson, recently burned on a river in Alabama with great loss o f life, while employed as a hotel-boat for a gang of railroad bridge-builders, was commanded by Capt. W. C. Kennard of Eliot, and from the first reports of the disaster "it was not learned whether Capt. Kennard was safe or not. But his friends were relieved of their anxiety by a telegram announcing that he was all right. Capt. Kennard was the last man to leave the vessel alive, and in his gallant attempt to save the men from their terrible death, came near being over powered by the flames several times. His boots were burned from his feet; and the most of his clothing, as well as his hair and moustache, were destroyed. But save a few slight burns he escaped injuries. This is the second time Capt. Kennard has narrowly escapted death within three months, having been shipwrecked in Mobile bay in October last. At this time he was three-quarters of an hour in the water, and if he had not been an expert swimmer would have been drowned."

Thickness of Shower Clouds.

An interesting paper by Mr. Arthur W. Clayden, recently read before the Royal Meteorological society at London, gives the result of a series of observations to determine the connection between the "blackness" of a cloud and the heaviness of the shower which falls from it. Mr. Clayden first ascertained by means of an azimuth compass and sextant the hight of each cloud's base above the earth, subsequently determining its thickness. He found that from clouds the thickness of which did not exceed 10,000 feet, the rain is always slight, while the rain drops are rather minute. As the shower clouds increase in thickness the amount of rain and the size of the drops proportionately increase, and the clouds from which hailstorms come reach a thickness of over 10,000 feet. It is very noticeable also that as the cloud thickens the rain drops which fall from it are colder. It is suggested that condensation begins on the upper surface of the cloud by the cooling of the liquid cloud particles.

In this view it is easy to see how hailstones (the formation of which is still a mystery with many people) can be formed in the middle latitudes. The snow line over southern England is probably, as he says, between 6,000 and 7,000 feet above sea level. So that a shower cloud even less than 10,000 feet thick would rear its pyramidal head into a freezing medium. It is certain, however, that the snow line in England is often higher than Mr. Clayden assumes, as English aeronauts have found the thermometer registering over 45 degrees at an altitude of 10,000 feet. It does not, therefore, follow that either snow or hail will necessarily be formed in clouds of great thickness.—Philadelphia Call.

A Goose from the Arctics.

Near Calusa, Cal., recently an arrowpoint made of ivory was extracted from the breast of a goose shot on the wing. As there are no savage, nearer than the Arctic regions with whom ivory is plenty, the conclusion is that the arrow was made from the tusk of a walrus or some other ivory-jawed monster and shot into the breast of the bird by an Esquimau, or perhaps by an inhabitant of those polar regions which our world has been unable to penetrate. The point had been in the flesh for some time, as the skin of the goose had grown over the arrow.—Chicago Times.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and kindred to leprosy and consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than confide themselves with doubtful patentees.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing of sense and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated as to shroud the throat and induced as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple cold in the head to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, all for retail price, $1.

The Above Picture Represents

Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings. He felt tired instead of vigorous; nerves instead of strong; His appetite became poor and his sleep broken. He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and that the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the Captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it whenever they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife, (whom the best physicians of New-York said was dying of tumor,) to perfect health, I swear by it."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Bulldozing a Newspaper.

The Evening News of Salem, Mass., having by its comments on the recent strikes in that city and Peabody offended the labor organizations, a notice was recently sent to merchants and others advertising in that paper, requesting them to discontinue their advertisements. This having failed of its purpose, the following attempt to frighten the merchants by an implied threat of loss of trade was sent out under date of Jan. 7th:

Dear Sir: Please inform us whether or not you intend discontinuing your advertisement in the Salem Evening News, as requested in our communication of Dec. 31, 1886, as we wish to furnish each member of the several organizations represented by us the names of all those who favor us in that respect.

THE COMMITTEE.

For United Labor Organizations of Salem and Vicinity.

This document bears the seal of Local Assembly 2803, but as there is no address furnished it is evident that no reply is expected. Several merchants say they would like to know whom to address in reply. The boycott does not seem likely to prove very effective.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

Honest government of the democratic brand has received further assistance from the president by the nomination of Mr. Bashaw for United States district attorney of the eastern district of Missouri. He is the candidate of both Missouri senators, and has been named to succeed the republican district attorney, just after the latter had secured the indictment of sixty democrats for ballot-box frauds. Strong protests against Bashaw's appointment were made to the president, reciting at considerable length the statements which he is alleged to have made in regard to the indicted politicians, which were in effect that he would quash the indictments if he were appointed.

SAN FRANCISCO IN '49.

M. D. Varigny, in The Revue des Deux-Mondes, publishes the first of a series of remarkable articles on San Francisco. This first one is devoted to the phenomenal origin of the great Pacific capital, and incidentally, M. D. Varigny tells us many good stories, one of which might have furnished Bret Harte with a theme on which to use his most delicate embroidery. Speaking of the early growth of business in San Francisco, the author says: "The auction room sprang into existence in a night. It was a supply in response to an urgent demand and prospered forthwith. The 'auction room' of San Francisco had but a vague resemblance to the usual places of that kind. It was at once a sort of banking house, commission depot, shop and bar. The auctioneer was usually enthroned upon a hogshead, from which proud position he looked down upon his public. There, amid jokes, puns and more or less spicy pleasantries, he drew the crowd into his shop, shouting out the sale at auction of the most heterogeneous objects; lots of lands, miners' tools, ship cargoes to deliver, horses to take back from squatters, clothes, wood and sails, rice and salt pork, boxes and barrels—all were piled around about him. He received and repeated offers, was prompt to catch a wink of the eye, talked like a rattlebox, exciting purchasers to new ardor. The sales took place from 10 o'clock to noon. Then buyers were served with a free lunch invariably composed of sea biscuits and Dutch cheese, smoked salmon or herrings. The drinks were the only things to be paid for. Merchandise purchased had to be taken away the same day."

M. de Varigny was a witness in one of these auction rooms of a very original scene. The auctioneer, Cobb, well known in San Francisco, had that day sold a certain number of lots of land situated in Stockton street. The locality was scarcely attractive. Stockton street was buried in sand at the back of the city; no one had yet thought of building there. Nevertheless, there was a crowd, as the price to be obtained could serve as the basis of valuation, and at that time every one ignored in which direction the city would grow. Installed upon a package of planks directly in front of the auctioneer sat a robust miner, whose fiery visage indicated that he had made frequent stops in the bar rooms down by the harbor. He was battling against sleep, and struggled manfully, nodding his head. The two first lots were sold for an ounce. Suddenly, without any apparent reason, the auctioneer knocked down the third lot for four ounces. "Your name?" he said, addressing the sleepy miner. The fellow raised his head. "Tom," "Tom what? Tom is no name at all." "Tom Maguire," said the other, a little taken aback by this apostrophe. "All right," and the sale went on. Cobb, with his eyes fixed on the miner, knocked down to him successively five or six lots, taking in good faith, as a bid, each nod of the half drunken man. When the auction was over Tom was asked to pay for his purchases, but he protested with energy that he had not bought anything at all. However, as the auctioneer was firm and the neighbors agreed, he had to put down the money. He took from his sack the $300 or $400 that were asked of him, and left the shop, saying that he would never again set foot in San Francisco, where a drop too much had cost him so dear. He left the same evening for his camp at Texas Hill. There, like all miners, he had ups and downs, but like all miners again he was so much in love with his adventurous existence that he went pushing his way into the interior as one placer after another gave out. Four years after his unlucky visit to San Francisco, Maguire, getting a bad fall from a horse, was taken to the hospital of Mokehume Hill. Thanks to his vigorous constitution, he recovered, and was getting ready, without a dollar in his pocket, to go back to the mines when a young American, whose city manners and careful dress indicated that he was from San Francisco, came to tell him that he was charged by one of the largest houses in that city to find out at what price he would be disposed to sell his lots of land in Stockton street. Maguire no longer remembered that he owned any land, but the visitor told him that he had been hunting vainly for him in the southern mines, and now, having found him, insisted on carrying him off to San Francisco, paying all the expenses of the trip. Tom Maguire arrived in the city, and was offered $10,000 for each of his lots. This was not more than their full value at that time. Maguire pocketed $60,000, and went back to the eastern states blessing his stars and loudly asserting that on the whole there was nothing like a good square spree from time to time to bring luck to an honest miner.—Inter Ocean.

Curious Statistical Record.

One of the most curious statistical records recently completed is that of Dr. Saizmann, of Essling, in Wurtemberg. He found, on going over the ancient records of Essling, that in the Sixteenth century the average duration of life among the physicians was 36.5 years; in the Seventeenth, 45.8; in the Eighteenth, 45.8, while at the present time the physicians of Wurtemberg reach the very favorable average of 56.7 years. It would appear that this very great increase in longevity was due to the disappearance of the pest and the great diminution in the number of typhus epidemics. The black death or black pest of the Fourteenth century, decimated the practitioners of that epoch. Guy de Chauliac suffered from it twice and recovered; Chalin de Vinario succumbed.—Chicago Herald.

The new 30-inch gas main at Pittsburg is said to be the largest ever laid. It is used to conduct natural gas into the city.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va.
Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured.
E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Klotz, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.
MRS. ISAAC PHELPS, Ravenna, O.

NO MEDICINE LIKE THEM.

We have sold your CUTICURA REMEDIES for the last six years, and no medicines on our shelves give better satisfaction. C. F. ALTHERR, MN. Druggist, Albany, N. Y.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are sold everywhere. Price: CUTICURA, 50 cents; RESOLVENT, $1.00; SOAP, 35 cents. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., Boston, Mass. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

CRUBS, Pimples, Skin Blemishes, and Baby Humors, cured by CUTICURA SOAP.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of trsting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON.

Railway Consolidation.

The purchase by the Fitchburg railroad of the Hoosac Tunnel line of road is an important step in railway economy which commends itself to every practical mind. In the great traffic which deals with the shipment of the products of the west to our foreign customers, every facility which Boston can achieve in view of its competition from other shipping ports, is important to New England. The president of the Fitchburg road, who is one of the ablest and most experienced railway managers in this part of the country, of course has long seen the need of this acquisition, the result of which has an importance which can hardly be overestimated.

The consolidation of connecting lines of railway, which form competing lines with other routes, has for some time been the rule with all leading companies. It is the same principle which the Boston & Lowell road seeks to adopt in the lease of the New Hampshire roads, the validity of which is shortly to be passed upon by the supreme court of this state. There can be no question that this mode of operation is by far more economic and effectual than under the old system of freighting over many lines, with different officers and managers, and a multitude of details, with which the growing business of through lines ought not to be hampered.

The railroad problem of to-day is, how shall the crops of the west find the speediest and cheapest transportation to the Atlantic coast? The trunk lines leading to Boston have, one after another, reached out and absorbed the extension of lines built beyond their original limits. The result has been in every instance, beginning with the Boston & Albany, that business has been done better and more satisfactorily to the public, and at the same time with greater advantage to the railway property of New England, than under the old system when the traffic was done over many connecting roads. There may arise technical objections which, in some instances, for a while may prove obstacles to this desired result; but that this is to be the rule in the future economy of railroad management, no practical person can for a moment hesitate to admit.

The Boston Strike Ended.

The strike of employes of the Consolidated Street Railway of Boston, which was inaugurated Monday morning, lasted just a day, the men returning to work Tuesday morning, the company granting all their demands. This sudden yielding of the company implies that the men had good grounds for their complaints.

Gaining Even in January.

It is a settled fact in daily journalism that daily papers are usually lighter in circulation in January than in any other month in the year. In spite of this fact, however, the Boston Daily Globe is gaining this month at a rapid rate. People in cities and large towns who have never taken the Daily Globe are ordering it of their newsdealers. In the smaller towns people are subscribing for the Daily Globe in large numbers, the price being only 50 cents per month. The fact is, people are becoming convinced by the thousands that the Boston Globe is the best newspaper in this section.

The Boston Sunday Globe is also still gaining. Next Sunday among its other popular features will be a funny illustrated article on people who have made New Year's resolutions.

Does It Mean War?

There is a scare in London arising out of the mobilization of two English army corps. Officers on furlough belonging to regiments next on the roster for foreign service are stated to have been warned to hold themselves in readiness to report for duty, indicating that preparations are advancing for the formation of a third army corps. It has further transpired that the war office is pushing forward arrangements, pointing eventually to the army and navy reserves and auxiliary forces being called up.

The attempt of the Indiana democrats to steal the lieutenant-governorship and the organization of the state senate, so as to secure by fraud the United States senatorship, has failed, the democratic supreme court of the state declining to be a party to any such business. Mr. Robertson, the republican lieutenant-governor elect, took the oath of office before the legislative convention Jan. 10th.

The Chinese minister of foreign affairs has agreed to pay $25,000 to American missionaries who suffered losses during the recent riots in China. It is not stated how much our government will pay on account of the brutal murders of Chinamen by ruffianly mobs in our western territories.

Salvation Oil is the greatest pain-destroyer of the age. It instantly relieves and speedily annihilates pain, whether it arises from a cut, bruise, scald, burn, frost-bite, or from a wound of any other kind. Price only twenty-five cents a bottle.

Princeton college is about to adopt a plan of college government somewhat similar to that recently adopted at Harvard, which gives the students a voice in the matter.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Great Domes.

St. Peter's, Rome, 330 feet high; Duomo, Florence, 310 feet; St. Paul's, London, 215 feet; St. Sophie, Constantinople, 201 feet, but towering above them all is the deserved repute of the G. O. Taylor Bourbon and Rye Whiskey, bottled by C. H. Graves & Sons, Boston, and sold by druggists and grocers as a medicinal and public necessity.

For sale by the bottle or case by John Laighton.

A company with $3,000,000 capital has been formed at Memphis, Tenn., to mine manganese beds in Missouri and Arkansas.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros Pills have found rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a large proportion of those who have these diseases.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

Allow me to say a few words in favor of Athlophoros. Having been troubled with rheumatism for several years I had tried many remedies but with no satisfactory results. I was at last persuaded to try a bottle of Athlophoros and I was surprised at the immediate relief it afforded. I would highly recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatic trouble.

T. D. PHELPS.

Leominster, Mass., May 13, 1886.

I think Athlophoros is a grand, good medicine. I used not quite one bottle for neuralgia in the shoulders and neck, and experienced great relief, the pain subsided and in twenty-four hours disappeared altogether. I recommend Athlophoros to any and everybody afflicted with neuralgia, for it will kill that disease. MRS. FREEMAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

THE TOBOGGAN EPIDEMIC.

The toboggan craze is sweeping over the country just as the "leg mania" did a dozen or so years ago, and the roller skating craze at a later date. Portsmouth, conservative old city, practically escaped the leg mania business, and only went into the roller skating at the end of the epidemic, just when other places were beginning to get tired of it. As yet, nobody has suggested a toboggan chute here, so far as we have heard, though places all around have got or are preparing to get them, and residents of those places who do not "tobog" are considered nowhere. Saco, Me., has a grand slide, with brass band and electric lights. Haverhill, Mass., on Saturday evening last opened a slide two and a half miles from the city, with great eclat. Great Falls has a slide in operation; and Dover is moving for one on Garrison hill, which will be 2000 feet long. The toboggan is undoubtedly a great institution, being an imported notion, but we are willing to bet a quarter that the Yankee small boy on his "double ripper" can run over any toboggan that was ever made, cover a far greater distance under similar conditions, and break the legs and necks of the riders where the toboggan will only tumble them into the snow.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Jan. 11th.

The only business brought before the court was the continued case of a restaurant keeper, charged with doing business on Sunday, which was settled by his paying the costs, $6.53.

CORPORATION ELECTIONS.

The annual elections of the several national banks of the city were held on Tuesday, the 11th inst., officers being chosen as follows:

NEW HAMPSHIRE NATIONAL.—Directors, Edwin A. Peterson, Frank Jones, True M. Ball, Marcellus Eldredge, Daniel Marcy, Thomas A. Harris, J. Albert Walker; president, E. A. Peterson; cashier, Lafayette S. Butler.

ROCKINGHAM NATIONAL. — Directors, John J. Pickering, George W. Haven, John S. H. Frink, T. Salter Tredick, William A. Peirce, Francis E. Langdon; president, John J. Pickering; cashier, John P. Hart.

FIRST NATIONAL.—Directors, Edward P. Kimball, William L. Dwight, William H. Hackett, John H. Broughton, Ezra H. Winchester, Robert C. Peirce, Moses P. Stacy; president, Edward P. Kimball; cashier, Charles A. Hazlett.

NATIONAL MECHANICS' & TRADERS'.—Directors, John Sise, Charles H. Mendum, William H. Rollins, Joseph W. Peirce, Andrew P. Preston, John S. Fray; president, John Sise; cashier, James P. Bartlett.

PORTSMOUTH TRUST & GUARANTEE CO. SAVINGS BANK.—Directors, Jeremiah F. Hall, Frank Jones, Daniel Marcy, William D. Fernald, Jeremiah Sanborn, Moses H. Goodrich, Calvin Page, Samuel J. Gerrish, Charles A. Sinclair, Marcellus Eldredge; president, Jeremiah F. Hall; vice president, Frank Jones; treasurer, Charles H. Rollins.

PORTSMOUTH TALENT ABROAD.

The Portsmouth Choral Club gave a concert in Greenland, Tuesday evening, Jan. 11th, the proceeds to go towards purchasing a new piano for the High school. A large party went from this city, in barges and by private conveyance. The evening was pleasant, the sleighing good, and a grand time was had. We trust there was a liberal balance secured for the worthy object in aid of which the concert was given.

DEATH OF WILLIAM PERRY.

Dr. William Perry, the oldest person in Exeter, and the oldest living graduate of Harvard college, died at three o'clock Tuesday, morning, Jan. 11th. He was ninety-eight years old on the 20th of December last. He had been in good health until this winter, when his great age commenced to toll rapidly on him.

Dr. Perry was a member of the Harvard class of 1811. After his graduation he studied medicine with Dr. John Warren, and on the completion of his studies commenced practice in Exeter, where he had a long and honorable career, being acknowledged as one of the most skillful practitioners in New Hampshire. He was especially skilled in insanity, and was one of the first advocates of the state asylum for the insane. He attended church from the time when he went barefoot, as a boy, to within six months. He leaves two sons—Dr. William G. Perry, of Exeter, and John T. Perry, a journalist and writer. Sarah Orne Jewett, the authoress, is his granddaughter.

Dr. Perry was a passenger on Fulton's first steamboat trip down the Hudson river, seventy-nine years ago, and was the last survivor of the company. The boat, he says, was not named the Clermont, as is commonly stated, but was the "Katherine of Clermont," so named in honor of Fulton's wife, Katherine Livingston, of Clermont, N. Y.

MARITIME NOTES.

Three team-loads of gear from the schooner Flying Dart were brought to the city from Rye on Tuesday, and included her sails, running rigging, and whatever movables could conveniently be got at. Mr. Drowne has temporarily abandoned the attempt to float the wreck, but if it holds together will try it again on the next spring tides.

The four-masted schooner Sarah W. Lawrence, Farrow master, arrived at this port on Tuesday from Norfolk, Va., with 2,016 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker—the largest cargo of coal ever brought into this port by any vessel. She was towed up river by the steamers James Sampson and Clara Batemen, the former ahead and the latter alongside. She hails from Taunton, Mass., registers 1,301 tons, and carries 2,200 tons of coal when fully loaded. She was built in Bath, Me., and was launched July 5th, 1886; and since sailing from that port on July 12th, has carried ten cargoes—eight to Boston, one to Providence, and the one now being unloaded here. She is 217 feet long, forty-five feet beam and 23 1-2 feet in the hold, with lower masts 110 feet long, and she only carries eleven men, being furnished with steam for hoisting sails, getting the anchors, and doing other heavy work.

The schooner Satellite, of the brick fleet, Capt. Lowe, arrived at this port on Tuesday from Gloucester, where she had been laying for three weeks, awaiting a favorable chance to get home. She will haul up here for the rest of the winter.

The captain of the fishing schooner Hereward, at Gloucester on the 10th inst. from the Grand banks, reports the probable loss of two of the crew, who went astray while attending trawls.

Sunday morning was a cold one in this city, but it was torrid zone weather compared to what it was at Presque Isle, Me., where the mercury was solid, and the spirit thermometer indicated sixty-three degrees below zero. At Caribou, Me., it was fifty-three below, and at Fort Fairfield forty-one below.

Strawberry Bank lodge, I. O. G. T., will have an entertainment and supper on Thursday evening, 13th inst., at Good Templar's hall, Pleasant street.

The concert by Eastman's orchestra, of Manchester, G. H. Morey director, preceding the Knights of Pythias ball in Franklin hall on the evening of Jan. 31st, will consist of the following selections: Overture, "Zampa," Herold; bolero, "Souvenir de Cadiz," Bosisio; trombone solo, (F. L. Blodgett,) "Harlow polka," Brooks; selection from "Erminie," Jakobowskg; piccolo solo, (C. F. Eastman,) "Tom Tit polka," Cox; "The Muddy Day," Braham.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Athletic club, held Monday evening, it was voted to hold the club's annual ball on the evening of Easter Monday.

Four freight cars loaded with barrels of beer got off the track in the freight yard in this city, above the roundhouse, about 8:30 o'clock Monday evening, and the yard men who were called in consequence worked till about one o'clock Tuesday morning before getting them on the iron again.

The taking of testimony in the case in the United States circuit court, of Hale & Co., of New York, against the Keene Chair Co. and others, has been resumed before United States Commissioner Hackett. Attorney General Baker of Maine appears for the Keene Chair Co., and Judge Page of this city for Frank Jones, one of the defendants. Bingham & Mitchell, of Concord, represent the complainants.

Ten shipwrights were "required" on the navy yard, Monday, and went to work Tuesday morning. We should like to see one hundred times that number going across the river every day.

Mr. George A. Blaisdell shipped to Boston on Tuesday a car-load of rags and a car-load of old iron, and still has more of both commodities on hand.

J. H. Bartlett & Son, hardware dealers of Suncook, who lost $5,000 in the fire of the 11th inst., had $1,500 insurance in the Granite State Co. Another sufferer by the fire had a $1,000 risk in the same company.

A new safe, weighing ten tons, is to arrive to-day for the New Hampshire bank. The foundation for it was put in a month ago.

A subscription paper is being circulated for the benefit of Mrs. Carrie Miles, widow of William Miles, who died some months ago and left her with a young child to support, and no property excepting a share in the fishing schooner Flying Dart, recently wrecked at Rye beach.

The stable connected with the Juniper House, at Salem Neck, Mass., was burned Jan. 9th, with two horses and a colt. The building was owned by Thomas Entwistle.

Thomas Entwistle, a few years since, was city marshal of this city.

The Sanford correspondent of the Biddeford Journal writes that paper as follows: "Mr. J. Frank Springfield, of the firm of Farington & Springfield, civil engineers, of Portsmouth, N. H., and Mrs. Emma Kimball, daughter of William Kimball of Rochester, and niece of Hon. I. S. Kimball of this village, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, the 1st inst., at the residence of the bride's parents. They will take up their residence in Portsmouth."

Miss Emma Manent, day telephone operator in the central office in this city, started Monday morning for Ogunquit, Wells, Me., to spend a short vacation with friends. Miss Lizzie Linehan will operate the switch-board during her absence.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEELE, Salem, Mass.

The Continental Divide.

Not being far from the Continental Divide, I jogged over to the latter place to see what the backbone of America looked like. Reading or thinking upon the subject, one would be apt to imagine that the division of the continent was a lofty and rugged range of mountains, impassible and perpetually snow-capped. As a matter of fact the Continental Divide is a level prairie, green and luxuriant with buffalo grass and wild flowers, and almost as smooth and flat as a table. To be accurate, it rises gradually from each side and culminates in a beautiful lake called "Two Ocean Pond," where originate the sources of the Columbia and Missouri river systems. From one end a trickling stream finds its way into the Atlantic, and from the other end a similar rill begins its journey to the Pacific, so that if a chip were dropped in the center of the pond it is hard to say which ocean would ultimately receive the frail traveler. The lovely sheet of water is correctly named "Two Ocean Pond."—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Dog Law Reform.

There has been formed in London an association, "The Society for the Prevention of Hydrophobia and the Reform of the Dog Laws," having for its main object the enforcement of a better control over dogs. One of its methods will be to accomplish the destruction of dogs of low degree.—Chicago Herald.

Peculiar Instinct of Sheep.

The Boston Cultivator calls attention to the fact that, if left to themselves, sheep will retire at night to the most elevated part of the field. This is a relic of the time when they were wild, and such precaution was necessary that they might guard against approaching danger from wild animals. But the fact has its advantages. The knolls that sheep select for their sleeping places are generally originally poor, but sheep will soon enrich them. The grass also is sweeter than on low land and sheep are less liable to disease.—Exchange.

Brass Bands.

There are about 200,000 men interested in brass bands, either as players or makers of instruments. There are 30,000 brass bands in the country at the present time, and the number is rapidly increasing.—New York Sun.

DR. HAM, March 2, 1886.
Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly Yours,

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Lisley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Fire, Life & Accident Insurance Agent and Broker.

The Opera House hotel in Suncook was burned early Tuesday morning, 11th inst.; also the Suncook opera house, and Otterson's block. The Methodist church was badly damaged on the outside, but was saved. Total loss, about $45,000. An engine and company were sent from Manchester, but the fire was under control when they arrived.

AROUND HOME.

Capt. John Clark, who lives at No. 17 Austin street, was ninety years old on Saturday, the 8th inst. On Wednesday, the 12th, Capt. Clark and his wife, the latter being well along toward eighty years of age, were noticed walking down town, getting along over the icy sidewalks with as much confidence and speed as though they were twenty years younger than their actual age.

The big fire-proof and burglar-proof safe for the New Hampshire national bank of this city, which was to have arrived and been put in place on the 12th inst., did not come, on account of an accident in Boston, the gear giving way as it was being loaded on the cars, letting the safe down with such force as to damage it materially, necessitating its return to the manufactory for repairs, which it was expected would take a week or more to complete. As the safe weighs ten tons it would naturally go down with a good deal of a thump when its support gave way.

As a train on the eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, which leaves Boston at two o'clock for stations on the Saugus branch, was leaving the main line at Everett, Mass., on the afternoon of the 11th inst., the rear trucks on the second passenger car were torn off, and remained on the main line. The car was dragged along for about 400 feet before the train was stopped, with the rear end bumping along the track all the way. The passengers were more or less shaken up and bruised, and naturally were very much alarmed.

Mr. George A. Athorne of Eliot is carrying on a large business in the seaming of stockings, which is of much benefit to many people in that town, as well as in parts of Kittery and York. Mr. Athorne is also putting an addition on his dwelling, and otherwise improving it.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produces, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

The Eliot Literary Union held its weekly meeting at Brooks hall on the evening of the 5th inst. The exercises consisted of singing by Mrs. W. H. Staples and the Misses Remick; reading by Miss Julia A. Knights, The Star, editress Miss Villa L. Dixon; drama, "the Irish love-letter;" and discussion on the question, "Resolved, that the earth became peopled by evolution." In the affirmative, S. A. Remick; negative, O. A. Athorne. The question being thrown open to the house, Dr. J. L. Willis and F. A. Staples spoke in the affirmative, and J. H. Dixon, S. A. Reeves and J. H. Foss in the negative. The monthly election of officers resulted in the choice of Major David Urch as president, F. M. Dixon vice president, F. A. Staples treasurer, V. L. Dixon secretary. The meeting closed with the duet "Good night."

EQUAL AND EXACT JUSTICE.

Warning Hotel and Restaurant Customers in Regard to Food Adulteration.

The legislatures of several eastern states, where not enough genuine cow butter is made to supply the people on Thanksgiving and Christmas, have passed laws requiring hotel and restaurant proprietors to conspicuously post in their dining rooms notices setting forth that oleomargarine is served on the table in the place of butter, whenever any substitute for it is used. There seems to be no good reason for withholding from the patrons of these hotels and restaurants information about the frauds that are practiced in other kinds of foods, as well as in drinks and condiments that are placed on the same table with substitutes for butter. Equal and exact justice would seem to demand that customers be apprised of the fact that the cheese served is composed of the curd of skimmed or separated milk and cotton seed oil, lard or neutral fat, and it is colored with annotto. They should also be made aware of the fact that the "pure Vermont maple sugar" is made from West India sugar cane or the "tailings" of New Orleans molasses; that the strained honey is compounded of fluid glucose, glycerine and flavoring extract; that the buckwheat cakes are made of wheat middlings and corn meal; that the "genuine white vinegar" is manufactured from corn sugar, malt extract, or high wines; that the pickles are "greened" with verdigris; that the ice cream is compounded of skimmed milk and corn starch and flavored with "fruit extracts" obtained by skillfully combining various oils and ethers; that the "French sardines" are baby herrings, caught on the coast of Maine and preserved in cotton seed oil; that the mustard is adulterated with corn meal, and the spices with finely ground spent tan bark.

Each coffee cup should contain a legend which informs the person who takes it to his lips that the beverage it contains is an infusion of chicory, parched barley or Canadian peas, which passed the custom house free of duty on the representation that they were to be used for seed. Each bill of fare should set forth in years and decades the ages of the "spring chickens" that are served, or give the number of "settings" of eggs that they hatched before they became too old to be serviceable in multiplying their species. All the jelly dishes should have a card attached to them setting forth the fact that their contents are mainly composed of fish glue, colored with dye stuffs and flavored with various drug store preparations.

If the practice of adorning the walls and tables of hotels, restaurants and boarding houses in the way suggested should become general, or be required by law, the proprietors would find their business much more profitable than it is at present. Their patrons would eat but little, and that little would be of the plainest sorts of food. Few would call for chicken pie, ask for the second cup of coffee, or desire to have their ice cream dish replenished. Salt, which is very cheap, would be almost the only condiment used with food. The caster and jelly glasses could still be used for ornamenting the table, but they would never require to be refilled. They would serve the same purpose that the vessels of colored liquids do that are displayed in the windows of drug stores. It is likely that the health of people who eat at public tables would be greatly improved by carrying out the plan proposed. They would eat corned beef and cabbage, plain roast beef and boiled potatoes, and decline all drinks but cold water. Living on this simple diet they would be well and happy.—Chicago Times.

Manufacture of Buddhist Images.

A recent book on Siam contains a description of the way in which sacred images are made for the Buddhists. In making the larger idols, those varying from one to eight feet in height and usually in a sitting posture, they first make a model of the figure in wax. Into this model they stick small nails a few inches apart and projecting slightly. Then the image is covered with a coating of fine sand mixed with clay sufficiently wet to be easily molded. The projecting nails serve to prevent the coating from falling off before it becomes hard. After it has been dried in the sun the idol is put into a furnace and burned, when the wax melts, and, running out, is collected for use another time. Melted brass is then poured over the image and evenly spread until the whole surface is covered with a thin coat of the metal. A smoothing and polishing process finishes the work, and the resplendent image is ready for the adoration of the multitude. The small silver idols are made in a different way. The maker has a hard wood model called a type. He takes common coin silver, beats it out into a thin sheet, and covers the model, pressing it close in every part until it assumes the exact shape desired. It is largest at the lower end, which is left open that the model may be drawn out. Melted pitch is poured into the hollow shell of silver leaf and then the idol is polished, usually with fine sand.—New York Times.

Happy Thought.

The 13th of last month Champoireau, in the last stage of despair, proceeded toward the Seine in the firm intention of drowning himself. Suddenly, and just as he was about to take the fatal plunge, an idea struck him. "Let me see, this is Friday, and the 13th. Never!" he said, and started back; "it might bring me ill-luck!"—Charivari.

Hard to Understand.

One of the hardest things for a man to understand is why those women who own sealskin sacks would not be without them for the world, and why those who don't wouldn't wear one of the horrid things for anything.

I have not had a return of my rheumatism since I used Athlophoros, which cured me about a year ago. I would gladly recommend it as a remedy to any one and every one suffering from rheumatism. Jarvis A. Pond, Branford, Ct.

Signor Magliani, Italian minister of finance, has notified the Vatican that the arrears of the papal annuity for sixteen years amounts to $10,000,000.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

New Jersey Politics.

The republicans of the New Jersey assembly, with the aid of three bolting democrats, organized the assembly on the 11th inst., amid great confusion. It would be horrible if the democrats, after all their forgeries and falsifying of election returns in order to steal the United States senatorship, should get cheated out of it.

Great Strike Threatened.

The strike of coal handlers at the docks of the New Jersey railroad in Elizabethport and Jersey City still continuing, and the places of the strikers being gradually filled by non-union men, the executive committee of the Knights of Labor assembly which includes the entire anthracite coal fields resolved on the 11th to order a general strike of all persons engaged in mining coal which is handled by the New Jersey lines, provided the strikers desire it. Should this strike be ordered, 50,000 of the 100,000 men employed in the anthracite coal fields would stop work.

Gaining Even in January.

It is a settled fact in daily journalism that daily papers are usually lighter in circulation in January than in any other month in the year. In spite of this fact, however, the Boston Daily Globe is gaining this month at a rapid rate. People in cities and large towns who have never taken the Daily Globe are ordering it of their newsdealers. In the smaller towns people are subscribing for the Daily Globe in large numbers, the price being only 50 cents per month. The fact is, people are becoming convinced by the thousands that the Boston Globe is the best newspaper in this section.

The Boston Sunday Globe is also still gaining. Next Sunday among its other popular features will be a funny illustrated article on people who have made New Year's resolutions.

A Royal Mrs. Partington.

The king of Denmark has recently dissolved the Folkething. Dissolving the Folkething has been his chief occupation for the last dozen years or so. The Folkething is the lower house of the Danish parliament, and King Christian's opposition to it recalls Mrs. Partington's attempt to sweep back the Atlantic with a broom. The controversy between the Danish king and people really furnishes one of the most interesting of current studies of constitutional government in Europe, though little attention has been called to it in this country. For twelve years now, King Christian has been stubbornly insisting upon keeping in power a ministry repugnant to the people, and bitterly opposed by a large majority in the popular branch of the parliament. He has met criticism only by more dogged insistence upon having his own way, and by dissolving the Folkething; while the people regularly reply by sending back larger and even more antagonistic majorities. And for the last four years the Folkething has refused to pass any government bill whatever, save the annual budget. This condition of things cannot long continue, of course, and the ultimate defeat of the king is inevitable. The feeling, indeed, has increased to a bitterness that more than once already has threatened to drive Christian from his throne.

A San Diego, Cal., merchant recently received an order from an interior settler for a Bible, a bowie-knife and a pack of playing cards.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

The Congregational church is "prospecting" for a pastor. An excellent preacher has supplied the pulpit several times, and seems to have given general satisfaction. At an informal meeting on Sunday to elicit some expressions of preference, the old adage, "many men of many minds," reared its sentimental phase.

A kindly hint to road surveyors. Ladies, church goers, and school children, have been wading ankle—aye, knee deep, in snow. Did you look on and smile? Let me say, it would be a public benefit to break out the roads immediately after light snows, and would cost but little. An old fashioned "A" harrow, teeth out, and with boards nailed across; or, better still, a similar triangle of three round, straight, smooth logs, seven or eight inches through, bark off sides, ten feet long and eight feet across the end, with one yoke of oxen, or a pair of horses, will beautifully smooth miles of road in an hour or two. Try it, and you will receive pretty smiles, and thanks "uttered or unexpressed." Every house should have one of these cheap and simple snow-ploughs to clear the paths around the buildings and to the road. Mr. Perry and another aged gentleman have set a good example of smoothing the ways for the travellers' good.

Veteran musicians. Mr. Samuel Lamprey is conducting a dancing school, and Mr. Thomas Chase a singing school, in the Town hall, with ear attuned and heart enthused with "concord of sweet music," as in the years so long agone.

The Lynn Milk Co.'s new forty-acre ice pond is a complete success, the ice being clean and hard, and some fifteen inches in thickness. Mr. David Lamprey is filling their mammoth new ice-house very quickly with his usual energy and tact. Mr. Curtis DeLancey is also filling some eighteen or twenty private houses here at the beach, and in Hampton Falls, Seabrook and Salisbury.

Skating mishap. A young lad thirteen years old broke through the ice—but bravely climbed out of the freezing bath over the breaking edges—one of the bitter cold days a week ago.

Horace M. Lane, Esq., is teaching the grammar school at the east schoolhouse. He is an able and experienced instructor.

The two young gentlemen wounded in the late shooting fracas are out upon the streets again, sobered and in their right minds.

The new road in "Twelve shares piney woods" is finished so nice and smooth that it has been christened "Wood-land trotting park." It is hardly needed as a public highway.

"A thousand" loads of salt hay were hauled from the marsh last week. We did not count them, but the well-lined roads exhibited an animated and unprecedented appearance in the haying time.

HAMPTON, Jan. 10th. **

The Laconia Car Co. have received another order for 100 freight cars, from the Boston & Maine railroad.

Wells, A. C. Hoyt.

According to a Biddeford paper, fully one-third of the male population of the city carry concealed weapons.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros for rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a large proportion of those who have these diseases.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

Allow me to say a few words in favor of Athlophoros. Having been troubled with rheumatism for several years I had tried many remedies but with no satisfactory results. I was at last persuaded to try a bottle of Athlophoros and I was surprised at the immediate relief it afforded. I would highly recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatic trouble.

T. D. PHELPS.

Leominster, Mass., May 13, 1886.

I think Athlophoros is a grand, good medicine. I used not quite one bottle for neuralgia in the shoulders and neck, and experienced great relief, the pain subsided and in twenty-four hours disappeared altogether. I recommend Athlophoros to any and everybody afflicted with neuralgia, for it will kill that disease. MRS. FREEMAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

HACK NOTICE.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

BITS OF PORTSMOUTH HISTORY.

The following items alluding to the Odiorne's Point settlers are taken from Prince's Chronology, being extracts mainly from a manuscript journal of Gov. Bradford of the Plymouth colony. They shed a little light on the Piscataqua settlement.

Under date of 1626, three years after the planting of the colony, and two years later than the Annals, quoting from Hubbard, says that Mr. David Thompson removed to Massachusetts Bay, Gov. Bradford writes:

"Wanting proper goods, and understanding the plantation at Monhiggan, belonging to some merchant of Plymouth [in England] is to break up and divers goods to be sold, the Governor with Mr. Winslow take a boat and with some hands go thither. Mr. David Thompson, who lives at Piscataway, going with us on the same design, we agree to buy all their goods and divide them equally. Our moiety comes to 400 l."

Two years later—"the latter end of the summer" of 1628—Gov. Bradford alludes to the "planters of Piscatway" and others competing for some eastern trade, as follows:

"With the return of the ships we send Mr. Allerton again to England. * * * 3rd. To get a patent for a trading place on Kennebeck river; especially since the planters at Piscataway and other places eastward of them, as also the fishing ships envy our trading there, and threaten to get a patent to execute us."

There is a bit relating to some early settlers, which is a curiosity in its way. The date is 1630. It should be said in explanation, that seventeen ships arrived in Massachusetts Bay that spring and summer, "furnished with men, women, children, all necessaries, men of handicrafts, and others of good condition, wealth and quality." Owing to misunderstanding in England, some of the ships were not supplied with sufficient provisions to sustain the emigrants after landing, and there being "miserable damage" of provisions at sea, and for other reasons, the whole colony fell into "great and threatening straits for want of food." So that from hunger and sickness "many died weekly, yea almost daily." Under such distressing conditions many of the new emigrants were discouraged, and Deputy Governor Dudley writes as follows:

"The ships being now on their return, some for England, some for Ireland, there was not much less than an hundred, some think many more, partly out of dislike to our government, which restrained and punished their excesses, and partly through fear of famine, not seeing other means than by their labour to feed themselves, returned back, and glad were we so to be rid of them. Others also afterwards hearing of men of their own disposition at Pascataway, went from us to them, whereby though our numbers were lessened, yet we accounted ourselves nothing weakened by their removal."

There are three entries from Gov. Winthrop's journal of a later date; the first records what was the first visit to the Bay of the new governor of Piscataqua:

1630. "Captain Neale and other gentlemen came to us [at Boston]; he came in the barque Warwick this summer to Piscataway, sent as governor there for Sir Fernando Gorges and others."

The next gives an idea of the origin of the Virginia corn trade:

March 19, 1632. "The bark Warwick arrives at Winnesemet. Having been at Pascataquack and Salem to sell corn which she brought from Virginia."

The next hints pretty broadly that there was neither wind mill nor water mill in this vicinity:

Oct. 18, 1632. "Captain Camock and a Mr. Vesey a merchant come from Piscataqua in Mr. Neal's pinnace, and bring sixteen hogsheads of corn to the (wind) mill at Boston; they go away in November."

THE PORTSMOUTH CHORAL CLUB.

The concert given by the Portsmouth Choral club on Tuesday evening, Jan. 11th, to aid in the purchase of a piano for the High school in Greenland, was very successful both in substantial results towards the good object aimed at, and in the enjoyment afforded the large audience present. The sum of twenty-five dollars was the balance left for the school after deducting expenses. The Choral club are enthusiastic in praise of their cordial reception and hospitable entertainment, and the sleigh ride under the marshalship of the gallant Harry Beacham was delightful. The programme for the concert was a fine one, and received with great applause.

THEIR BUSINESS INCREASES.

We are glad to hear that the National Oil Dressing Co. are constantly receiving orders for their goods, and that their business is rapidly increasing. We can add our testimony to the excellent quality of their lubricating oil. We have given it a trial on our press and it works admirably, is clean and sweet, and does not gum up.

IT WOULDN'T STOP.

People in the vicinity of Market square at noon on Wednesday, the 12th, were considerably amused by the performance of a white bulldog, which was trying to stop a large, heavy woodsled drawn by a pair of powerful horses, by seizing hold of the rear end of one of the hind runners with his teeth, hanging back with all his might, and growling furiously. The sled did not seem to care, and the horses kept on their steady walk as though there was not a bulldog in the world; and after being dragged for about a hundred and fifty yards the four-legged highwayman gave up the job in evident disgust, and ran off up Market street wearing a very plain look of humiliation. He is probably not accustomed to have his offers of battle treated so cavalierly.

A MEASURED HALF-MILE.

Owners of fast horses may be interested to know that from the residence of Mrs. Eliza A. Oxford, No. 82 Middle stseet, to the junction of Middle street and Richards avenue, is a half-mile, as measured on the large plan of the city; the distance may be a few feet more or less than an exact half-mile, but the possible variation either way is trifling, and the measurement is close enough for the purposes of those who wish to speed their horses over a half-mile road course.

MARITIME NOTES.

The four-masted steam schooner Walker Armington, Capt. Drinkwater, from Baltimore, came up the river on the 12th Albert Walker. She is owned in Rockland, and was built in Bath in 1883. She inst. under her own steam, without a tow. She brings 1400 tons of coal to J. was considerably iced up when she came up to the dock.

The barque Furness Abbey, Capt. J. Touro Marcy, arrived at New York on the 12th inst., from Cebu 120 days, with a cargo of sugar and hemp.

The schooner Lettie Wells, Bunker master, from New York for Boston with a cargo of coal, was in the lower harbor on the 12th inst., and managed to get ashore on Fishing islands. She was hauled off by the steamer James Sampson, without damage.

The entertainment and supper of Strawberry Bank Lodge, I. O. G. T., this evening, will be in Rechabite hall, Market street, and not in Good Templars' hall as before stated.

Bradford J. Varrell, Esq., formerly of York, now a resident of Amesbury, Mass., was in town recently for the purpose of arranging for the refitting of his yacht, to be in readiness for a proposed trip of himself and a party of friends up the St. Lawrence river and into the great lakes the coming summer.

The seventh annual assembly of the Nonpareil Associates, held in Franklin hall on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., was largely attended, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. Lord & Medcalf's orchestra supplied the music.

Holders of French spoliation claims have got another year in which to file them, the senate having passed a bill extending the time of filing one year.

Two oil paintings by Miss Call—game pieces, and very finely executed—are on exhibition at Montgomery's music and art store; also two fruit pieces painted by Capt. E. D. Coffin, one of them being for H. F. Eldredge, Esq.

Rev. William A. Rand will complete twenty years of faithful service as pastor at South Seabrook on the 27th inst. On the Sunday following he will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

A valuable draught horse belonging to Mr. J. Albert Walker was stricken with paralysis of the hind quarters on Wednesday, the 12th inst., while on the street harnessed into one of the coal carts. The animal was gotten into the stone stable on Fleet street, and every endeavor made to aid him, but he shortly died. The horse was valued at $300.

Mr. Herbert M. Kennedy and wife, formerly of this city, but recently of Contention City, Arizona, are now located at Calabassas in the same territory.

The total amount of death claims paid by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York for the week ending Jan. 7th, was $56,910.00. Total amount of endowments paid for the same time, $38,146.95. Among the claims paid in New England was one for Almira E. Hyde, Farmington, N. H., $1033.00. On this claim but $116.20 had been paid by the insured.

Joseph H. Cate, of Rye, died suddenly of heart disease on Sunday morning, Jan. 9th. He was buried on the 11th from the Methodist church in Greenland, of which town he was formerly a resident.

On the morning of the 12th inst. about fifty persons in this city bought tickets to the Boston & Maine Relief Association's ball in Boston that evening, and went up by the early trains. A number of others followed later in the day.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

Wasting of the English Coast.

Englishmen do not, as a rule, realize the perishable and perishing nature of the land on which they live. Although more than fifty years have elapsed since Sir Charles Lyell collected and emphasized the evidences which showed that the structure of the solid rocks might be interpreted by rightly reading the changes going on at the present day, it is doubtful whether one Englishman in 100 knows that many thousands of tons are yearly and regularly subtracted from our country by the action of rain, atmosphere, and rivers, thus steadily reducing the average level of the land, and transporting the old surface of England into the sea.

It may be supposed that a larger proportion, who live near the seashore or annually visit it, are aware of the reality of inroads of the sea and the serious necessity which exists in many places for taking strong measures against the devouring element which at times rages so furiously. But the experience of any given seaside resident, and even of migratory visitors, is limited, and although geologists have from time to time noted evidences of the erosion of the coast, or derived important geological evidence from new exposures of surface by cliff falls, there does not yet exist a complete record from which the average Englishman may know how fast his country is wasting, and which may guide our national and municipal authorities as to the best means of limiting the destruction and making it less injurious if inevitable.—London Times.

Burial at Sea.

Capt. Garric, for thirty years an officer in the trans-Atlantic service, believes that the bodies of passengers who die at sea should be buried at sea, not because of any superstition on the part of the common sailor, but because the health and cheerfulness of all on board demand it.—Harper's Bazar.

It takes 200,000 family Bibles to supply the demand in the United States every year. Besides there are millions of small Bibles distributed.—Atlanta Constitution.

There are in the employ of the government, mostly in the postoffice department, 550 Smiths, 360 Browns, 320 Johnsons, and 270 Joneses.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful patent nostrums.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilages of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and ulcerated as to produce a constant and distress-ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

DR. HAM'S

SURE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA, LIVER AND KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, HEADACHES, WIND IN THE STOMACH OR PAINS IN THE BOWELS, INDIGESTION.

Dr. Ham, Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am. Truly yours,

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

The Accident News tells of two well-known newspaper men of New York who meet the other morning with contrite hearts and big heads, and swore off for six months. At eight o'clock that evening one was sipping a glass of seltzer when the door opened, and No. 2 entered, very intoxicated. He paused to recover his balance, perceived his friend, straightened up, and, advancing to the latter, said with dignity: "I absholve you from your plesh. Drink (hic) all you pleash."

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the sections is effected by it, and that sure and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

Barnum and Forepaugh have united their big shows for the winter season at Madison Square garden, New York, and Doris has declared war on the combination.

A St. Paul, Minn., young man was surprised and shocked the other day. He was walking behind a well known lady of that city, when a ragged little boy asked for five cents to buy a loaf of bread with. She gave it to him. Then he ran away, cut around the block, and soon met her again and told the same tale. Then the young man heard her say, "I gave you the other nickel to buy a loaf of bread, I now give you five cents in admiration of your gigantic gall." The lady moves in "the highest circles of St. Paul society," and that's the reason her remark surprised the listener.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

A Pugilist's Objection.

Some recent denunciations of pugilism have revived in print the speech John L. Sullivan made when the authorities of New York city interfered with his joint debate with Paddy Ryan: "The dudes lay each other up playing football, and the women go out and watch 'em pound each other. They killed two jockeys in one week at the Brighton Beach races; but the man that I licked the worst in Madison Square garden was around drinking rum the same evening as chipper as a bull terrier. It ain't a square deal."—Chicago Tribune.

—A man in Wisconsin was reported in a newspaper as being "murdered" instead of "married." When he called at the office to have the blunder corrected the editor said he thought the error was a very trifling one; that there wasn't much difference anyway, but he would make a correction if he thought it was necessary. It is supposed that the editor has been married at least two years.

A Portrait of Henry Clay.

Mr. Clay was tall and broad shouldered, without being bulky or fleshy, and when at all excited was of stately and commanding presence. Though his long limbs were loosely put together, yet his manner was neither awkward nor uncouth, nor even embarrassed; on the contrary, it was easy and natural, and wholly unpretentious—it was the easy, nonchalant air of a man accustomed to the ways of the world, and conscious that he was at least the peer of the foremost in every crowd in which he happened to be. Indeed, my own opinion is that he was never in the slightest degree, even in his early youth, awed by the presence of any one; he never seemed to feel, and my belief is he never felt, that he was ever at any time in the presence of any one superior to himself. And, therefore, he was not only strikingly at ease, but at home, wherever he was, whether among his neighbors or strangers, whether at a social gathering or at the bar, or as the speaker of the house of representatives, or on the floor of the senate; and, in my judgment, he would have felt equally at home at a conference with kings and emperors.

He seemed to have not only an instinctive consciousness of his own strength, but of his own special capacity for leadership. Therefore, he would take the lead to himself as if unconsciously, whatever the occasion, and as naturally and as gracefully as if it were his birthright; and few there were, if any, who ever seemed to be surprised that he had taken the place for which nature seemed to have designed him. Indeed, without any appearance of self-assertion on his part, and as if unconsciously to himself, there was a something in his presence and his manner that gave to him an authoritative air, and made him for the time the central, the commanding figure of the group about him.—The Century.

Antelope on the Run.

On the plains there was, and is, no prettier spectacle than antelope. They run. They wheel and gaze curiously at you. They stamp their forefeet in rage. They bark doglike. They wheel and run as though under command of officers. Single bucks stand sentinel like on hills or hover near the small herds that still frequent the old feeding grounds. All of them act as though they were uncontrolled, except by fear. But after the animals have been closely observed for many days it is seen that their movements are almost always the result of intelligent action on the part of the bucks which control the herd. The leader of all herds of the deer family are intelligent females. A doe is invariably the leader of a herd of deer or antelope, and a cow always leads a band of elk. She selects the feeding ground. She chooses the trail to be traveled. She starts at the approach of danger and cuts out the pace of the running. The bucks and bulls bring up the rear. This female leadership arose, probably, from the fact that the females, the mothers, would not, except in case of imminent danger, run faster than the calves or fawns could follow. There was another reason. The attacks of carnivorous animals, which followed by scent, almost always came from the rear, and the heavily antlered bulls and bucks remained in the rear, because there was where the danger was greatest.—Frank Wilkeson in New York Sun.

A Singularly Cruel Sport.

A singularly cruel sport, called "goat," is affected by the Afghan cavalry, according to a correspondent with the Afghan boundary commission, who writes: "It consists of one man seizing a goat and riding off with it, followed by all the rest, who try to get hold of the unfortunate animal, and tear off as big a piece as they can. This continues until the goat is torn to pieces, and the man who has obtained the largest portion wins the game. The game is played for a certain stated time, and the man who has the goat at the moment time is called is the winner. The way the men playing use their whips on each other and on their own and their adversaries' horses is a caution. The game, as usually played, must be a very cruel one, as the goat is seized while alive, but at Shadian the poor beast was killed beforehand—a much more merciful proceeding. The man who carries the goat has a bad time of it, and it is not an easy matter to hold it on the saddle by putting the hind legs under one thigh and going off at a gallop, with the carcass banging the flanks of his horse.—Chicago Herald.

In a West African Village.

One product, however, this parched soil yields in inexhaustible abundance, and that is dust. In every street, in every square it lies piled ankle deep, ready for the use of any wind that may arise. The first gust that stirs this miniature Sahara ushers in a scene beyond the power of words to describe. Wagons and oxen loom through the driving storm dim and spectral as nightmares. Ladies hold down their veils or the curtains of their litters with the grasp of desperation. Foot passengers come charging blindly past with lowered heads, pressing shadowy hands to half seen faces, while here and there and everywhere the viewless tormentor leaps and dances like a mocking demon, meeting you at every turn with a scientific roundhand whirl which sends the hot, prickly dust tingling through every fold of your clothing, making you as gritty as a matchbox from head to foot and choking your breath till you have not even the consolation of cursing.—Africa Cor. New York Times.

The Way to Make Sales.

An agent for parlor organs says it pays to give an organ outright to some one farmer in a neighborhood where there are no instruments. As soon as it is known that he has one every other farmer's wife exclaims: "Well, if that isn't cheek! If that family can buy an organ we shall certainly have one, and we'll get a better one than they did!" From fifteen to twenty sales are the result.—Detroit Free Press.

Having spacious and cool accommodations and large experience he solicits p[illegible] his line.

A remedy resting on the basis of intrinsic worth demands the confidence of all. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is known and used most satifactorily throughout the land, as is attested by its great sales. Your druggists keep it.

Robert A. Steele, a commission merchant of St. Louis, Mo., was murdered because he asked a man to pay him $15.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Because of scarcity of coal, owing to the strike of coal handlers at Jersey city, Havemeyer & Elder's sugar refinery in Brooklyn, N. Y., has shut down. About 800 hands are thrown out of employment.

Great Domes.

St. Peter's, Rome, 330 feet high; Duomo, Florence, 310 feet; St. Paul's, London, 215 feet; St. Sophie, Constantinople, 201 feet, but towering above them all is the deserved repute of the G. O. The Congressional Vote.

At a meeting of the governor and council, Jan. 13th, counsel for Hon. Martin A. Haynes requested a recount of the votes cast for congressman in the first district. This application was opposed by counsel for Hon. Luther F. McKinney, who by the returns was elected by a small plurality. The subject is being considered, and it is probable that the court will be asked to give an opinion as to the duty of the governor and council in the matter.

Results of the Strike.

The strike among the coal handlers of the coal shipping ports, which has already resulted in an advance in the retail price of coal of from fifty cents to $1 per ton in New York, Providence and other cities, is watched with an increasing degree of interest and even anxiety. If this strike is prolonged, and the difficulty of procuring coal continues as it has so far since the strike commenced, the results of such a condition of things cannot but be disastrous and far-reaching. A sugar refinery in Brooklyn has already been compelled to shut down on account of the scarcity of coal; the effect of this will be not only to throw about 800 hands out of employment, but also to increase the cost of sugar to the consumer. The possibility, and even probability, that various manufacturing concerns, owing to the difficulty of procuring coal will be compelled to do likewise, and that the cost to the purchasers of their products will be increased, tends to create an unsettled feeling which can be readily understood.

The Son of an Irish Lord.

"Society" in Pittsburg, Pa., is much exercised over the discovery that Reginold Talbot, son of Earl Talbot and in consequence a society pet, who has left town after honoring scores of Pittsburg lion hunters by accepting their loans in sums of from $5 to $1000, is also Charles Talbot, a near relative of the earl of Shrewsbury and a member of the Queen's Guards; also Hugh L. Courtenay, alias Lord Courtenay, alias Sir Henry Vane of Her Majesty's Life Guards, alias Lord Beresford, under which variety of names he has electrified the "first society" of Montreal, New York, Norfolk, Baltimore and other places, by mingling with the common people of this country—that is, the upper classes of the common people—with most charming condescension, just like an ordinary mortal.

Gaining Even in January.

It is a settled fact in daily journalism that daily papers are usually lighter in circulation in January than in any other month in the year. In spite of this fact, however, the Boston Daily Globe is gaining this month at a rapid rate. People in cities and large towns who have never taken the Daily Globe are ordering it of their newsdealers. In the smaller towns people are subscribing for the Daily Globe in large numbers, the price being only 50 cents per month. The fact is, people are becoming convinced by the thousands that the Boston Globe is the best newspaper in this section.

The Boston Sunday Globe is also still gaining. Next Sunday among its other popular features will be a funny illustrated article on people who have made New Year's resolutions.

...e mob of striking coal handlers ...y city and Hoboken made a savagely brutal attack on non-union workmen at the Weehawken docks on the 12th inst., shockingly beating with clubs all they could catch, and throwing overboard several, who however were rescued from drowning. The ruffians finally departed, after giving warning that they would murder any workingman who dared attempt to resume work without their permission.

MARITIME NOTES.

Four schooners are wintering at Call's wharf, inside the Noble's island bridge, namely, the Chilion, Lizzie C. Rich, G. W. Raitt and Satellite; the latter hauled through the draw on Thursday, and made fast outside the G. W. Raitt.

The schooner John Lenthall has hauled up at Union wharf for the remainder of the winter.

A schooner which recently arrived at Cutler, Me., from Gloucester, reported that on the 7th inst., forty miles off Portland, she passed a wrecked schooner, full of water and with her masts and other wreckage floating alongside. She picked up a board with the name "Golden State" on it, but learned nothing concerning the crew.

Six of the twelve locomotives to be built by the Portland company for the Boston & Maine railroad are for passenger service, and will be ready for the summer travel. The other six are to be freight engines.

The six o'clock morning train over the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad, on the 12th inst., struck a charcoal team at a crossing just beyond Plaistow and killed two horses attached to the wagon. The horses were carried on the track a distance of 300 feet before the train was stopped. The wagon was demolished. Two men had charge of the team, but being on foot they escaped injury.

Hon. Edward C. Moody, of York, carries a jack-knife which was given him by the state of Maine when he was a member of the famous Gardiner council. The blades are nearly all broken, but Mr. Moody still carries it as a souvenir.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros for rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a large proportion of those who have these diseases.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

Allow me to say a few words in favor of Athlophoros. Having been troubled with rheumatism for several years I had tried many remedies but with no satisfactory results. I was at last persuaded to try a bottle of Athlophoros and I was surprised at the immediate relief it afforded. I would highly recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatic trouble.

T. D. PHELPS.

Leominster, Mass., May 13, 1886.

I think Athlophoros is a grand, good medicine. I used not quite one bottle for neuralgia in the shoulders and neck, and experienced great relief, the pain subsided and in twenty-four hours disappeared altogether. I recommend Athlophoros to any and everybody afflicted with neuralgia, for it will kill that disease. MRS. FREEMAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 3

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Common Council, Thursday evening, Jan 13th, President Crowley in the chair.

Present the full board, with the exception of one member.

Records of the last meeting were read and approved.

The committee on bills on their second reading reported on the bill fixing the salary of the city solicitor, recommending its passage; and on the bill authorizing the sale of the city farm, recommending that it be considered by the council in committee of the whole. Report accepted.

The bill fixing the salary of the city solicitor was passed, and sent to the aldermen for concurrence.

On motion the council went into committee of the whole, Councilman Stevens in the chair. In the discussion which ensued, the general sentiment expressed was one of opposition to the bill for the sale of the city farm. It was finally voted to report in favor of laying the bill on the table. The committee then rose, and President Crowley resumed the chair.

Chairman Stevens reported the recommendation of the committee, which was accepted and adopted.

Adjourned for one week.

GOOD TEMPLARS' FESTIVAL.

No entertainment given this winter has been more heartily enjoyed by the participants, than the social gathering of the members of Strawberry Bank lodge, I. O. G. T., and their friends, in Rechabite hall on Thursday evening last. The hall was filled with a happy throng, and an excellent supper was served from six o'clock to eight, and was followed for an hour and a half by a program of instrumental and vocal music, recitations and readings, the whole being so pleasing that all hands thought the end came too soon. The musical part of the exercises were arranged and directed by Mr. John Parkins, and added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

A. O. U. W.

At the regular meeting of Sagamore Lodge, No. 11, Ancient Order of United Workman, held in their hall Jan. 10th, the following officers were elected for the year 1887:

P. M. W., A. P. Wendell;
M. W., S. B. Yeaton;
Foreman, H. C. Hewitt;
Overseer, J. S. Vogler;
Recorder, W. S. Goodwin;
Financier, E. S. Johnson;

I. W., Michael Crowley;
O. W., Geo. O. Wilson.

OVER-PRODUCTION OF DOGS.

It begins to look as though the days of the traditional dog were about over. Our Maine legislature will be asked to pass a law to raise the tax from $1 to $2 and $5 per dog, and to punish by a fine of $50 and costs, or thirty days in jail, the party who harbors or allows unlicensed dogs about his place. The city government of Portsmouth, N. H., has under consideration a ponderous ordinance of fourteen sections almost identical with the foregoing, except that the fine for harboring unlicensed curs is placed at $5.

It is high time a move was made. The dog business is being very much overdone. In Portsmouth they are so numerous as to become an annoyance to citizens, and a common nuisance. In this state there are more dogs than there are legal voters. There are some noble animals that are worth many times the price of the tax, but the mass of them are no-account, mangy curs of villainous habits, that a vigorous law would effectually clean out. Less dogs would mean more hogs, and a saving of thousand of dollars to Maine sheep raisers. — Biddeford Journal.

VITAL STATISTICS OF PORTSMOUTH, FOR THE YEAR 1886.

The following summary of the births, marriages and deaths in this city during the year 1886 is compiled from the reports as published monthly in the Chronicle. By this record there is an apparent excess of deaths over births, to the number of seventy-two; but the actual excess, if any, is no doubt much less than this. No burial can take place without a permit from the city clerk, which ensures the registration of every death; but while the law is just as strict in its demands regarding the registration of births, children are born without a permit from the clerk, and experience shows that it is only in rare instances that births unattended by a regular physician are reported to the recording officer. Occasionally the announcement of a birth is brought in months after it occurs, by some person ignorant of the law; and it is probable that were every birth reported, the list would nearly or quite equal that of deaths in number. The marriage record is probably correct.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEBLE, Salem, Mass.

DR. HAM, March 2, 1886.
Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Civilizing the Monkey.

Perhaps the only attempts which have been made to civilize the monkey have been in Malabar, India. A fine species, indigenous in that quarter, is the neilgherry langur. The natives there have a fanning-machine, called the punka. In other days the punka—which consists of a movable frame covered with canvas and suspended from the ceiling—was kept in motion by a slave pulling a cord. An English officer conceived the idea of teaching the langur to do the work. He took one of the species and tied its hands to the cord, while, by means of another cord, the machine was kept in motion. The movement of the cord was up and down, and the animal saw the motion of the machine. Its master patted its head and fed it with candy, and the langur soon learned to think it fun to work the machine. When I was in Malabar securing specimens of this species, I saw thousands of them working the punka, the Indians having immediately put the animals in captivity when they saw their utility.—The Argonaut.

The White House Painting of Arthur.

Mr. Andrews, the artist, who has just returned from Paris, has been credited with painting the portrait of Arthur which hangs in the White House. He did only the retouching of the portrait to satisfy Arthur's taste. The original picture was painted by another noted artist, and though its head was very good, the body was too small. It represented that of a man weighing about 150 pounds, whereas Arthur weighed over 200. When this artist died, leaving this and a picture of Grant as the sole inheritance of his widow, Andrews, in order to aid the widow, agreed to repaint the lower part of the picture. He did it by laying a glass over the picture from the shoulders down, and then painting a new body upon this glass to fit the head of the picture. When it was completed he showed it to Arthur. Arthur liked it and gave him directions to change the picture to correspond, and to paint out the rose which was lying on the floor at his feet. Andrews did this, and Arthur took the picture.—Cleveland Leader.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads to to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful experiments.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. Neglected or improperly treated it has manifest dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting, affected and in many instances, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

JOSEPH P. MORSE,
Fire, Life & Accident Insurance Agent and Broker.

A Chance for Health

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood fertilizer and depurent, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, they who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and that more and rapid physical decay, which a chronic obstruction of the functions of the system produce, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

George B. Frost, a rich citizen of Cairo, Ill., has worn the same hat for twenty-six years. The other day, while he was getting shaved, some one stole it and put a new one in its place, and Mr. Frost got out warrants for four or five persons, paid a private detective $15 to work up the case, and will do his best to teach his neighbors to mind their own business.

Miles Sweeney, a prominent merchant of Holy Cross, Iowa, went to Dubuque on the 12th inst. In the evening he took the train for home, and as the train started, he encountered two men on the platform who lifted him from his feet and threw him from the car. They proceeded to beat him until he became unconscious, and then robbed him of $14,000. The robbers are yet at large.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

At Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 13th, the jury in the case of Jennie Hedick, charged with abetting in the murder of William Donahue, her cousin, by Fred Priestly, her lover, returned a verdict finding her guilty as an accessory before the fact. Her sentence has not yet been pronounced.

Ex-Alderman Arthur A. McQuade, one of the boodle aldermen of New York, went to Sing Sing prison on a seven years sentence for bribery, Jan 14th, all attempts to secure a stay of execution having failed.

Better than Quinine.

Quinine is not only an expensive medicine, it is a harmful one if taken too freely and too often. Of course the world insists on taking great quantities of it for fever and ague. Some persons think nothing else will cure fever and ague. We say positively, and testimonials back us up, that Brandreth's Pills have often cured bad cases of fever and ague when quinine has failed. Brandreth's Pills break up the worst attack.

This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

Old Time Grewsome Memorials.

When I was a youngster there was one almost invariable work of art in every family that had ever lost one or more members. That was a picture made out of the hair of the deceased. The designs of these grewsome memorials were always the same. A man or woman, made of hair, was represented mourning at a grave made of hair, under a hairy weeping willow. Sometimes even the sky and the distant landscape (which invariably included a church and a very proper path leading straight to its door) were also constructed of the same material. At others they were limned upon the card board with water colors. Watch guards, necklaces, ear rings and brooches were also made of hair, and the business of contriving these devices must have been an active one.

The introduction of the mortuary photograph chromo sent the hair artist to the wall, but the species is by no means extinct yet. I met one the other evening who was taking home the memorial of the whole family of a widow lady of wealth. He told me that there were twenty odd people represented in the material employed in this masterwork. It was certainly melancholy enough to remind one of twenty odd funerals. I tried to find out what such a feat of genius was worth, but he declined to be interviewed. He hinted at hundreds of dollars, but whether this meant what it was worth in his estimation, or what he was to be paid for it, I could not define.—Alfred Trumble in New York News.

Cost of Theatres in Berlin.

The cost of the royal theatres in Berlin, including the opera house, during the past twelve months, has reached the sum of 2,500,000 marks. The emperor's yearly contribution out of his privy purse is 450,000 marks; but in addition to this he also pays the deficit, which is very considerable. The non-remunerative portions of the royal theatre system are the opera and the ballet. The legitimate stage always yields a handsome surplus. All the members of the royal family have their boxes, for which they regularly pay the due annual rent, although some of them do not once enter the theatres during the season. For every special imperial performance the emperor invariably pays the whole cost. These performances take place at the visits of foreign princes to Berlin, great parades and public celebrations. The failure of the opera to pay its way is due in great part to the tremendous wages of singing folk. Herr Niemann, the tenor, has to appear for forty-eight evenings during six months, and for each evening he has an honorarium of 750 marks. This equals 36,000 marks a year.—New York Sun.

The Parrot and the Monkey.

A parrot was swinging in her cage under a tree when a monkey owned at the next house came over to boast that he had the wisest mistress in the world. The parrot squawked and cackled and resented the allegation, and added:

"No one can compare with my own mistress for true wisdom."

The subject was being hotly disputed, when down flew the crow, and it was agreed to leave it to him.

"Why, ladies and gentlemen," said the crow, "the fact that neither of them has even good common sense is proved off-hand by their keeping the likes of you for pets!"

Moral—Our defenders are sometimes the best witnesses against us.—Detroit Free Press.

Anomalies of Smell.

Peculiarities of the sense of smell form a subject of investigation by Mr. Arthur Mitchell, of Edinburgh. Among those observed thus far is that of a person who smells nothing from a bed of mignonette, and of another who perceives no odor from a bean field, the sense being otherwise acute and discriminating in both cases. Another person can discover no difference between certain odors which are very different to others, while there are persons who are sickened by certain odors which usually give pleasure. A considerable number of persons seem to be altogether destitute of the sense of smell, and on the other hand there are a few who have the sense very strongly developed.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Bird's Eye View of the Earth.

If it were possible to rise above the atmosphere which surrounds the earth we should see nothing but an intense and sharply defined ball of fire, while everything else would be wrapped in total darkness. There could be no diffusion of light without an atmosphere or some similar medium for it to act upon; but if the air about us extended to a height of 700 miles the rays of the sun could not penetrate it, and we should be left in darkness. At a depth of 700 feet in the ocean the light ceases altogether, one-half of the light being absorbed in passing through only seven feet of purest water.—Frank Leslie's.

Tar Smoke for Diphtheria.

A New York physician declares that tar smoke is the best thing in the world for diphtheria. It dissolves the fibrous exudations that choke the patient and gives relief almost instantly. The plan has been tried by many doctors in New York and found most efficacious. It consists in closing up a room so that none of the smoke can escape, and then burning a quantity of pitch on a red hot shovel or stove.—Chicago Times.

Electricity in Surgery.

Dr. M. J. Roberts, of New York, after drilling holes in bone to investigate the existence of diseased conditions, introduces a small incandescent lamp of half-candle power into the opening, and by this means illuminates the cavity.—Detroit Free Press.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other Inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured.

E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Kinks, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.

GRUBS, Pimples, Skin Blemishes, and Baby Humors, cured by CUTICURA SOAP.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly has a co-consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distress ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

JOHN S. TILTON'S

HARNESS DISPENSATORY

NO. 18 CONGRESS STREET

It takes over one hundred pairs of gloves to assuage the chief of the Brooklyn officials over the death of an alderman, whose life might have been saved by a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

—"So you have got twins at your house?" said Mrs Bezumbe to little Johnny Samuelson. "Yes, mam, two of 'em." "What are you going to call them?" "Thunder and Lightning." "Why, those are strange names to call children." "Well, that's what pa called 'em as soon as he heard they were in the house."

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

—Husband—"My dear, that is a long motto you are working." Wife—"Yes, John, 'While the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return.'" "Is it to be hung in the vestibule of the church, my dear?" "No, John; I'll hang it on the chandelier in the hall."

A Bank Thief Captured.

A despatch of the 13th from Winnipeg, Manitoba, says: "Howard T. Blackstone, the defaulting clerk of the Canal national bank of Portland, Me., was arrested here last night on a charge of forgery by C. M. Warmell, sheriff of Oxford county, Me., and St. Paul detectives. Blackstone fled from Portland in November last, after defrauding the bank out of $76,000. He secured this amount largely by fictitious notes, which he cashed when acting in the place of teller, and his depredations extended over a period of two years. The money was all spent in speculation. Warmell tracked him by following Mrs. Blackstone from Portland to Winnipeg, where Blackstone went under the alias of Cox."

Immense Fall of Rock.

A despatch of Jan. 13 h from Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "Over 223,000 cubic yards of limestone and slate rock has fallen out of the bank of Niagara river near the Horseshoe falls on the Canadian side. The mass fell with a tremendous crash, which was heard and felt for miles around. The break has considerably changed the appearance of the bank, and now the dark chasm can be seen behind the falls from the bank above. The mass of rock detached was sixty feet wide by over one hundred long and 170 deep. Its fall from the main rock has left a perpendicular wall. The tremendous weight of ice accumulated during the past three weeks, with the steady frosty weather and low water, was the cause of the break."

A New Book.

Miss Amanda M. Douglas has added another captivating volume to her first list of novels, which will soon be issued by her publishers, Messrs. Lee & Shepard, Boston. The book is uniform in its general style and make-up with Miss Douglas' previous works of fiction, and bears the title, "Foes of Her Household." The story is written in the much-admired vein of composition which characterizes all the author's books, rendering them peculiarly attractive and original. Miss Douglas has a rare faculty of using the purest English to express her thoughts, and, at times, in developing her ingeniously-planned stories, becomes impressive, and even eloquent, in depicting the phases of human character which she aims to portray to the reader's mind. "Foes of Her Household" with be found to be equal to the other now familiar productions which have emanated from this gifted novelist's pen, in everything which is required to make a readable and an elevating piece of fiction. In ingenuity of plot, in finish of composition, ann in absolute power to fascinate her readers, Miss Douglas has achieved new trumphs in "Foes of Her Household."

THE CONCORD RAILROAD.

"It is now hinted," says the Boston Traveller, "that the recent big advance in Concord railroad stock is due to the shrewd tactics of those who have in charge the disposition of something like 200 shares of the stock, which, it is understood, was held by the late J. W. Johnson, proprietor of the Quincy house. It is a noticeable fact that the price has been steadily bid up without bringing out more than fifty shares at a time, and it looks very much as if the block in question was being let out in this way in order to get a good price for it. On the other hand, intimations come from good sources that a very big "deal" is behind the movement, and that Boston & Maine people could tell, if they were so disposed, all about it. And still further, and in the same line of argument, come rumors that a lease of the Boston & Lowell by the Concord road in the near future is by no means an impossibility. It is very well understood in local railroad circles that the Boston & Lowell company would not object to a lease of its property upon a fair rental, and as a prominent railroad official said to-day, 'the Concord road is just as liable to get it as the Boston & Maine.' The value of such an arrangement, in connection with a close alliance with the Central Vermont system, is readily apparent, and when the wealth and power of the Concord road is taken into consideration, such an arrangement is by no means 'the tail-wagging-the-dog' affair that it might seem at first. The situation is not just clear as yet, but altogether the symptoms at present, internal and external, all now very strongly indicate that important changes in the system of railroads in northern New England are likely to materialize during the current year, and indeed, perhaps, much sooner than the general public anticipates."

A despatch of the 13th from Fortress Monroe, Va., says: The strike at Newport News has virtually ended, and the Old Dominion line is handling freight with Norfolk laborers, and the Chesapeake & Ohio with men from other points. The troops will remain some days to protect property.

Charles B. Farwell was nominated for United States senator by the republican caucus of the Illinois legislature, to succeed Gen. Logan.

It is now proved that Robert E. Sproule, the American who was hanged Sept. 28th at Victoria, B. C., for an alleged murder, was wholly innocent of the crime charged against him. Just before Sproule was hung, our government asked the provincial authorities to grant a reprieve on the ground that evidence to prove his innocence could be adduced, but the request was disregarded.

The German Reichstag on the 14th voted down the government army bill, and Bismarck immediately read a message dissolving the body.

T. J. Cluverius, who seduced and then murdered his cousin, Fannie L. Madison, was hanged at Richmond, Va., Jan. 14th.

Miss Cauldwell, of Washington, who recently gave $300,000 to found a Roman Catholic university, denies that she will enter a convent.

Mrs. Catherine McCoy, who lives in Huntingdon county, Pa., and who has reached the hale old age of eighty-six, claims that she has undisputable evidence that she is a second cousin of Gen. Washington.

There were eleven births, four marriages and twelve deaths in Greenland during the year 1886.

Ladies who wear dead birds on their hats are notified by the Bee, of Lynn, Mass., that a young lady of that city was lately poisoned by arsenic in a peculiar manner. During a recent rain storm she was exposed while out riding, and the arsenic from two little birds on her bonnet was rinsed down her face, causing eruptions such as would naturally result from arsenic. A physician was summoned, and the lady is now out of danger. She no longer believes in adorning bonnets with stuffed birds.

A STARTLING FACT.

It is not commonly known that a large proportion of the rheumatism and neuralgia extant is traceable directly to the diseased condition or imperfect action of the kidneys and liver; therefore a remedy which cures the resulting disease must have found and smitten the first cause. Many persons using Athlophoros for rheumatism and neuralgia have been surprised to find that chronic disorders of the liver and kidneys have also been greatly relieved and they have written for an explanation. The fact is, that the remedy acts directly on these organs, cleansing them from all irritating substances and regulating their action. Taken in connection with Athlophoros Pills this is, without exception, the most valuable kidney and liver remedy in the world, and will cure a larger proportion of those who have these diseases.

Dover, N. H., March 23, 1886.

Allow me to say a few words in favor of Athlophoros. Having been troubled with rheumatism for several years I had tried many remedies but with no satisfactory results. I was at last persuaded to try a bottle of Athlophoros and I was surprised at the immediate relief it afforded. I would highly recommend it to any one troubled with rheumatic trouble.

T. D. PHELPS.

Leominster, Mass., May 13, 1886.

I think Athlophoros is a grand, good medicine. I used not quite one bottle for neuralgia in the shoulders and neck, and experienced great relief, the pain subsided and in twenty-four hours disappeared altogether. I recommend Athlophoros to any and everybody afflicted with neuralgia, for it will kill that disease. MRS. FREEMAN.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 8

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Should be kept constantly at hand, for use in emergencies of the household. Many a mother, startled in the night by the ominous sounds of Croup, finds the little sufferer, with red and swollen face, gasping for air. In such cases Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. Emma Gedney, 159 West 128 st., New York, writes: "While in the country, last winter, my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with Croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was tried in small and frequent doses, and, in less than half an hour, the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the Pectoral saved my darling's life." Mrs. Chas. B. Landon, Guilford, Conn., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Saved My Life,

and also the life of my little son. As he is troubled with Croup, I dare not be without this remedy in the house." Mrs. J. Gregg, Lowell, Mass., writes: "My children have repeatedly taken Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Coughs and Croup. It gives immediate relief, followed by cure." Mrs. Mary E. Evans, Scranton, Pa., writes: "I have two little boys, both of whom have been, from infancy, subject to violent attacks of Croup. About six months ago we began using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it acts like a charm. In a few minutes after the child takes it, he breathes easily and rests well. Every mother ought to know what a blessing I have found in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral." Mrs. Wm. C. Reid, Freehold, N. J., writes: "In our family, Ayer's medicines have been blessings for many years. In cases of Colds and Coughs, we take

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

and the inconvenience is soon forgotten."

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Southeast wind, shifting to westerly, colder, snow.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 12 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

THE STORM.

The worst snow storm of the season, up to date, commenced quite gently about ten o'clock Thursday evening, but increased to a strong gale before morning, with a quite heavy fall of dry, mealy snow, which drifted as badly as possible wherever it had a chance, and made life a burden to the pedestrian, and worse than that to the man who was forced to ride. Very few people were to be seen on the streets, Friday, and so far as the volume of business transacted was concerned, most of the stores might as well have kept their shutters up for the day.

The "no school" signal was sounded by the fire alarm at eight o'clock in the morning and again at 11:30, the blustering storm and snow-covered sidewalks not supplying favorable conditions for the attendance of the children at school.

The trains over the Boston & Maine railroad were considerably delayed, the one from Boston due here at 9:50 arriving after eleven o'clock, and the Portland and North Conway train, due at eleven o'clock, getting in shortly before one in the afternoon, and looking when it arrived more like a long snowdrift on wheels, than a railway train. The train from Concord, due here at 10:10 A. M., arrived about four o'clock in the afternoon. The afternoon trains on the Boston & Maine were also far behind time; and hardly anything was accomplished in the line of moving freight trains on either of the roads. Card's Newcastle & Portsmouth express wagon did not get through to this city on its morning trip. The evening trains were about an hour late.

Mr. Boyd, the new music teacher for the public schools, had a meeting of the teachers appointed to take place at the city rooms in the afternoon, but only one teacher, a lady, braved the weather and made an apppearance.

The public installation of officers, banquet and other entertainment, appointed to be given by Strawberry Bank Encampment, I. O. O. F., on Friday evening, in celebration of the consolidation of Mt. Sinai and Strawberry Bank Encampments, was postponed on account of the adverse weather, to Monday evening, the 17th.

BURGLARY.

Some time during the night of Thursday, the 13th inst., the residence of Mrs. Sarah J. Levers, corner of Cabot and Austin streets, was broken into, and $25 in money stolen. An entrance to the building was effected through a shed window which had been left unfastened. A bolt on a door leading to an inner room was forced off, and the burglar took out of a pocket in a dress a pocket book containing $25. The pocket book was found on the floor Friday morning, empty, and other articles were generally scattered about.

MATRIMONIAL.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman W. Colby at 619 Union street was the scene of an exceedingly pleasant home wedding at 1.30 o'clock this afternoon. The parties to the Union were Miss Lizzie A. Colby, neice of Mr. Colby, at whose residence the glad event transpired, and daughter of Alfred Colby of Dunbarton, and the gentleman was Albert H. Sides of Portsmouth, in which city he holds the position of assistant postmaster, and has been an employe of the post office for 16 years. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Heizer, and was witnessed by a happy assembly of relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties Hearty congratulations followed the solemnization of the marriage, and rare gifts in large numbers and of great richness and beauty were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Sides. A wedding repast was subsequently served, and at 5 o'clock the bridal pair exchanged cordial greetings with relatives and friends and left on the 5.39 train for a brief wedding trip. returning from which they will take up their residence at Portsmouth. Many not represented at the wedding will wish Mr. and Mrs. Sides the full measure of happiness and prosperity in time to come.—Manchester Union, Jan. 13th.

Mr. Will A. Mitchell, who was united in marriage on New Year's eve at Minneapolis, Minn., with Miss Ellen J. Lovejoy of Stowe, Vt., a notice of which wedding we have previously published, is a native of Newburyport, his father and grandfather having been natives of Kittery. Mr. Mitchell is the Minneapolis correspondent of several of the large papers in the east, having long been a resident of that city; he paid an extended visit to this section of the country about three years ago, and we had much pleasure in making his acquaintance.

GRAND MINSTREL SHOW.

Wilson & Rankin's minstrels will give an entertainment in Music hall on Wednesday evening of next week. An entertainment was given by this organization in Dallas recently, and the Evening Chronicle next day spoke of it as follows:

Last night the greatest success of the season was scored. Some of the features are, strange as it may seem in a minstrel show, absolutely new. The most striking, perhaps, consists of the "Paviors of Paris," who find music in stones. The whole programme is replete with freshness of incident and treatment.

This is regarded as the finest troupe in the country, every member of it being a first-class man in his specialty, and fun of the cleverest kind affords entertainment for an audience far above the average of minstrel patrons.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Lizzie J. Call, Call master, from Baltimore for New Haven, Conn., arrived in New London harbor on the 12th inst.

The steam tug Seguin, bound from Bath for Boston, to tow to Wiscasset the schooner Charles L. Mitchell, put into this port for a harbor on Friday morning, and came up to Sise's wharf.

There is little fear of a coal famine in this city on account of the strikes of dock laborers in Jersey City and Hoboken. The steamer Reading, Smith master, from Philadelphia with 1660 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, arrived in the lower harbor Friday morning; and at the same time two schooners which brought 3416 tons were completing their discharge at the Concord railroad wharf.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. R. C. Sides, Frank Sides, and James Sides, of this city, were registered at the Windsor hotel, Manchester, on Friday, Jan. 14th.

The residence of Mr. J. Albert Walker and family, on Islington street, is to be closed for the winter, which season they will pass at the Vendome, Boston.

Col. John Pender of this city was elected a director in the Manufacturers & Merchants Mutual Insurance Co. of Concord, on Thursday, Jan. 13th.

The Salem (Mass.) Telegram of the 13th inst. said: "Mr. Joseph M. Parsons, Miss Carrie Parsons, Mrs. M. A. Fernald of Portsmouth, and Miss Zettie Fernald, will leave Salem at three o'clock this afternoon for Tarpan Springs, Florida. The party will remain in Florida during the winter. We wish them both pleasure and health in their journeyings in the sunny south."

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the worst aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Littell's Living Age.

IN 1887 THE LIVING AGE enters upon its forty-fourth year, having met with continuous commendation and success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double-column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted,

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of Literature, Science, Politics, and Art, find expression in the Periodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

Opinions.

"To have THE LIVING AGE is to hold the keys of the entire world of thought, of scientific investigation, psychological research, critical note, of poetry and romance. . . It has never been so bright, so comprehensive, so diversified in interest, as it is to-day."—Boston Traveller.

"It is one of the publications that intelligent people regard as practically indispensable. From its pages one learns what the world is thinking about. . It is an education in itself, as well as an entertainment."—Hartford Courant.

"It contains nearly all the good literature of the time. . There is nothing noteworthy in science, art, literature, biography, philosophy, or religion, that cannot be found in it. . It is a library in itself."—The Churchman, New York.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never contains a dry or valueless page."—New York Tribune.

"Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. The reader is kept well abreast of the current thought of the age."—Boston Journal.

"Foremost of the eclectic periodicals."—N. Y. World.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It enables its readers to keep fully abreast of the best thought and literature of civilization."—Christian Advocate, Pittsburgh.

"It has become indispensable."—New York Observer.

"It keeps well up its reputation for being the best periodical in the world."—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.

When the Opportunity Comes.

The pre-eminence of Webster, Clay, Calhoun and other "giants in those days" overshadowed men who would otherwise have proved themselves masters. Ability of the first class is now dwarfed and cramped for similar reasons. Capable leaders will spring up when given an opportunity. How many of the great generals of the late war were known outside of limited circles a quarter of a century ago? Whenever needed the man and the opportunity will step forward and shake hands.—Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette.

The death list of the past sixteen months includes these nine men who have been presidents, vice-presidents or candidates before the people for one of these offices: Gen. Grant, Gen. Foot Racing in Japan.

Foot racing is another amusement which is in popular favor. In that country for several centuries whenever a nobleman rode on horseback he was attended by a footman, who was expected to keep up with his master, and, as a matter of fact, no matter how far or how fast he rode, the footman did keep pace with him. These footmen, from generation to generation, developed marvelous speed and endurance. A horse can beat them for an hour or two, but there is no horse that day after day can beat these professional footmen. There were thousands of these men who did nothing but care for the horses of the gentry and run before them along the highways. From the pride in the speed and endurance of these runners came the interest in foot racing. Race meetings were arranged, programmes issued, prizes offered, and on the day appointed these pleasure loving people would turn out of cities, towns and villages in crowds to see the sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

'Tis a Mad World, My Masters.

Why do we always talk about putting on a coat and vest? Who puts on a coat before the vest? We also say shoes and stockings. What's the matter with us, anyhow?—Philadelphia Call.

The new 30-inch gas main at Pittsburg is said to be the largest ever laid. It is used to conduct natural gas into the city.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Isley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before I ever saw him. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

JOSEPH P. MORSE,

Fire, Life & Accident Insurance Agent and Broker.

Being taken with a severe crick in the back, I was induced to try Athlophoros, and am happy to say that in twenty minutes I was improved and in two days was able to attend to business as usual. A. R. Norton, Bristol, Conn.

A lady wrote: "I don't have that awful sidesche now. I applied a Hop Plaster." 25 cents.

—A Californian shot a wild goose the other day, and in its clay discovered a five dollar gold piece which was coined fifteen years before in New Orleans. The goose was probably making for Canada with his boodle.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier is more valuable than all the bitters in the world. We know of several ladies that would not be without it.

—A Pennsylvanian named Fiddle was recently played upon by New York sharpers to the tune of $3,000. He is now harping on his ill-luck.

Mellin's Food, the only substitute for mothers' milk, is recommended by our most prominent physicians as the best and safest food for infants. It contains no farinaceous matter, which so often produces disorders of the stomach.

—"What does your husband do?" asked the census man. "He ain't doin' nothin' at this time of the year," said the young wife. "Is he a pauper?" asked the census man. Understanding him to say "papa," "Law, no!" she exclaimed, somewhat indignantly; "we ain't been married more'n six weeks."

—The belled-buzzard that has been spoken of in the south for years was shot the other day by J. C. Corrington, at Tunis, Texas. The bell was well-toned, of brass, and about two and a half inches across the base. It was hung to the bird by a copper wire, twisted around the neck. There was no chafing, the skin being protected by an abundance of down. 1877 was scratched on the narrow, flat top of the bell.

At a special meeting of the Boston chamber of commerce, resolutions were adopted protesting against the passage of the inter-state commerce bill. But it passed.

Four murderers were hanged at Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 14th.

August Spies, one of the Chicago anarchists under sentence of death, is to be married Tuesday, Jan. 18th, to Mina Clarke Van Zandt, daughter of a Chicago chemist. She made his acquaintance at the trial. She is said to be good looking and intelligent, and her father is well off.

At Fairview, Pa., Jan. 14th, a nest of six boilers blew up, killing two men.

The inter-state commerce bill passed the senate by twenty-eight majority, on the 14th inst.

The senate committee on the District of Columbia have ordered an adverse report on the nomination of J. C. Matthews as register of deeds for the district. Matthews is the colored democratic wire-puller of Albany, N. Y., whose nomination has once before been rejected by the senate. He is Cleveland's man, however.

The body of Oliver Sleeper, one of the alleged victims of Mrs. Robinson of Somerville, Mass., and the syndicate of poisoners, was exhumed last week for examination. This is the seventh body that has been disinterred for the same purpose, and in the other six large quantities of arsenic have been found.

The British steamship Cranbrook and the British barque Chraighr, from England for New York, are given up as lost. The steamer carried twenty-eight men, and the barque sixteen.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates those processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion, are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

Miss Hattie Harris, of East Haddam, Conn., who had been for some time engaged to Frank Tyler of that place, learned on Wednesday of last week that her lover had falsely told her that a sleigh party they were to join had been given up, and had then gone to it in company with another young lady. She shut herself up in her room, and on Thursday evening was found dead. On the table was a photograph of Tyler, and a glass which had contained morphine.

James Pyle's Pearline is highly indorsed by housekeepers and others who have tried it. No soap is required, and cleaning is done with a saving of much time and labor. All housekeepers should use it.

Three collieries at Shenandoah, Penn., have suspended operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills are far superior to all others for biliousness and kidney complaints. 25c. at all druggists.

A Nova Scotian gives the Eastport Sentinel an account of how the fishery dispute has robbed his property of three-fourths of its old value.

The best is the cheapest. Hop Plasters contain active medicinal agents for the cure of pain.

The Maine house of representatives last week passed a resolution urging the defeat of the Dunn free-ship bill by Congress. Additional labor legislation was proposed, as was an act creating a state board of education.

Mellin's Food, the only substitute for mothers' milk, is recommended by our most prominent physicians as the best and safest food for infants. It contains no farinaceous matter, which so often produces disorders of the stomach.

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. HOW HE FEEDS HIS HORSES.

The Handy Device of a Minnesota Farmer—Pulling a Cord by His Bed.

A recent call at the residence of our townsman, James G. Richardson, revealed several original and novel labor-saving devices, of which we make mention. Mr. R. has for years fed his horses in the morning by simply pulling a wire that leads from the house to the barn. For some time he used tilting buckets. These answered very well, but did not prove entirely satisfactory, as the oats had to be measured and placed in the buckets.

After studying the matter he invented, and has had in operation for a year or more, an automatic feeding device that does the work perfectly. By this arrangement Mr. R. is enabled to feed his three horses before rising, as the oats are taken directly from the bin, measured, and thrown to the horses by simply pulling a cord that hangs at the head of the bed, the cord being connected to the wire leading to the barn. This cord also passes into the kitchen, so the horses can be fed from the house at any time. At the barn they are fed from the lower floor, without going upstairs where the oat bins are. Upon one side of the stable hang four small rings. A pull of one of these rings feeds all the horses, the other three act independently, and any horse can be fed by pulling the desired ring, so if any horse is away only oats for those remaining need be given. By a simple measuring device, which is attached to and is part of the feeder, one horse can be fed one quantity of grain and another another quantity; also, a horse can be fed two quarts in the morning, four at noon, and six at night, or any quantity desired at any time. Whether the cord is pulled and instantly released, or held an indefinite time, the result is the same; only the predetermined quantity of oats will pass to the manger.

The receptacles of the feeder are numbered, and to the bin is attached a movable dial with corresponding numbers, so a glance will determine whether any or all the horses have been fed. The bins can be of any size desired; but those at Mr. R.'s barn hold a quantity sufficient to feed the three horses for six months, so, in that time, all the labor to be done is to pull the cords in the house or the rings in the barn. Mr. R. has patented the invention, and with such a complete emancipation of labor by so simple and inexpensive a device, it seems as though every gentleman would wish to adopt the plan, for its convenience at the barn alone even though they had no use for it from the house. It is not only labor-saving and inexpensive, but the oats are entirely protected from the rats, and it is so simple it cannot get out of order.

Mention might be made of the curiously arranged doors for the saving of room in the barn. One is made to telescope so as to occupy but little space. Another large door is made to slide and swing at the same time, when being opened or closed, and when open, occupies a space only the thickness of the door. Another heavy sliding door, two inches thick, and nearly five feet wide, when open, stands nearly at right angles to the position when closed, and instead of taking five feet of valuable space, uses but eleven inches.

Another labor-saving device is a simple machine for lighting the kitchen fire. This is attached to the stove-hearth by a thumb-screw, and can be removed at pleasure. The fire is lighted inside the stove, and the lighter, after having performed its duty, removes itself out of the way of the heat, and is ready for use again. This lighter is worked by a single pull of the cord that is attached to the one at the head of the bed.

Nor is this all; a pull of the cord that feeds the horses and lights the kitchen fire also releases the spring that puts the draft on a coal stove in the adjoining room. These devices can be operated simultaneously or independently, as desired, and are great blessings this cold weather.

Mr. R. is a natural inventor, and, though engaged in mercantile pursuits, with no practical experience as a machinist, he instantly comprehends mechanical effects; and when realizing any labor-saving necessity he invents some device for its accomplishment. His inventions are all practical and of the simplest construction; and a striking peculiarity is, he never draws a plan or constructs a model till he has studied the machine into perfect working in his mind.—Lake City (Minn.) Sentinel.

One Thing He Didn't Know.

Col. Hammond tells this story about his waiting boy, who went to hear a Northern man speak to the colored people, and on his return the following conversation occurred: "Well, what did he say?" asked the Colonel. "Well," asked the Colonel, "what was it he told you that you did know?" "He tole us ter be hones' an' work hard an' save our money, an' not drink no licker, an' not steal no chickens." "And what was it he didn't know that you could have told him?" "I cud er tole him de blame nigger want gwine ter do it."—Atlanta Constitution.

AROUND HOME.

Quite a large party of residents of the Creek and Newington road districts drove to Dover in single teams last Thursday evening, had supper at a hotel in that city, and returned by moonlight after midnight.

The reason that the Concord train was six hours late in arriving at this city, Friday, was that it got off the track at Stratham, the accident being due to the heavy storm.

The street commissioner's men, with a snow plough drawn by three horses, were engaged in breaking out the streets, Saturday.

A milkman living on Newington road, not far from the Newington line, reports having the worst time getting into town Saturday morning, that he ever had, being an hour and an half on the way. When about half way to town he would leave given up the attempt if he could have turned his team, but was forced to keep on.

The Gravelly Ridge snow-plough came into town on Saturday afternoon, via the Newington and North roads, drawn by sixteen horses in a string team, accompanied by ten or a dozen men with snow shovels, and loaded down with all the boys that could climb on. The establishment got pointed homeward by going around the square formed by Elm and Vaughan streets, and went back with flying colors.

The New Hampshire grand master of Odd Fellows, and Wecohamet lodge of Dover, will visit Osgood lodge of this city on Thursday evening, Jan. 20th. Refreshments will be served in the banquet hall, and contributions of cake and pastry are solicited from the brethren of the lodge and their lady friends, to be sent to Odd Fellows' hall on the afternoon of the 20th.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair has been appointed to settle the estate of the late James W. Johnson. Alderman Sinclair is commonly regarded, when his various business interests and investments are taken into the account, as a very busy man; but Mr. Johnson, with whose business affairs Mr. Sinclair had held intimate relations, made the request, just before his death, that Col. Sinclair should act in the capacity of administrator upon his estate. The solicitation of his friend and former partner Mr. Sinclair could not refuse.

The Boston & Maine railroad, in connection with the Maine Central, will run during the next season a limited train of Pullman palace cars between Boston and Mount Desert on a shorter schedule of time than heretofore. The train will make no stop between Boston and Portsmouth, except at the crossings of other roads, and will be composed entirely of parlor cars, in addition to the baggage and smoking cars. The train will leave Boston at nine o'clock in the morning.

A four-year-old daughter of Henry Schroeder of Sanford, Me., swallowed a quantity of aniline coloring matter, such as is used for water-color painting, and after several days of intense suffering died on the 14th inst.

The grand jury of the supreme judicial court of Maine for York county, in session at Saco, reported last Thursday, returned forty-nine indictments. Fifteen of these had three indictments each returned against them, namely: for keeping a drinking house and tippling shop; being a common seller of liquor; and maintaining a liquor nuisance. One person was indicted for being a common seller, only; and one for maintaining a liquor nuisance. One person was indicted for criminal libel, and the Boston & Maine railroad was indicted for killing a man by negligence.

An act in relation to the catching of lobsters, introduced in the Maine legislature last week, will, if it becomes a law, repeal all previous legislation on the subject, do away with the "close time" altogether, make ten and one-half inches the limit of length the year round, and compel every lobster fisherman to have his name distinctly marked on each of his traps.

There was a great gathering of fishermen, and persons interested in the fisheries, at New York last week, under the auspices of the American Fish Bureau and the American Fishery Union, to consider the present condition and future prospects of the fisheries, and discuss the situation as regards the attitude of Canada toward the American fishermen. It was decided to hold a convention of all the branches of the fisheries in this country, at Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 23d. The last census gave 131,426 sea fishermen afloat in 6,605 vessels, representing $39,000,000. At the meeting in New York much interest and enthusiasm were manifested, and the coming gathering of men interested in the fishery business is expected to be a long stride toward the advancement of this industry.

A London despatch says the "Queen's jubilee" yacht race, for boats of all nations, will be sailed around the United Kingdom. The yachts will start from the Thames, and will be required to keep Great Britain and Ireland on the port hand. The finishing point will be at Dover. All British yachtsmen approve the selection of this course, believing that it will give all yachts, whether home or foreign, a fair chance. The race will take place early in June.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, from constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did take the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

CHAS. O. V. BAGLEY, Grocer,

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 2

Its Great Attractions in 1887—A Circulation of a Quarter of a Million—Gaining 75,000 in Six Months with the War Papers—Its New Feature, "The Life of Lincoln."

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE gained 75,000 circulation in six months with the War Papers; it has gained 30,000 in six weeks with the Life of Lincoln. We want every reader of this paper to read this great work, in which will be revealed

"THE INSIDE HISTORY OF THE WAR."

It is the Life of "the greatest hero of modern times," written by his Confidential Secretaries,

Col. John Hay and John G. Nicolay,

who were with the President throughout the war. To them were handed all Lincoln's private papers on his death, and for twenty-one years they have been at work upon this history. It began in the November CENTURY. New subscribers who begin with the January, 1887, number will receive November and December numbers free if they ask for them. Send $4.00 to THE CENTURY CO., 33 East 17th St. New-York, in check, draft, express or money order (do not send cash). Mention this paper. Ask for a year's subscription, beginning with January, '87, and the two free numbers. You will not regret the expenditure. You will get what the New-York Star calls

"The Most Remarkable Biography ever Produced in the United States."

You will also obtain opening chapters of Frank R. Stockton's new novel, and the beginning of other serial features. The November CENTURY was called by a famous London newspaper "without exception the most marvelous periodical we ever saw." We have made a special issue of the November and December numbers for this offer, and we will print as many editions as are needed. THE CENTURY CO., N. Y.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Variable winds, fair or clearing weather, slowly rising temperature.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 14 degrees above zero.

Snowing.

HE GOT HERE.

The mail carrier from York arrived in this city at noon on Saturday, having started at seven o'clock in the morning, and made a little over a mile an hour while on the route, by hard work and strict attention to business. His outfit consisted of the forward runners of a coach, two horses, the mail bags and a snow shovel.

A PLEASANT SUNDAY.

The weather Sunday was bright and beautiful, a vivid contrast to the two days of dreary winter storm just preceding. Had the sleighing been good the livery keepers would have undoubtedly secured a fine harvest. The churches were all well filled, the ladies who form so large a majority of their congregations, rejoicing in the delightful winter's day. Rev. Dr. Alden officiated at the Court street Christian church in the afternoon, and in the evening delivered a fine lecture in his own church, taking for his subject "The Ark of Safety." Elder B. McLellan preached to a good attendance at the Advent church. Rev. Mr. Maitland, of Manchester, exchanged with Rev. Mr. McGinley, preaching morning and evening. At the other churches, the resident pastors officiated, and the usual services were had.

WHAT WAS IT?

Sunday evening, about 7 o'clock, a very peculiar and dense smoke or fog settled in the vicinity of Vaughan, Congress, and Bridge streets; so dense that a person standing at the corner of Vaughan and Congress streets could not see the electric light at the Academy. Considerable excitement was caused for a few moments, as it was thought a large fire was smouldering near by, but in a short time the fog or smoke passed off.

GRAND MINSTREL SHOW.

Of Wilson & Rankin's minstrels, who are to give an entertainment in Music hall Wednesday evening, the Memphis Appeal says:

The company now embraces four good end men, George Wilson, Carl Rankin, Barney Fagan and Jerry Hart, all of whom were warmly received, especially the former two, who were greeted on their appearance with a storm of applause that lasted fully a half a minute. Of the merits of the bill it is sufficient to say that it is interesting from beginning to end, and while some of the old essentials of minstrelsy are omitted, new features are introduced fully more compensate for the absence of the traditional banjoist and the decrepid old songster. The musical contributions of the Pavenelas are probably, in the estimation of many, the attractions of the bill. They caught the public favor instantly, and were five times recalled. It would be in vain to attempt to describe them. They must be seen and heard to be appreciated. They make music out of stone and iron, and convert broomsticks into trumpets. Altogether the Wilson & Rankin minstrel performance is an enjoyable performance, and well merits the liberal patronage it received last night.

Reserved seat tickets go on sale at Goodrich's this (Monday) morning.

DEATH OF JOHN W. TUCKER.

A telegram received in this city on Saturday, the 15th inst., from Mayor Bean of California, Missouri, announced the death in that place on that day of Mr. John W. Tucker, formerly of this city, and son of the late William Tucker. He had resided in Missouri for the past twenty years, and in California for the past five years; and at the time of his death he was city clerk, register and police justice of the city. Previous to going to Missouri he followed the sea, and made many voyages in Portsmouth ships, as mate, between American ports and the East Indies.

PERSONAL.

Mr. N. Marshall Fernald, of New York, spent Sunday with his mother in this city.

In the list of names of New England members of the Raymond & Whitcomb excursion party which leaves Boston this (Monday) morning for a tour through the south and west, we find those of Mrs. Belle M. Tracy and Miss Persis M. Tracy of this city, and Mrs. D. M. Hill of Dover.

We are much pleased to be able to announce that our valued Kittery correspondent, "Sub Rosa," who has been seriously ill with pneumonia for several weeks, is convalescent.

C. W. Adams of Chicago has been chosen president of the National Veteran Naval association.

UNIVERSALISM VS. UNBELIEF.

"How Universalism acts upon unbelief." Such was the subject in the Pleasant street church yesterday, the text being taken from Matt. 19:17, "One there is who is good."

There are three classes of unbelievers:

1st, those who doubt or deny that there is a God.

2d, those who never think about the matter, except perhaps in times of danger or grief, when they grasp the notion of him that requires the least exertion of mind, and which therefore passes away as soon as the routine of life comes again. These are the large majority of the world.

3d, those who profess to believe in a God; yet who for various reasons, make such statements about his nature and conduct that contradict the necessary attributes of God, and therefore deny his extinence. The existence of this class of unbelievers is largely responsible for the existence of the first two.

Thinking men of to-day, such men as are really ornaments to the world, demand of their minister a full and free statement of his position. They require him to be fearless and free from cant; but above all, consistent throughout. A wise man to-day must and will have relevant and reconcilable ideas of all things up to the point where he is willing to say, "I don't know." This course will eventually gain for religion what it surely deserves, a recognition by the wisest and brightest and best men of the world. This course will banish unbelief. Universalism builds a thorough-going and scientific philosophy on the fact that "One there is who is good." This is not a weak piece of prayer-meeting sentiment, to be perverted and violated when it so pleases one. It is the sole fact that makes a moral system possible. It is a fact that underlies all successful research into life, whether animal or vegetable. It is the basal fact in spiritual life. It is the principle that must be pre-eminent in all points of doctrine regarding the future. God will be acknowledged by men when we cease to apologize for His weaknesses and mistakes, when we cease to circumscribe the Infinite by the limitations and conceits of the finite.

All great philosophers believe in God through and by a constant application of His universal goodness.

MARITIME NOTES.

The fish arrivals on Friday and Saturday were light, the following being some of the fares brought in: Schooner Franklin S. Schenck, 7000 lbs.; the Georgia Hagan, 5000 lbs.; Golden Rule, 1000; Lady Thorn, 3000; Agnes E. Downs, 1000; Comet, 4000; Rover's Bride, 1500; Hattie M. Reed, 4000; Albert Woodbury, 3000; Mary E. Smith, 1000; Josie Johnson, 2000.

The schooner Amos Cutter, Capt. C. O. Johnson, arrived at this port on Friday last from Gloucester, Mass., to engage in winter fishing out of this port. Capt. Johnson was in command of the schooner Flying Dart, of this port, when she went ashore at Rye beach recently. The Amos Cutter fished out of this port last winter, with gill-nets, but is now fitted out for trawling.

The vessels which use gill-nets for cod fishing this winter are doing practically nothing; one of them, setting twenty-five nets, came in on Friday with less than 1000 lbs. of cod as the result of two days' fishing. The first winter that nets were used, and for several succeeding ones, the netters were highly successful; last winter they did very little, and this winter they are taking hardly any fish at all.

The fishing schooner Anna H. Mason, formerly of this port but now owned in Gloucester, came pretty near finishing her career on Friday morning last, she running on one of the ledges off Duck island, Isles of Shoals, between four and five o'clock, when the tide was on the ebb, and hanging there for fifteen minutes or more, when she slid off into deep water, and managed to reach this port in safety. At the time she came off, her crew were hurredly getting up their effects preparatory to abandoning her, as the heavy storm which prevailed later in the day was already giving plain premonition of its approach; and had she not got off when she did, she would no doubt have come off in pieces. From the erratic manner in which she steered, coming up the river, it is supposed her keel was twisted or broken. She will go to Gloucester for repairs.

The story along the fish wharves is that the schooner Franklin S. Schenck, Capt. Thomas Jameson, now engaged in fishing out of this port, one day last week discovered the schooner Estelle S. Nunan, of Rockport, Mass., lying to and with her dories down in Ipswich bay, under circumstances which convinced the Schenck's crew that their trawls were being robbed by the other vessel. The Nunan started off when the Schenck was seen approaching, and a chase of a half hour or more ensued, when the Schenck came up with the other craft, and would have run her down had she not answered her helm quickly enough to avoid the blow aimed at her. The crew of the Schenck then assailed the alleged marauders with a shower of stones, driving them below, smashing the binnacle and compass, and doing other damage. After the Schenck ran by, the Rockport boat made for her home port.

A wagon driven by a grocer's delivery clerk backed up to the edge of Rollins' wharf, Saturday afternoon, and the clerk, rolling out a barrel of flour, attempted to aid a fisherman to load it into his dory. Owing to some mishap the barrel of flour suddenly took a start, and landed on the gunwale of the dory, which of course, after the manner of boats of its kind, instantly rolled on its beam ends. The clerk went over with the barrel, but managed to clutch a pile, and was only submerged to his breast. The flour went to the bottom of the dock, and then slowly and majestically rose to the surface again; the fisherman went only half way to the bottom, and returned immediately. After a little splashing and a number of powerful remarks, the barrel was loaded into the dory, and the fisherman pulled away. It is rumored that the crew of the schooner had to rig a purchase when he got alongside, to pull him off the thwart.

The public installation exercises of Strawberry Bank encampment, I. O. O. F., this evening, will commence at eight o'clock.

The farm buildings in Kittery owned and occupied by Herbert Goodsoe, some two miles from Portsmouth bridge, were burned about two o'clock Saturday morning. The buildings were large and quite valuable ones, and the loss is about $4000; insurance, $2000. Very little was saved from the house. The alarm was heard in the village, but the condition of the roads was such that no effective aid could be rendered.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1239 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a humane work in making known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently a-stast the life line and the injuries received involved her in ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician, and her advice to sick ones can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and trouble, and there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed in her hands of saving themselves all, if not the greatest part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Hints to Housewives.

In cleaning silver kerosene may be used with advantage.

Carpets may be brightened by dusting with a damp flannel mop.

Egg stains can be removed by rubbing with common table salt.

Rub oiled furniture with a woolen cloth saturated slightly with oil.

Stains on wood can be removed with strong vinegar or salts of lemon.

Leather chair seats may be revived by rubbing them with well-beaten white of egg.

Sandpaper will whiten ivory knife-handles that may have become yellow with use or age.

White paint that may have become discolored may be nicely cleaned by using a little whiting in the water for washing.

A brilliant black varnish for iron stoves and fireplaces is made by stirring ivory-black into ordinary shellac varnish.

A good cement for china is ordinary carriage varnish; if put together neatly the fracture will be hardly perceptible, and it is not affected by water.

Galvanized iron pails are not desirable receptacles for drinking-water. The zinc coating is quickly affected by the water, forming a poisonous oxide of zinc.

For cleaning brasses belonging to mahogany furniture use either powdered whiting or scraped rottenstone mixed with sweet oil and rub on with a chamois skin.

A window open a slight distance both top and bottom, and a chimney draught also open, are the only sure ways of keeping pure air in a sleeping-room whose doors are closed.

Vinegar is better than ice for keeping fish.

Hattie Davis has started a new industry for enterprising women. She goes to a small town and lays siege to the heart of some susceptible man. If all goes well she contrives to have a speedy marriage announced and then skips the day before the ceremony with all the presents sent and the wardrobe which she manages to obtain on credit. She has worked the scheme successfully in several New York towns.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease Dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Great Drought in Texas.

Despatches from almost every quarter of Texas during the past week tell of the general anxiety existing throughout the state on account of the prolonged drought. Throughout the vast area embraced within the great cattle and cotton districts known as the Pan Handle, North Texas, West Texas, South Texas and the Central Cotton Belt no rain has fallen since September 1st. Reports from the cattle and sheep districts do not as yet chronicle any serious loss of stock by reason of the drought, but the result will be none the less disastrous, as the vast cattle ranges are drying up. No new grass is growing, and the ultimate loss of stock is inevitable. Cattle men from the southwest sections of the state beyond and below San Antonio, tell of riding for days over parched prairies, covered with dried grass, where in years past has been one great carpet of green grass as large in extent as the entire state of Pennsylvania. In the northwest, from Wichita Falls to Fort Elliot, widespread alarm exists among the cattlemen. In northern and central Texas, around Dallas, Fort Worth, Sherman and Waco, where wheat and other small grains are grown, the situation is no better than in the cattle districts, rendering the outlook very gloomy.

The Canadian cruiser Howlette, at Shelburne, N. S., reports finding no American fishing schooners now violating the treaty. Minister Foster of the Dominion promises his people more vigorous efforts in harassing the Yankees the coming season.

The Canadian fishery cruiser General Middleton, Captain McLean, sailed into St. Andrew's harbor on the 13th with two captured fishing vessels in tow, having seized them on the 8th off the Pennefield shore. Their names are the Genetta of St. Andrews, N. B., and the Maggie Mitchell of Yarmouth, N. S. They are small vessels, neither of them registering over fifteen tons. There are two charges against them—violation of the fishery laws of Canada, and of the Canadian customs laws. Both vessels were fitted out at Eastport, Me., and shipped their crews there. The seizure has been reported to the minister of marine and fisheries, who says that his department is determined to seize every Canadian fisherman that carries American outfits or crews. Already they have made three seizures, and more are expected.

I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism for the last three years. I was induced to try a bottle of Athlophoros. I have since taken six and can now attend to my business and consider myself a well man. E. Parkhurst, Woonsocket, R. I.

One man was killed and two fatally injured by the fall of a scaffolding in New York on the 15th inst.

The most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and tonic influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

Senator Harrison of Indiana has been renominated by the republican legislative caucus.

"I was troubled with an eruption on my face, which was a source of constant annoyance when I wished to appear in company. After using ten bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the humor entirely disappeared."—Mary M. Wood, 40 Adams street, Lowell, Mass.

Wm. R. Morrison has been nominated for the United States senate by the democrats of the Illinois legislature. He won't get there this time.

Frank Mitchell of Boston, who has been in jail eighteen months under indictment for the murder of his wife, was discharged on his own recognizance Jan. 14th. This was the case where the dismembered body of a woman was found floating in the Charles river, and was supposed to be Mitchell's wife, who disappeared about that time.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

The democrats of the California legislature last week nominated George Hearst for United States senator.

We devote a portion of our space this week to "Yours for Health," the women's sure friend. Its popularity is on the increase.

Several dynamite outrages by street railroad strikers in San Francisco are reported.

One of the non-union men beaten by strikers at Weehawken, N. J., is dead, and several others will die.

Original, prompt, clean, sure and effective for pain and soreness. Hop Porous Plasters.

Two Noble Reformers Gone.

Mrs. Abby Kelly Foster, widow of Stephen S. Foster, both noted abolitionists and reformers, died on Friday afternoon, Jan. 14th, at Worcester, Mass., at the age of seventy-six. She was married in 1845, and was an efficient coworker with her husband. Mrs. Foster wrote "The Brotherhood of Thieves, a True Picture of the American Church and Clergy," and many articles on the slavery question.

Henry B. Stanton, a well-known journalist and lawyer, died of pneumonia in New York on Friday. His wife, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, is in London at the present time. Mr. Stanton was born at Griswold, Ct., June 27th, 1805. He was one of the earliest anti-slavery advocates in the country, and has been connected with the press for nearly half a century.

Few persons were more bitterly reviled by the pro-slavery press and orators of "abolition" days than Mrs. Foster and Mr. Stanton; but both lived to see the stars and stripes made in reality the flag of the free, and to witness the end of the national crime against which they fought so bravely and persistently.

Mrs. Mary Osborn, born on Water street, Boston, Jan. 3d, 1786, is the oldest living native of Boston, and the oldest resident of Portland. Her father's name was William Woods; her mother's maiden name was Sarah McGlauflin; and they were natives of Belfast, Ire., where they were married. Mr. Woods was a prominent merchant, who died suddenly in 1786, and was a Freemason. Mary Woods, the subject of this sketch, was married to Mr. Samuel L. Osborn at Bath, N. H., in 1819. He was a resident of Kennebunk, Me., and died near Wells Deport, Me., in 1857.

Cure of Spinal Weakness.

Yates, Orleans Co., N. Y., March 28th, 1886.—My wife, five years ago, was confined to her bed with inflammatory rheumatism of the muscles of the back. The doctors thought her case hopeless, and doomed her to be a bedridden invalid. The violent pain kept her awake almost every night. She lost over thirty pounds in weight. To ease her pain I thought I would put on Allcock's Porous Plasters. I covered her back with them. To my great delight she began to sleep well. The pain very much abated in one week. I then took the plasters off, washed her back, and put on fresh ones. At the end of the second week she insisted on getting up, and by the third week was entirely well and able to attend to her household duties.

A hundred or more employes of the cultery shops in Southampton, Conn., struck two months ago against a ten per cent reduction of wages. The employers said it was impossible to restore the cut-down in the present condition of the trade, and on Monday the men were notified to remove their tools from the shops, which will close for the present.

A special from Brookton, Washington county, Me., says: Fred Lovelace fell into the hopper of the bark mill Friday night and was literally ground to pieces. His death was almost instantaneous. He was fifty years old, and leaves a widow and five children. He recently removed from New Brunswick.

Judge Gresham.

Many interesting incidents are told of Gresham's career.

On the bench he is an excellent judge of human nature, and seldom mistakes his man. In the trial of criminal cases he invariably has a private talk with the offender. He questions a culprit closely, and quickly detects any extenuating circumstances in his case. Upon one occasion a former citizen of high standing was tried and convicted in his court for perpetrating frauds in the pension office. The man's wife and family were present, and the scene was a sad one. The jury returned a verdict of guilty. Gresham called the prisoner to the bar, but, instead of passing sentence upon him, said kindly:

"Go home, and spend the night with your family, and report to me at 10 o'clock to-morrow. You may may not see your home again for a long time."

This extraordinary action caused much comment and some criticism, but the guilty man did not break the court's confidence. He was on hand promptly, and was sentenced to two years at hard labor in the Michigan City prison. Without exception newspaper men are stanch friends of Gresham. His uniform courtesy and frank disposition win their friendship. His outspoken manner in politics has naturally created some hostility toward him in party ranks, and his success and greatness have in like manner provoked jealousies. Gresham, however, can not justly be accused of smallness of character nor charged with doing an unmanly act. His contempt for things insincere and for petty politics is pronounced. The average citizen hereabouts is quick to resent a personal fling at Gresham. Even those whose first choice for president is Harrison denounce the warfare that has been begun against Gresham.

One day Judge Gresham was listening to a tedious argument in an important suit which was attracting public attention. A reporter of an Indianapolis paper was awaiting the verdict. The hour was late and the reporter had many other calls to make. He grew impatient, and finally, during a halt in the proceedings, he slipped up and whispered to the court:

"Say, judge, how are you going to decide this case?"

The judge looked surprised, but rewarded the young man's nerve by replying:

"Well, Charley, I am going to decide it for the defendant, but you must not say anything until I do it."

On another occasion, just after Gresham's appointment as postmaster general, but before he had left the bench, he was hearing a railroad case in chambers. A reporter timidly opened the door and stepped into a circle of distinguished attorneys, such as Senator McDonald, the late ex-Gov. Baker, and Abram W. Hendricks. The judge greeted the intruder kindly, beckoned him to advance, and stopped the case long enough to explain its nature. The reporter was about withdrawing, when the judge said: "Don't be in a hurry. Have you a knife?" The cutlery was produced, the judge opened a box of choice cigars, passed them around, and then again proceedings began. He had a habit of doing such things, yet never surrendered the dignity attached to his court.—Indianapolis Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Alleged Signs of Luck.

Dream of eggs, sign of money.
Dream of snake, sign of enemies.

If you sing before breakfast you'll cry before supper.

Dreaming of muddy or rushing water brings trouble.

Finding a horseshoe or a four-leaved clover brings good luck.

If you cut your nails or sneeze on Saturday you do it "for evil."

She who takes the last stitch at a quilting will be the first to marry.

If you cannot make up a handsome bed your husband will have a homely nose.

If you spill the salt some one will be "mad" with you, unless you put some of it in the fire.

Stub your right toe, you are going where you are wanted; your left, where you are not wanted.

If the first Sunday in the month is unpleasant there will be but one pleasant Sunday during the month.

If your right ear burns some one is praising you; if your left, your friends are raking you over the coals.

Returning to the house for a moment after having once started out will bring bad luck unless you sit down.

If the rooster crows on the fence the weather will be fair; if on the doorstep, he will bring company.

While at the washboard, if the suds splash and wet the clothes you are wearing you will have a drunken husband.

When, in dropping a fork, it strikes the floor and stands upright, it will bring a gentleman visitor; if a knife, a lady.

If you drop your dishcloth you will have company; also if you sweep a black mark, or if two chairs stand accidentally back to back.

If a baby sees his face in the glass it will be death to him; if his nails are cut he will be a thief; if he tumbles out of bed it will save his being a fool.

Break a mirror, sign of death. Death is also foretold by a dog howling under a window; hearing a mourning dove; a strange dove hovering about, or dreaming of a white horse.

If you see the new moon through the glass you will have sorrow as long as it lasts. If you see it fair in the face you'll have a fall; over the left shoulder, bad luck; over the right, good luck.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

An Irishman was asked for his marriage certificate. He slowly lifted his hat, revealing a large scar on the head, evidently done by a flat iron. This evidence was to the point. Our certificates are the praises of those who have experienced wonderful cures by the use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Mrs. Estabrook J. Pease, of Rockland, Me., committed suicide Jan. 14th by taking "Rough on Rats." She took the poison at noon, and informed her husband at two o'clock what she had done. Doctors were immediately called, but the woman died at midnight in terrible agony. She leaves two children, a boy of twelve years and a girl of five. Family trouble was the cause.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Death of Gen. Hazen.

Gen. William B. Hazen, chief signal officer of the United States army, died in Washington on the evening of Jan. 16th; he had been in indifferent health for some time, but his death was hastened by a cold which he contracted at the president's reception to the diplomatic corps on the 14th.

The memory of Gen. Hazen commands the respect which the country gratefully accords to the men who have risked their lives in its service. He was a brave and useful soldier. His courage was tested and his life nearly lost in warfare with the Indians early in his army career; and during the rebellion he did masterly work in Kentucky, in Tennessee, and later with Sherman in Georgia, and he fully won the promotions that advanced him by successive stages from captain to major general.

As chief of the signal service he has been severely criticised. Imperious to his subordinates, and impatient of restraint by his superiors, he was often in dispute with both; and rightfully or wrongfully, the awful fate of the Greely exploring party is charged to be mainly due to his headstrong inefficiency in a position for which he was by nature unfitted.

Love and Murder.

At Salmon Falls, Sunday last, Dennis Kennedy was knocked down and stabbed by William Collins, with probably fatal results. Collins, who is twenty-eight years old, has been attempting to pay attentions to Miss Georgie Havey; but Kennedy, who recently went to Salmon Falls, was the favored one. About two weeks ago Kennedy took Miss Havey to ride, when Collins met them, and the latter being much the larger and stronger of the two men, took Kennedy from the sleigh and gave him a severe whipping. Since then he has repeatedly tried to meet Kennedy. Sunday he stationed himself near the girl's house, and as Kennedy came up the street he rushed upon him with the exclamation, "You shall never see Georgie Havey again!" He struck Kennedy in the face, knocking him down in the snow, and held him there while he deliberately stabbed him with a large jackknife. Two men who saw the stabbing rushed from their house to prevent the murderous work, when Collins got up and walked away. Kennedy was found to have three bad cuts on the right side of his back, a gash in the left leg, a deep cut in the neck a quarter of an inch back of the jugular vein, and a long cut on the head. Collins was arrested soon after the stabbing, and when asked why he did it, said: "He can't have my girl and live, and if I can't have her, I would as soon be in prison or hung as live without her."

An Artificial Earthquake.

A despatch of Jan. 16th from San Francisco, Cal., says: "The schooner Parallel sailed Friday for Astoria, Oregon, with a cargo of general merchandise, including 160,000 pounds of giant powder. Strong head winds forced her to put back, and she reached the entrance to the Golden Gate last evening. The wind had died out, and, being caught by a strong tide, the vessel was swept ashore at the southern end of Point Lobos, inside the famous Seal rocks, and opposite the Cliff house. The life-saving station is near by, and the schooner's captain and crew were easily rescued.

After being abondoned, the vessel drifted in a southerly direction and into a small cove, where she pounded against the rocks, and at midnight was rapidly breaking up. The men from the life-saving station, seeing that nothing more could be done, withdrew to their building. Hardly had they reached it when a fearful explosion occurred, scattering destruction on all sides. The schooner beating against the rocks had caused the powder to ignite, and the entire quantity had exploded. The signal station was completely demolished; the life-saving station was wrecked; and the west side of the Cliff house, notwithstanding its elevation, was blown out, and every window pane in the building was broken. The large concert-room on the beach, and other buildings lower down, all had their windows broken, and were otherwise more or less damaged. The long carriage-shed adjoining the Cliff house was tumbled into a mass of ruins. Adolph Sultior's conservatory on the heights above was shattered to atoms, and all the windows in his house were broken.

Three members of the life-saving crew, who had built a fire on the beach and had decided to remain near the wreck, were hurled into the air and badly injured. The limbs of one of the injured men, Horace Smith, were so frightfully disjointed as to make his sufferings intense, and for a time his life was despaired of. The two others, Charles Rogers and John Wilson, escaped with less serious injuries. Captain Hayslop, in command of the life-saving station, described the explosion as follows:

'At one o'clock sleepers were thrown from their beds by a great explosion, which made them think that a great earthquake had upheaved the cliffs, or a tidal wave had swept up from the Pacific. A great wave dashed up and vaulted over over the Cliff house building. The whole shore and cliff literally trembled and shook as no earthquake has shaken the earth for years. People were rudely thrown from their beds by the force of the explosion, and furniture and bedsteads were tossed and heaped about the rooms.'

The famous Cliff house presents a scene beggaring description. The west side of the building, overlooking the ocean, is completely ruined, being held together only by the cross-beams. The windows are smashed, and doors twisted off their hinges. The building is in such a shattered condition that what is left of it will have to be taken down, if it does not topple over into the ocean."

At New Boston, Ill., Jan. 13th, James E. Doughty shot his sweetheart, Bertha Benedict, aged eighteen years, through the temple and left breast, killing her instantly, and then blew out his own brains. These cowardly murders of young women by jealous lovers are getting altogether too common; but there is a redeeming feature in the fact that the assassins as a rule end by taking their own worthless lives.

The directors of the Pepperell and Laconia manufacturing companies at Biddeford have voted "no" upon the application for consolidation of the two corporations to be presented to the legislature. This puts an end to the question of consolidation, which was previously looked upon as settled.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, by constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did take the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

Free Numbers to New Readers.

Its Great Attractions in 1887—A Circulation of a Quarter of a Million—Gaining 75,000 in Six Months with the War Papers—Its New Feature, "The Life of Lincoln."

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE gained 75,000 circulation in six months with the War Papers; it has gained 30,000 in six weeks with the Life of Lincoln. We want every reader of this paper to read this great work, in which will be revealed

"THE INSIDE HISTORY OF THE WAR."

It is the Life of "the greatest hero of modern times," written by his Confidential Secretaries,

Col. John Hay and John G. Nicolay,

who were with the President throughout the war. To them were handed all Lincoln's private papers on his death, and for twenty-one years they have been at work upon this history. It began in the November CENTURY. New subscribers who begin with the January, 1887, number will receive November and December numbers free if they ask for them. Send $4.00 to THE CENTURY CO. 33 East 17th St. New-York, in check, draft, express or money order (do not send cash). Mention this paper. Ask for a year's subscription, beginning with January, '87, and the two free numbers. You will not regret the expenditure. You will get what the New-York Star calls

"The Most Remarkable Biography ever Produced in the United States."

You will also obtain opening chapters of Frank R. Stockton's new novel, and the beginning of other serial features. The November CENTURY was called by a famous London newspaper "without exception the most marvelous periodical we ever saw."

We have made a special issue of the November and December numbers for this offer, and we will print as many editions as are needed. THE CENTURY CO. N. Y.

POSTPONED AGAIN.

Owing to the unfavorable weather and the condition of the streets and sidewalks, the installation, banquet and other entertainment of Strawberry Bank Encampment of Odd Fellows, postponed from last week to Monday evening, was on Monday again postponed to Friday evening, the 21st inst., at 7:30 o'clock.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS' INSTALLATION.

On Monday evening, Jan. 17th, De Witt Clinton Commandery of Knights Templar installed the following elected and appointed officers, to serve for the ensuing year:

Harry G. Tanton, eminent commander;
Edward W. Riley, generalissimo;
John Hatch, captain general;
John Christie, prelate:
William G. Billings, senior warden;
Frank L. Benedict, junior warden;
Wingate N. Ilsley, treasurer;
James L. Parker, recorder;
James G. Ward, standard bearer;
James A. Corey, sword bearer;
Richard I. Walden, warder;
Edwin A. Tilton, organist;
Fred H. Ward, captain of 3d guard;
Gustave Peyser, captain of 2d guard;
A. R. Junkins, captain of 1st guard;
Robert H. Hall, sentinel.

The installation was by P. E. C. Andrew P. Preston, with P. E. C. Wm. P. Walker acting as marshal.

Previous to the closing, Sir John Christie, on behalf of the commandery, presented the retiring eminent commander, Sir Andrew P. Preston, with an elegant past commander's jewel.

WON'T DO IT.

A special town meeting was held in Kittery on Monday, the 17th inst., to consider the question of appropriating a sum of money to aid in the construction of the York Harbor & Beach railroad, and the proposition of running the road by the lower (or Kittery Point) route. The meeting was largely attended, and the questions coming up for discussion created considerable excitement. The vote as declared stood 184 against, to 108 for the proposition to aid the road; thus the effort to have the town raise money for the railroad was defeated.

THE HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Mayor Eldredge has received from Secretary Endicott of the war department, through Hon. Martin A. Haynes, the following letter, which fully explains itself:

HON. WILLIAM C. ENDICOTT, Secretary of War—Sir:

In reply to the reference to this office of the communication of October 1, 1886, from the mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., and others, urging the necessity of a harbor of refuge at Little Harbor for vessels unable to enter Portsmouth, which was received through Hon. Martin A. Haynes, M. C., with request for an examination and report thereon, I beg leave to state that it was referred for report to Maj. J. A. Smith, Corps of Engineers, who, from the pressure of other duties, has been unable to give it earlier attention.

The present plan adopted for this improvement is intended to benefit the smaller vessels engaged in the commerce and fisheries of that coast, and contemplates the opening of the channel of entrance into Little Harbor to a depth of nine feet at low water, and also to have the inner basin enlarged to a width of 300 feet for an average length of 700 feet, which with the addition of a rubble stone breakwater from Jerry's point, it is estimated, will cost about $33,000.

The project adopted for the expenditure of the appropriation of $10,000 made in the River and Harbor Act of 1886 is to expend the amount in dredging by contract, first the channel over the bar, and then the inner anchorage as far as funds will admit, dependent upon the prices obtained for the work.

The work as now projected is susceptible of extension to form part of any larger improvement that may be provided for by Congress.

A regards the further removal of ledges in Portsmouth harbor, after that of Gangway rock, now under contract is completed, Major Smith estimates the removal of Goat island ledge to twenty feet at low water, at $130,000; and the removal of the ledge projecting from the point of Badger's island to a depth of eighteen feet, at $90,000; and reports that the resulting benefits would not be commensurate with the expense.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
J. C. DUANE,
Brig. Gen., Chief of Engineers.

WILSON & RANKIN'S MINSTRELS.

The performance of the Wilson & Rankin minstrel troupe at DeGives opera house last night was witnessed by an advertent audience. At half-past seven o'clock the house was packed so that many were compelled to leave, unable to find standing room. In the first part of the play the singing by Mr. Mack was of a delightful character, and pleased the audience. The singing by the quartette was exceedingly fine, and from the rounds of applause that followed from the audience, it must have pleased everybody. Mr. George Wilson in his series of jokes with Mr. Rankin made the audience laugh until some of the spectators were almost exhausted.

About the middle of the programme a batch of eight were going to Europe, and Carl Rankin at the head laid out the route they would go very amusingly. This comic featuae was one of rare value to the audience, for the laughable manner in which it came to an end.

The bridal trip concluded the enterment, and without hesitation the reporter declares it to be the best feature of the evening, and it alone was well worth the price of admission. The audience could have gladly remained all night and witnessed such an event.—Atlantic Capital.

At Music hall to-morrow evening. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's. See advertisement.

The Gravelly Ridge snow plough came in over the road again Monday morning, the work of Saturday having been to some extent undone on Sunday.

The Ella Hill Burlesque Co., opened to splendid business last night and deserved it. The show is clean and funny.—Dallas Times.

At Music hall next Friday evening.

It is not often that sales of Concord & Portsmouth railroad stock are quoted as being made in open market, but four shares were sold at auction in Boston on Saturday, at $153 per share.

Mr. Theodore S. Harris, who was so seriously injured in an accident at Fort Ellis on the Northern Pacific railroad last May, has been visiting friends in this city for a few days. He was confined to a hospital more than three months by the effects of the accident, but has now nearly recovered.

A gentleman living on Middle street reports that for several hours on Sunday evening last a person could not touch the gas fixtures or steam-heat radiators in his house without receiving a very perceptible shock of electricity.

Mr. Joseph Hammond went to work at the navy yard last week, and on the fourth day had one of his fingers broken.

A recent number of the "Literary World" contains an interesting and well-written sketch entitled "Two poets' homes—Stedman's and Albee's," wherein is described Mr. Stedman's cottage at Kelp Rock, and Mr. Albee's Jaffrey cottage, in Newcastle—from the pen of Mr. Charles Burr Todd, a literary gentleman of New York, who appears to have heartily appreciated the beauties of the region round about Jaffrey's point on a visit during the past summer.

A young man about twenty-four years of age was killed at Wells, Saturday afternoon, by jumping from the four o'clock train from Boston as it neared that station. Papers in his pocket indicated that his name was Robert B. Williams, Jr., and that he was bound for Portland.

The Free Baptist church of North Berwick has extended to Rev. Lewis Dexter of Blackstone, Mass., a call to assume the pastorate of that church.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Jan. 17th.

Master Jamie DeLancey had a narrow escape from drowning while skating and playing hockey on the new ice pond; he got out without help, and ran home a distance of one and a half miles.

The Hampton band furnished music at the dedication of the town hall at North Hampton, Jan. 3d, and gave good satisfaction. This band, and the glee club under the direction of Norman Marston, Esq., have more calls to furnish music for entertainments than they can attend to.

Master John Dearborn of this town, a student of Phillips academy, is lying very ill with typhoid fever, and it is feared it will prove fatal.

As old and antiquated as the snow storm of Friday are some of the citizens of this town. In some of the districts the roads were not broken out at all, making it very rough for the horses on the milk teams; it was a hard sight when they came in Saturday night. New laws should be made in this direction. If a physician was needed on these stormy nights, it would be impossible to get one; we think no road should be full over night.

The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!
NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1929 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against a stone, the blow and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Everybody in this place appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician, and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and trouble, and therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means place! before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

The Miner Among Shells.

One of the most curious shells is the Pholas, a small bivalve that has the faculty of boring into the hardest rock. Great blocks of granite that have fallen overboard have been found years afterward permeated with these shells that were imprisoned in the cavity, obtaining their food from the water that flowed in and out. Many explanations have been given as to the method by which they bore into such extremely hard rocks. The shell is known to contain aragonite, and some suppose that constant friction enables the shell to subdue the rock, as it were. Others, again, think that the animal secretes some fluid that dissolves the rock. One of the most interesting samples of their work can be seen in the pillars of the temple of Serapis, Italy. There the land became submerged long enough for the shells to obtain a foothold. It has now risen again, and the holes with the empty shells are plainly seen, the marble pillars being completely honeycombed by them. The Pholas then may be called the miner among shells, and, curiously enough, it has its lamp, a rich, bluish-white light, that seems to appear from the entire body surface. Some curious experiments have been made with this shell. It appears that it is luminous whether alive or dead, and when one was placed in seven ounces of milk by a naturalist it was used to read by. Another, when placed in honey, retained its luminosity for over a year.—San Francisco Call.

A Buffalo newspaper tells of a young man, the usual "well-known young society man," of course, who wrote to a pretty girl in the east whom he had met and admired, asking her in the course of the letter a good many questions. She answered promptly, not the questions, but the letter, and asked some questions on her own hook, such as these: "What kind of tooth powder do you use? Who gave you this name? Do worms think? What do you think of the pre-Adamitist theory? Are the Jews going to return to Russia? If you are discovered, are you found?" The young man thinks that she's making fun of him.

The inquest on the death of Robert B. Williams, Jr., of Roxbury, Mass., the young man who was killed at Wells last Saturday by jumping or falling from a Boston & Maine train, showed that when he left the train he was hurled with great force against a high embankment beside the track, describing a semi-circle in the snow with his body, and returning to the track, where he was struck on the head by the end of one of the car-beds, and thrown to the spot where he was found with his feet nearly touching one of the rails. Whether he jumped or slipped from the platform of the car is not known, but the latter is not improbable, as the platform was covered with ice and very slippery and the train was rounding a curve at a good rate of speed at the time, and the fact that he fell on the outside of the curve instead of the inside leads to the supposition that he slipped.

Mr. Fred Tarbox having been appointed special officer for York county to enforce the liquor law, has entered earnestly upon the work; he was in Dover on Monday, warning parties who have been sending liquor and beer into York county to stop it.

The Portland, Me., board of underwriters have declined to reinstate Insurance Agent Sparrow, (suspended on account of placing insurance in "underground" or "wild-cat" companies, which are not licensed to do business in the state of Maine,) except on conditions which he would not accept. Mr. Sparrow charges that a large number of men, who have been supposed to be conducting a strictly legitimate insurance business in Maine and New Hampshire, have in reality been handling a good many "underground" policies. It is said that in York county this wild-cat insurance has been very largely placed, more so than in any other county of Maine.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates those processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion, are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

Now it is said that Mrs. Logan's pension bill will be promptly passed this week. It should be, and without any more ex-confederate haggling.

The best is the cheapest. Hop Plasters contain active medicinal agents for the cure of pain.

Sam Jones and Bob Ingersoll are in Boston. Extremes usually meet at the centre.

Mellin's Food, the only substitute for mothers' milk, is recommended by our most prominent physicians as the best and safest food for infants. It contains no farinaceous matter, which so often produces disorders of the stomach.

One of the crew of a Newfoundland schooner wrecked on Bras d' Or lake recently, froze to death after reaching the shore. The vessel was stripped by thieves, and the sailors returned to their homes penniless.

Mme. Nevada and Mlle. Van Zandt sang together recently at the English Roman Catholic church, Avenue Hoche, Paris, before a distinguished assemblage. Mme. Nevada had not sung in Paris before since her marriage. It was reported of her, as of Mlle. Van Zandt, that she had lost her voice. Neither report is true, as the voices of both singers are at present of greater compass and richer than ever.

In the French senate, Jan. 18th, Admiral Peyron complained of attacks made upon the rights of French fishermen in Newfoundland waters, and he instanced the case of a Malor vessel which had been forbidden to fish. M. Flourens, minister of foreign affairs, replied that the case of the St. Malor vessel was now the subject of inquiry; that the government intended to enforce respect for the existing treaties, and had sent the necessary orders to the commander of the French naval station.

The board of selectmen of Pittsfield, Mass., have been indicted for illegally drawing jurors to serve in the United States district court at Boston.

James Pyle's Pearline is highly indorsed by housekeepers and others who have tried it. No soap is required, and cleaning is done with a saving of much time and labor. All housekeepers should use it.

The next chief of the signal service bureau should be taken for his knowledge of meteorology, and not for the strength of his family and lobby influence, or even for his military record. The country has got very tired of careless and incompetent weather predictions.

A passenger train on the Chicago & Iowa railway struck a broken rail near Aurora, Ill., Jan. 16th. Three cars were derailed and badly smashed. A. J. Aldeman of Freeport, Ill, and William Gales of Aurora, were fatally injured. The rest of the passengers escaped unhurt.

DISINFECTANTS.

Remedies for Stopping the Spread of Contagious Diseases.

While looking over the papers in his desk recently Chief Sanitary Officer Charles W. Francis found a list of the best disinfectants to be used in preventing the spread of contagious diseases. The list was prepared in 1879, during his term as health commissioner, the yellow fever raging at the time in the south, with some scattering cases in the city, and others at quarantine. The following is the list, together with the directions as to the purpose of the articles and how they are to be used:

Carbolic Acid (fluid)—To disinfect vaults, cesspools, drains, and sewers, garbage and decaying matter, also bedding and clothing, to be used as follows: Dilute at the rate of from forty to one hundred parts of water to one of acid. Half a pint to be poured in every vault. For large masses of filth pour in solution every hour until every part is disinfected. To disinfect clothing mix the acid with an equal quantity of strong vinegar, then dilute as above. For air of sick-room suspend a piece of cloth soaked in diluted solution.

Carbolic Acid (crude)—To disinfect grounds, drains, or the air of a foul place, for the sprinkling of streets, gutters, etc., dilute or thoroughly agitate the acid in forty to fifty parts of water and saturate with same.

Charcoal Powder—To absorb the putrid gases of any damp or offensive place, sprinkle when dry and fresh.

Chloride of Lime—To give off chlorine to destroy putrid effluvia and to stop putrefaction in cellars, vaults, and tables: Use dry and sprinkle on the floors of apartments, or, better, use in solution, and wash the floors and woodwork with it. Strong vinegar poured on it increases its efficiency.

Chlorinated Soda—For disinfecting clothing and cleaning the surfaces of corpses: Use a pint of the solution to two quarts of hot water.

Heavy Oil of Coal Tar—For drains, sewers, foul heaps, etc.: Mix with sawdust and spread thickly upon the ground or paint the inside walls with it.

Permanganate Potassa—To be used in disinfecting clothing and towels, bedding, etc., from patients sick with infectious diseases: Throw the clothing to be disinfected into a tub of water in which one ounce of this disinfectant has been dissolved in every three gallons of water.

Quick-lime—To absorb moisture and putrid fluids and free from foul smells: Use fresh stone lime finely broken and sprinkle or place in plates or pan, or whitewash with pure lime in damp rooms.

Sesqui chloride of iron, for vaults: Take a solution of 1.30 specific gravity and throw it into vaults, or, better still, use what is known as metropolitan disinfecting fluid, which is the solution of the sesqui chloride of iron with 10 per cent of carbolic acid.

Sulphurous acid for the disinfection of infected apartments, carpets, etc., to which boiling heat can not be applied: The windows and doors leading out of the infected room to be closed, then fumigate with burning sulphur. The room must remain under the action from two to six hours. A common tenement-room will require about two pounds of sulphur to be burned on a sheet-iron pan supported by an iron stand nine inches high.

Sulphate of Iron (copperas)—To disinfect the same as carbolic acid: One of the best disinfectants is made by dissolving eight or ten pounds of the sulphate in five gallons of water, and add one pint of fluid carbolic acid. Stir or agitate the mixture briskly to make a complete solution. Use in the same manner as was directed for carbolic acid, only pour double the quantity morning and evening into water-closet pans.

Sulphate of zinc may be used for the same purpose as permanganate potassa. Use two ounces of the sulphate to one gill of water.—St. Louis Republican.

A Generous Lad.

Last Sunday a young clergyman from a young congregation preached, by exchange, to a congregation which is one of the serene, old-fashioned, undisturbed sort, where everything theological passes placidly from one year to another, and where the rising generation's undoubted human nature is allowed for in a quiet, sensible way. The visiting clergyman remained to the Sunday school, and after the exercises were about halt finished he rose to make a little speech.

"I know that you are an enterprising Sunday school," he said, "because I see so many new books. I know that you are a happy Sunday school, because I see so many smiling faces around me. And I know that you are a generous Sunday school, because that little boy over there by the long pew door offered me a peanut as I came in." The attention of the assembly was instantly directed to the little boy, who began to snicker uncontrollably to himself.

"Well, what's the matter, my little man?" asked the clergyman. "You're not sorry you offered me the peanut, are you?"

"Did you th-think that was a peanut I gave you?" asked the little boy, still snickering violently.

"Why, yes; wasn't it?"

"No—o—o! 'twas only a shell!"—Boston Post.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting are affected as to be painless, the nerves so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distress ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1. POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON.

Old Deacon Dobson boasted that he was always "prepared for the worst;" and so he was, for he always kept Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the house, regarding it the only safe remedy for coughs and colds.

Dennis Kennedy, the man who was stabbed at Salmon Falls by William Collins, is twenty-three years old, and weighs about 140 lbs.; Collins is thirty-two years old, and weighs 210. The latter used to be on the Boston & Maine road, as baggage-master. Kennedy went from Dover to Salmon Falls some time ago, and opened a drinking place, Collins being his barkeeper. The two men boarded at a Mr. Harvey's, in "the lane," so called, and Collins paid much attention to Georgie Harvey, a girl of sixteen; about two months ago the younger man "cut him out," and since then the discarded suitor has been very ill-disposed to his rival.

The Bill is all Right.

Representative Perry Belmont of New York introduced in the house on the 17th inst. a bill to protect American vessels against unwarrantable and unlawful discriminations in the ports of British North America, and it was referred to the committee on foreign affairs. The following is the text of the bill:

SECTION 1. That hereafter whenever the president shall be satisfied that vessels of the United States are denied in the ports of the British provinces of North America, bordering on the Atlantic ocean, or in the waters adjacent to said provinces, rights to which said vessels are entitled by treaty or by the law of nations, he may, by proclamation, prohibit vessels bearing the British flag, and coming from such ports, from entering the ports of the United States, or from exercising such privileges therein as he may in his proclamation define, and if, on and after the date at which such proclamation takes effect, the master or other person in charge of any such vessel shall do, in the ports, harbors or waters of the United States, for or on account of such vessel any act forbidden by such proclamation aforesaid, such vessel and its rigging, tackle, furniture and boats, and all the goods on board, shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture to the United States; and any person or persons preventing, or attempting to prevent, or aiding any other person in preventing, or attempting to prevent, any officer of the United States from enforcing this act, shall forfeit and pay to the United States $1000, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

Sect. 2. That the president may also by such proclamation forbid the entrance into the United States of all merchandise coming by land from the provinces of British North America, and may also forbid the entrance into the United States of the cars, locomotives or other rolling stock, of any railway company chartered under the laws of said provinces; and upon proof that the privileges secured by Article 29, of the treaty concluded between the United States and Great Britain on the 8th day of May, 1871, are denied as to goods, wares and merchandise arriving at the ports of British North America, the president may also, by proclamation, forbid the exercise of the like privileges as to goods, wares and merchandise arriving in any of the ports of the United States; and any person violating or attempting to violate the provisions of any proclamation issued under this section shall forfeit and pay to the United States the sum of $1,000, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

Sect. 3. That whenever after the issuance of a proclamation under this act the president is satisfied that the denial of rights and privileges on which his proclamation was based no longer exists, he may withdraw the proclamation or so much thereof as he may deem proper, and reissue the same thereafter when in his judgment the same shall be necessary.

This bill on a cursory examination seems all right; but what use is it to give the president more power in the premises, when he persistently refuses to exercise the power previously granted him, and his secretary of state is guided solely by the advice of the British minister?

Rev. Father Donnelly has been assigned to and accepted the pastorate of St. Stephen's Catholic church in New York, made vacant by the retirement of Dr. McGlynn, consequent on his championship of Henry George. Dr. McGlynn's followers strongly protest against this appointment.

In one essential the case of Dr. McGlynn is like that of the Andover professors. Whatever sympathy there may be for his independence of thought and speech, he belongs to a church and has subscribed to rules of discipline which do not admit of their exercises, and his only choice is to submit or to leave the church. In the Andover case it is a legal question, but of the same character.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, by constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did take the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

WILSON & RANKIN'S MINSTRELS.

The performance in Music hall this evening by the Wilson & Rankin company will be an excellent entertainment. George Wilson and Carl Rankin are both well known to the lovers of minstrelsy in this city, and need no word of recommendation. New and novel features are announced, and all who go may be sure of an evening of continual fun.

POLICE COURT.

George Laskey, charged with drunkenness, was allowed to go on probation.

Lizzie Murphy, for drunkenness, was sent to Brentwood for ninety days, and ordered to pay $6.90 costs.

Charles Marston, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90. Brentwood in default of payment.

John Condon, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90. Jail.

THE LOCAL COAL TRADE.

There are in this city five dealers in coal who have storage capacity on the wharves of the city. These dealers have severally accommodation for coal as follows:

Philbrick & Co.	1000 tons
Benjamin Russell	1500 "
E. F. Sise & Co.	1500 "
C. E. Walker & Co.	4000 "
J. Albert Walker	5000 "

Besides this pocket room, all the dealers have access to other wharves, where they can accommodate almost unlimited supplies. In no case do dealers in this city purchase enough at one time, but buy from time to time during the year, so that the amount they are able to store in their sheds does not represent the amount sold by any means. It is estimated that from 18,000 to 20,000 tons are sold and consumed annually in our community, and 5000 tons more consumed in in surrounding towns, but purchased in this city.—Times.

A FLOURISHING ORGANIZATION.

SOUTH ELIOT, ME., Jan 17th.

Piscataqua Commandery, No., 189, United Order of the Golden Cross, held its regular meeting Thursday evening, the 13th inst., when the following-named officers were installed by M. P. Tobey, D. G. C.:

J. L. M. Willis, N. C.;
Sarah S. Shapley, N. V. C.;
Mary F. Athorne, W. P.;
W. H. Staples, K. R.;
B. M. Dixon, F. K. R.;
L. W. Adams, W. T.;
A. A. Shapley, W. H.;
Lizzie A. Adams, W. I. G.;
Oliver Athorn, W. O. G.;
J. H. Dixon, P. N. C.

This commandery was instituted March 28th, 1882, by C. F. Pressey, D. S. C., with eighteen charter members, since which time its membership has increased to sixty beneficiary, and three social.

It has lost by death four members, and by withdrawal three, leaving a present membership of fifty-four beneficiary and two social, which includes many of the most respected and influential citizens of the town.

The names of the deceased members, and the amounts for which they were insured, were as follows:

Clara E. Staples, $1,000;
Laura J. Ireland, $1,000;
Elbridge Brooks, $2,000;
Samuel Fernald, $2,000;

The insurance having all been paid promptly.

The present beneficiary members are carrying an aggregate insurance of $57,500.

PUTTING THEIR OWN SHOULDERS TO THE WHEEL.

The people of Kittery Point, disappointed at the action of the Kittery town meeting on Monday in regard to the proposal to aid in the scheme to have the new railroad run over the Point route, on Monday evening started a subscription, and had $2,000 of stock subscribed for before Tuesday night; they hope to get at least $10,000 of the stock taken at the Point, which will ensure the road's passing that way.

THE PROJECT NOT YET DEAD.

It is reported that several new bills providing for the sale of the city farm will be introduced in the common council at its next meeting, in the place of the one laid on the table with such vigor at the last meeting of that board. Each of the new bills it is said provides for the building of a suitable place for the care of the city poor, before the sale of the farm is to be allowed.

HE LED THE SINGING.

One of the leading teachers of this city on Friday of last week braved the wintry storm and visited the far north, to lecture before a Teachers' Institute, then in session at Ossipee. He is a man of science as well as nerve, and his talk about physics, illustrated with ingeniously contrived apparatus, was highly instructive and interesting. Others prominent in educational matters who were expected, were not so successful in combatting the elements, and on our devoted teacher fell the burden of the occasion,—and he was equal to the emergency. The programme was successfully carried through, the gallant and dignified principal leading gracefully, in the singing which closed the exercises,

"'Tis good in every case, you know,
To have two strings unto your bow."

MARITIME NOTES.

Capt. James Burke, assistant keeper at Boon island light station, came in from the island on Monday for a week's stay ashore. He says the report brought to this city a week or more ago by a York man, to the effect that a big fire had been that morning seen on Boon island, and it was supposed some of the buildings had gone up in smoke, was unfounded, so far as he is aware; the buildings were all right when he left, and the people on the island all well.

Twenty men were employed on the south end wharves, Tuesday, taking care of the large quantity of fish landed that day and the previous night.

Seventy-five barrels of Newfoundland herring have been received by the fish dealers here within a few days past; they are much larger and fatter than the herring from Grand Menan, and sell at $1.75 per hundred, by count, for bait.

While the schooner Little Kate, of Rockport, was jogging under easy sail in Ipswich bay about three o'clock Tuesday morning, she was run into by an unknown vessel, and had her foremast head carried away and her foresail badly torn. She made the lower harbor during the day, and was towed up to Rollins' wharf in the afternoon by the steamer James Sampson.

The recipts of fish on Monday night and Tuesday were the heaviest of the season at this port, reaching well up to 100,000 lbs.; the prices paid were from $2 to $2.50 per hundred lbs., E. Newton & Co. taking over 50,000 lbs. The E. A. Williams brought in 2000 lbs.; the Golden Rule, 22,000; Georgia Hagan, 7,000; Abbie Snow, 4000; Mary Amanda, 4000; John W. Caswell, 1200; Hattie N. Reed, 3000; Bonita, 2000; Grace Choate, 4000; Lady Thorn, 4000; Rover's Bride, 4000: Helen M. Tredick, 7000; Mary E. Smith, 2500; Agnes E. Downs, 7000; Albert Woodbury, 4000; A. C. Newhall, 4000; Little Kate, 2000; Flora Temple, 2000; Josie Johnson, 1200; Comet, 4000.

The schooner Susan Stetson, Frisbee master, is hauled up for the winter at Morse's wharf, Boston. The schooner Thomas B. Garland, Kelley master, with a cargo of coal for Weymouth, is lying at Simpson's wharf, East Boston, to wait for the going out of the ice so she can reach her destination.

The schooner Annie F. Conlon, Seaward master, which had such a rough experience at False Cape, Va., a few weeks ago, arrived at this port from Baltimore on the 18th inst., with coal to J. Albert Walker.

The police had no trouble in keeping the sidewalks and corners clear of loafers, Tuesday evening.

Miss Blanche Barrett, daughter of Samuel Barrett, general freight agent of the Concord Railroad, formerly of this city, will spend the winter in St. Paul, Minn.

The social assembly in Congress hall under the management of Messrs. Conner, Emery, Church and Rowe, Tuesday evening, was attended by a large party, and a very enjoyable evening was passed.

During the missionary convention at Concord, to be held on the 31st of January and the 1st day of February, the Concord railroad will put tickets on sale in this city and Newmarket Junction, for two cents per mile the round trip. These tickets will be available to any who may on the days named desire to go to Concord.

The two rear cars on a Boston and Rockport train, due in Salem at 11:25 Monday forenoon, left the rails when two miles from Swampscott, and were dragged quite a distance. The rear car was thrown across both tracks near Castle Hill in Salem, and all trains were blocked until the tracks were cleared, which was done in about one hour.

Andrew Roberts raffled off his black mare "Bess," Saturday night, at the United States hotel. Hiram Locke of Portsmouth held the lucky number, "43," and was offered and refused $150 for the mare as soon as he got her.—Dover Democrat.

The Piscataqua Association of Congregational ministers met at Greenland with Rev. Edward Robie, D. D., Tuesday, Jan. 18th.

No man should carry a demijohn in this slippery weather, even if it does contain vinegar. It looks mighty suspicious when he lies down beside it on the sidewalk.

The Ella Hill Burlesque company is an excellent organization, and deserves success. There is nothing in it to offend, and everything to amuse. The singing of Miss Polly Wilson and the sketch of Fox and Ward are enough to make any show a go. Don't miss the performance if you enjoy a hearty laugh.—Lawrence American.

At Music hall Friday evening. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's.

The signal service bureau, which foretells our cold waves and storms, asks for an increased appropriation. Unless it gives us better weather than we've been having for some time, the request should be sternly denied.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York paid death claims amounting to $103,765.87, for the week ending Jan. 19th. Endowments for same time $27,796.13.

Ex-Senator Rollins and wife are to pass the remainder of the winter at the Eagle Hotel in Concord.

Pensions were granted on the 17th inst. to A. W. Shaw of Hampton and D. M. Streeter of Hinsdale.

The Manchester papers report that a pair of robins were seen in that city last Monday forenoon, on the Amoskeag corporation. They were first discovered by Capt. David Perkins, and he called the attention of numerous acquaintances to the unusual sight. One of the birds was a male and the other a female, and they were perched in a high elm. They were heard to sing several times.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1829 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and of her advice in regard and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while building some years ago was thrown violently a-stride the line fence and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philade phia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." For knowledge of what kind of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that one woman is ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

An Early Hanging in Boston.

Lucius Manlius Sargent gave in his book, published several years ago, a quaint illustration of the customs which obtained here in Boston within the past forty or fifty years. He said that as there were very few inexpensive amusements in Boston, besides the Thursday lecture hangings were especially attractive. While riding out of the city in a chaise he was compelled to halt and remain at rest for twenty minutes on Washington, near Pleasant street, while an immense mass of men, women, and children rushed by on their way to the execution of an Irishman which took place at the gallows near the graveyard on the Neck. The prisoner was in an open barouche, and this publicity, taken in connection with the way in which he was dressed, showed how desirable a parade was thought to be in connection with an execution. He wore a blue coat with gilt buttons, white waistcoat, drab breeches, and white top boots, and his hair was powdered. He was accompanied by Mr. Larrasay, the Catholic priest, and the physician of the prison.—Boston Post.

He Had Been Figuring.

"Well, it does beat all what fools people are getten' to be," said an old farmer, who sat in a seat in the corner, pencil and paper in hand. "Here I read in the paper that Mister Abbey gives Patti, the opera singer, $3,000 a night fer singin', an' 50 per cent of the receipts above $4,000. At a concert in New York the gate money was $9.000, an' Mrs. Patti must have got $5,500 of that. Great gosh, what a farm that would buy out in Iowa! But I've been figurin' on this thing, and I want you to take a look at the results. The paper says she sang five songs. Jawbill likens, but that's more than $1,000 a song. It couldn't take her mor'n ten minutes to sing one of her pieces, an' that's $100 a minute, or nearly $2 a second. By gosh. I'm goin' to have my darters educated to be singers."—Chicago Herald.

Mr. JOHN W. FURBUSH,

An Army Veteran,

OF WAKEFIELD,

who has probably suffered more than any man or woman in America to-day. Taken sick while in the Army, he has endured untold agonies since. Describing his first symptoms he said. "My head ached and my appetite was poor. I felt a faintness at the pit of the stomach, and a bad taste in my mouth, while my skin was sometimes hot and sometimes cold. I next felt pains in my back and around the lower portion of my body, and noticed a peculiar odor and color in the water I passed, which was scanty at one time and free at others. Sometimes it pained me to void it, and again it was almost impossible to do so at all. Finally I began to pass clear blood accompanied with the greatest strain and agony."

No less than 20 eminent physicians attended Mr. Furbush at various times, but not one of them could help him. He was near death's door. And yet he says: "I am alive and well to-day, wholly through the wonderful power of Hunt's Remedy, which took me from the verge of the grave."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Littell's Living Age.

IN 1887 THE LIVING AGE enters upon its forty-fourth year, having met with continuous commendation and success.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE, it gives fifty-two numbers of sixty-four pages each, or more than double-column octavo pages of reading-matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted,

Three and a Quarter Thousand

The best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical, and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature, and from the pens of the

FOREMOST LIVING WRITERS.

The ablest and most cultivated intellects in every department of Literature, Science, Politics, and fresh expression in the Periodical Literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain.

The Living Age, for mining four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the COMPLETENESS with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value.

It is therefore indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste.

Opinions.

"To have THE LIVING AGE is to hold the keys of the entire world of thought, of scientific investigation, psychological research, critical judgment, of poetry and romance. . It has never been so bright, so comprehensive, so diversified in interest, as it is to-day."—Boston Traveller.

"It is one of the publications that intelligent people regard as practically indispensable. From its pages one learns what the world is thinking about. . It is an education in itself, as well as an entertainment."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"It contains nearly all the good literature of the time. . There is nothing noteworthy in science, art, literature, biography, philosophy, or religion, that cannot be found in it. . It is a library in itself."—The Churchman, New York.

"It may be truthfully and cordially said that it never offers a dry or valueless page."—New York Tribune.

"Nearly the whole world of authors and writers appear in it in their best moods. . The reader is kept well abreast of the current thought of the age."—Boston Journal.

"Foremost of the eclectic periodicals."—N. Y. World.

"It furnishes a complete compilation of an indispensable literature."—Chicago Evening Journal.

"It enables its readers to keep fully abreast of the best thought and literature of civilization."—Christian Advocate, Pittsburgh.

"It has become indispensable."—New York Observer.

"It keeps well up its reputation for being the best periodical in the world."—Morning Star, Wilmington, N. C.

The annual ball of the residents of the Commonwealth hotel, Boston, and their friends, took place on Thursday evening of last week in the ball room of the hotel, about 300 persons participating. Baldwin's Cadet orchestra, stationed in a clump of trees, supplied music. Supper was served at midnight, and the dancing was kept up until the morning hours. The management committee were T. P. Lovell and Franklyn W. Howes, assisted by E. B. Rundlett and others; and the Courier refers to the affair as one of the greatest successes of the season. Among the more elaborate toilettes reported were those of Mrs. Holbrook, pale blue satin and white lace; Mrs. Carter, ashes of roses, broche and duchesse lace, pompadour corsage; Mrs. Fred A. Winslow, pink tulle over satin slip; Mrs. Rodliff, heliotrope satin, square train; Miss Munroe, canary tulle over satin slip; Mrs. Charles Morris, white albatross cloth, walking length, black velvet corsage; Mrs. O. B. Wright, plain black velvet princess gown and diamond ornaments; Mrs. Samuel Thompson was a blaze of diamonds, both necklace and cross, and wore an exquisite toilette of bronze satin and broche in oriental design; Mrs. Rundlett, white tulle over satin slip; Miss Carter, pink and white satin, interwoven in arabesque figures; etc.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

Four dead bodies, charred beyond recognition, were found Jan. 17th in the debris of a freight car which was burned at Paducah, Ky., on the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern railway. They are supposed to have been tramps stealing a ride; whether white or black it is impossible to say. The car was locked at Memphis, but the men must have entered through a window in the end, which could have been opened from the outside.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates those processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion, are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

Thieves boarded a freight train on the Panhandle railroad near Sheridan station, Penn., and had a hand-to-hand fight with the trainmen, wounding several of them, two quite dangerously.

The most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and tonic influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

Something like a fracture in the solid south appears in the election of an independent democrat by republican votes to the speakership of the lower house in the North Carolina legislature. Also, in Arkansas, where an ex-officer of the Union army was chosen speaker by the aid of ex-confederate votes. Is the millenium dawning?

King Kalakaua of the Hawaiian islands has gambled away $74,000 deposited by poor people in the Postal savings bank.

Mellin's Food, the only substitute for mothers' milk, is recommended by our most prominent physicians as the best and safest food for infants. It contains no farinaceous matter, which so often produces disorders of the stomach.

Saturday, Jan. 15th, Mr. Charles King, of Middleton, Mass.,—probably the oldest man in New England—celebrated his 106th birthday. He is a Canadian, having been born in the province of Quebec.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten, And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

Inflammation of the Kidneys.

Bazaar, Chase county, Kansas, Feb. 10th, 1886.—I have been afflicted with chronic inflammation of the kidneys. I suffered so much pain that I could not lie on my back or lean back against a chair. My water also contained a chalky sediment. I tried many remedies, but could get no relief. I then took two Allcock's Plasters and put one over each kidney, making them meet on my backbone. These plasters, strange as it may seem, cured me in a week. All soreness was gone, and my urine was natural.

A Girl's Reading.

We all know Charles Lamb's views on the subject of early reading, as expressed in his triumphant vindication of Bridget Elia's happily neglected education: "She was tumbled by accident or design into a spacious closet of good old English books, without much selection or prohibition, and browsed at will upon that fair and wholesome pasturage. Had I twenty girls, they should be brought up exactly in this fashion." It is natural that but few parents are anxious to risk so hazardous an experiment, especially as the training of "incomparable old maids" is hardly the recognized summit of maternal ambition; but Bridget Elia at least ran no danger of intellectual starvation, while, if we pursue a modern school-girl along the track of her self-chosen reading, we shall be astonished that so much printed matter can yield so little mental nourishment. She has begun, no doubt, with childish stories, bright and well written, probably, but following each other in such quick succession that none of them have left any distinct impression on her mind. Books that children read but once are of scant service to them; those that have really helped to warm our imaginations and to train our faculties are the few old friends we know so well that they have become a portion of our thinking selves. At ten or twelve the little girl aspires to some thing partly grown-up,—to those nondescript tales which, trembling ever on the brink of sentiment, seem afraid to risk the plunge; and with her appetite whetted by a course of this unsatisfying diet, she is soon ripe for a little more excitement and a great deal more love, so graduates into Rhoda Broughton and the "Duchess," at which point her intellectual career is closed. She has no idea, even, of what she has missed in the world of books. She tells you that she "don't care for Dickens," and "can't get interested in Scott," with a placidity that plainly shows she lays the blame for this state of affairs on the two great masters who have amused and charmed the world. As for Northanger Abbey, or Emma, she would as soon think of finding entertainment in Henry Esmond. She has probably never read a single masterpiece of our language; she has never been moved by a noble poem, or stirred to the quick by a well-told page of history; she has never opened the pores of her mind for the reception of a vigorous thought, or the solution of a mental problem; yet she may be found daily in the circulating library, and is seldom visible on the street without a book or two under her arm.—Agnes Repplier, in January Atlantic.

Different Styles of Advertisements.

"The style of advertising has greatly changed within the past few years," said a gentleman in charge of the advertising department of one of Brooklyn's largest dry-goods establishments to an Eagle reporter. "An advertisement to command attention must be original. The public have tired of such 'ads' as 'John Smith will receive his customers at his old stand,' or 'Blank & Blank sell dry goods cheaper than any other house in town.' The present generation is progressive, and to attract attention one must be original. Old-fashioned 'ads' are played out. In former years, even in such big houses as Stewart's in New York, the clerk at the button counter was delegated in his off moments to write the advertisements for the newspapers. Now all is changed. Every large business house has its separate advertisement department. Some houses employ as many as two and three men to look after their advertising. Since the pictorial craze has obtained such a foothold many firms head their columns with pictures descriptive of the goods offered for sale. And then the ad must be written so as to attract the eye of the reader. If a firm has a quantity of underwear to sell, it is folly to say so in the first line. First get your reader interested. Talk about the north pole; say that it is cold in that region and incidentally mention that winter is coming and that underwear at this season is not an inappropriate subject. And then, in a confidential way, tell the reader that your firm has many cases of underwear, purchased at a bankrupt sale perhaps, which will be sold at one-half its value. Intersperse if you like a witty saying here and there, but unless you wish to kill your ad. in the first line give prices. Ten years ago prices were never given. Now an ad. commands but little attention unless prices are attached."

"Do you believe in the value of advertising?"

"Certainly. Were in not for newspaper advertising and advertising by mail many Brooklyn firms would not be doing business. When one looks back and notes the difference between newspaper advertising twenty years ago and to day the changes which have taken place are marvelous. How many fortunes have been made by booming inferior patent medicine? Newspaper advertising is yet in its infancy and I hope for great things in the future."—Brooklyn Eagle.

If any one can speak from theatrical experience it is Mme. Janauschek, and her opinion may be commended to stage-struck girls: "I have been thirty-three years on the stage," says this gifted lady, "and I say there is no life like it. It has no happiness; it leaves you no time for domestic or social pleasures, no time for anything but work, work, work. I was once a good pianist, but for years I have hardly touched a piano. I love to draw, but there is no time. All is work and travel, travel and work. To girls who think of going on the stage, again I say no, no, no!"

For Senator, Henry L. Dawes.

On Wednesday, Jan. 19th, the two houses of the Massachusetts legislature met in convention to elect a United States senator to succeed Henry L. Dawes. The first vote was as follows:

Whole number of votes	275
Necessary for a choice	138
Henry L. Dawes had	76
John D. Long	43
George D. Robinson	53

As soon as the clerk had finished calling the roll there was a stampede of democrats from Collins to Dawes, and of republicans from Long to Dawes, so that when the result of the vote was declared it was as follows:

Dawes 181, Robinson 57, Long 26, Collins 11, John E. Russell 1—and Mr. Dawes was declared elected.

A Practical "Joke."

On the evening of the 18th inst. a frightful disaster took place in London. The Hebrew Dramatic Club gave an entertainment at a theatre in Princess street, Spitalfields, which was attended by about 500 persons, mostly Jews. Some one in the gallery, doubtless for a joke, shouted "Fire." The gas was immediately turned off at the meter, and a terrible panic ensued. The people rushed in a solid mass for the doors, and numbers were trodden under foot. When the panic had subsided, it was found that twelve women and five youths had been trampled to death in the rush to escape, and many others injured. It is not reported that the funny fellow who caused the tragedy lost his life, but it is to be hoped so.

G. W. Collins, for assault with intent to kill Dennis A. Kennedy at Salmon Falls, was held in $500 for the supreme court, Kennedy's injuries not proving so serious as was at first thought. Collins secured sureties.

The pupils of the High school have organized a dancing school, and secured the services of Mr. Edney of Haverhill, Mass., formerly of this city, as teacher. The school opened in Franklin hall on Tuesday evening of this week, the class numbering about eighty young ladies and gentlemen. After Twenty-Five Years of Republican Rule.

The inexorable logic of figures tells what the tariff and republican party have done for the workingmen of America, and these figures, too, are the result of the work of a democrat and a free-trader, Gen. Francis A. Walker, who superintended the taking of the last census.

The twentieth volume of the census report is devoted to the questions of wages and the cost of living for a series of years. Mr. Edward Atkinson has examined this volume and compiled some facts from it that are both interesting and instructive. The writer of this article has verified the conclusions of Mr. Atkinson, and will give some of the facts.

In sixty manufacturing establishments a computation was made of the wages paid to engineers, blacksmiths, machinists, painters, and carpenters employed in them, with the following results:

In 1860 the average wages paid these men was $1.56, or $468 for the 300 working days in a year. This was after years of democratic rule and free-trade.

In 1885, after twenty-five years of republican rule and a high tariff, these same classes of artisans received $2.40 per day, or $720 a year.

The wages of the laborers in these establishments were $303 a year in 1860 and $450 in 1885. These figures show an increase of fifty per cent in the wages of the laborer and fifty-five per cent in the wages of the artisan.

But democratic statesmen say at once: "If your tariff has increased wages it has also increased the expenses of living in a still greater ratio."

This statement is answered in the same volume, and answered in a way to cover these sham statements with confusion.

The prices of all needed articles for the support of a man one day, including all he eats, wears, and drinks, everything but house rent, was also determined, both for 1860 and 1885. The result shows that the cost of a day's living in 1860 was thirty-one cents, and in 1885 it was thirty cents for precisely the same articles of food and clothing.

For the 365 days in the year in 1860 the laboring man, on the average, paid $113 to feed and clothe himself, thirty-seven per cent of all he earned. In 1885 he paid $109, only twenty-four per cent of what he earned.

Can there be any better argument in favor of a protective tariff and republican rule than is presented by these figures?"
—Washington Republican.

My Favorite Receipt.

Some time ago the Royal Baking Powder Co., conceived the idea of collecting from its patrons, for redistribution among them when printed in book form, their best and favorite methods for the preparation of articles of food of all descriptions. In response there were furnished a very large number of practical receipts, from which were selected the 3000 contained in the book entitled "My Favorite Receipt." The publication was intended originally for the contributors only, but the collection proved to be of such remarkable value that its publishers believing its circulation would be productive of good in affording a larger knowledge as to the practical preparation of real home cookery in a way to make it most wholesome and appetizing, have issued an edition for general circulation, which is sold at cost of production and postage. "My Favorite Receipt" contains formulas for the preparation of almost every known dish in every conceivable way. These have been classified into departments representing Soups and Broths, Fish and Shell Fish, Vegetables, Meats, Stews, Poultry and Game, Eggs, Salads, Desserts, Breads, Cake, Condiments, Beverages, Ices, Preserves and Pickles, Preserved Meats, Canned Vegetables, etc., to which a copious index is added. Every branch of the culinary art has received ample attention. The publication is one of unusual value, from the fact that the receipts are thoroughly tested formulas of genuine home cookery. In it each contributor vouches for the utility of her receipt not only, but attests that years of experience have proved it the best way of making the article named, and signs her name and address to it as an evidence of its genuineness and her faith in its superiority.

The practical character of the receipts will especially commend them to American housekeepers. While cookery of the very finest and richest, as well as the most plain and economical, is provided for, "My Favorite Receipt" is not, like many of the cook books of the day, a collection of impracticable, untried, or foreign formulas, following which frequently results in a failure and a waste of good materials. The contributions are from every part of the country and give the best experience of the best cooks for preparing the dishes peculiar to each locality.

"My Favorite Receipt" handsomely printed and bound, is sent by the Royal Baking Powder Co., New York, at the nominal price of fifty cents, to any address, express charges paid.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, by constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

CHAS. O. V. BAGLEY, Grocer,

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, disease of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unequaled. 3

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE

Free Numbers to New Readers.

Its Great Attractions in 1887—A Circulation of a Quarter of a Million—Gaining 75,000 in Six Months with the War Papers—Its New Feature, "The Life of Lincoln."

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE gained 75,000 circulation in six months with the War Papers; it has gained 30,000 in six weeks with the Life of Lincoln. We want every reader of this paper to read this great work, in which will be revealed

"THE INSIDE HISTORY OF THE WAR."

It is the Life of "the greatest hero of modern times," written by his Confidential Secretaries,

Col. John Hay and John G. Nicolay,

who were with the President throughout the war. To them were handed all Lincoln's private papers on his death, and for twenty-one years they have been at work upon this history. It began in the November CENTURY. New subscribers who begin with the January, 1887, number will receive November and December numbers free if they ask for them. Send $4.00 to THE CENTURY CO. 33 East 17th St. New-York, in check, draft, express or money order (do not send cash). Mention this paper. Ask for a year's subscription, beginning with January, '87, and the two free numbers. You will not regret the expenditure. You will get what the New-York Star calls

"The Most Remarkable Biography ever Produced in the United States."

You will also obtain opening chapters of Frank R. Stockton's new novel, and the beginning of other serial features. The November CENTURY was called by a famous London newspaper "without exception the most marvelous periodical we ever saw."

We have made a special issue of the November and December numbers for this offer, and we will print as many editions as are needed. THE CENTURY CO. N. Y.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Warmer, southerly winds, fair weather, followed by snow.

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 12 degrees above zero.

Sky clear.

SOME COLD.

Tuesday night of this week was the coldest of the winter, and the mercury on Wednesday morning at seven o'clock was at four degrees below zero at A. P. Preston's store, six below at Goodrich's, corner of Daniel and Market streets, twelve below at the Globe grocery and the Chronicle office, fourteen below at the police station, eighteen below on the southerly side of the south millbridge, at several places on Christian Shore, and at Highland street and Broad street, twenty below at Beacham's stable, twenty-two below at the March farm on Greenland road, twenty-four below on Middle street, near Mr. Christie's residence, and twenty-five below at the Eldredge brewery. Wonder if this is Capt. Greely's idea of comfortable weather.

G. A. R. INSTALLATION.

At the regular meeting of Storer Post, G. A. R., Wednesday evening, Jan. 19th, the following comrades were installed officers for the current year by Past Department Commander M. M. Collis:

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A young man named Breed, of Hampton, eighteen years old, an attendant at the Putnam school in Newburyport, while on the railroad station at Newburyport about five o'clock P. M. on the 19th inst., cut himself quite seriously under the left arm in an attempt to commit suicide. He was taken to the hospital.

ELLA HILL'S BURLESQUE CO.

Burlesque in a clean form is what we seldom have now-a-days, yet the Ella Hill Burlesque company seems to have hit the mark exactly. The people of the company serve to please, and from the applause last night, succeeded most admirably. Ella Hill, Polly Wilson, Daisy Oakland, and Fox and Ward were especially well received. — Hartford Times.

"PREVENTIVE" PORTS OF ENTRY.

The introduction in the national house of representatives of the bill to abolish any customs district where the receipts do not equal the expenditures, as is the case at York and Saco, has given rise to much discussion. Congressman Reed, of the first congressional district of Maine, in response to a correspondent's inquiry as to the probable effect of the bill upon Maine interests said: "I do not see how it can be otherwise than injurious. The districts are abolished entirely on the ground of pecuniary economy, because the receipts at these ports were less than expenses. They do not take into consideration at all the necessities and convenience of the people affected. It must work great injury to Maine's coastwise trade."

Mr. Reed further said that he doubted whether the proposed change would result in any pecuniary saving even, as the secretary of the treasury is authorized to establish sub-ports and appoint deputy collectors in customs districts when it may be found necessary for the protection of revenue and the convenience of commerce; and in his opinion these deputies would be found to cost fully as much as the collectors abolished. He might have added that if such deputy collectors were not appointed to take the places of the collectors dismissed, the falling off in customs duties collected in the districts still retained would probably be much in excess of the sums saved, owing to the much greater facilities for smuggling which would result.

The fact in the matter undoubtedly is, that this move to abolish the customs districts which are not self-sustaining is merely a democratic scheme to make political capital, and is not intended to be carried out. If it can be carried through the house as a measure of democratic "economy," it will not be approved by the senate, and the democratic orators and papers in the next national contest will have a magnificent chance to howl about "republican opposition to any measure intended to lighten the crushing burdens of taxation."

The "preventive ports of entry," as they have been termed, were not established under republican rule; nearly every one of them existed before the republican party came into existence, or the democratic party either, for that matter, and the democratic party never thought of abolishing them during the long series of years in which the democrats ruled the nation. After the republicans took charge of national affairs the democrats discovered that their abolition was demanded in the interests of economy, and there has been a periodical clamor to that effect ever since. Were the senate democratic to-day, as well as the house and the president, not a whimper would be heard in regard to legislating out of snug office so many democratic worthies.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

The recovery of the small additional sums which possibly may be realized for claimants, depends upon action of the courts. To recover this amount a case has to be made up and tried. The amounts accruing to each claimant being so very small, the only satisfactory mode of achieving a result is to co-operate, and have some one present collectively these claims.

The Boston claimants to no small degree have placed their claims in the hands of Samuel Stevens, who will make a joint presentation of their claims. Any claimant in this city who desires to have his claim presented with others, can find a paper for signature at the office of William H. Hackett. Several of the claimants have already placed their interests in the hands of Mr. Stevens, who at his own expense retains counsel, prints testimony, and in case of an ultimate recovery distributes the various small drafts for the additional proceeds. Messrs. Glidden & Williams, John S. Emery, E. D. Peters & Co., and others who are interested as co-owners with vessel owners in this city, have placed their claims with Mr. Stevens. Of course any individual or separate action in this matter would not pay the postage to prosecute it. It is only by an aggregate claim that anything can result to any separate owner, and not by a separate action.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Golden Rule, of Swampscott, Mass., is "high line" of the vessels fishing out of this port this season, for a single trip, she having brought in 20,000 lbs. of fish on Tuesday, the 18th inst., and received $438 for her fare. The Gertie Freeman, of Newburyport, Thurlow master, is high line for the whole season, in proportion to the number of her crew, her earnings having aggregated $2000, giving her five men $200 each, clear of all expenses, since the 1st of November.

The schooner Cora C. Meader, Meader master, arrived at Portland on the 17th inst. from Boothbay. This schooner is a fine new vessel of ninety-eight tons, built at Bath, Me., and intended for the carrying of phosphate between Boothbay, Portland and Portsmouth.

The schooner Annie F. Conlon came up river on Wednesday, the 19th, to discharge her cargo of coal, after which she will load apples for Baltimore under charter by Charles H. Hayes.

AN INGENIOUS CONTRIVANCE.

In the window of Trafton's jewelry store on Congress street can be seen during cold weather a simple and inexpensive but very effective arrangement for keeping the window panes free from frost. It consists of a brass pipe half an inch in diameter and long enough to reach across the window, plugged at the ends, and having the middle connected with a gas-pipe by a flexible tube. A row of minute holes, about an inch apart, are drilled in one side of the pipe, and when frost forms on the glass the pipe is laid across the bottom of the window, two or three inches from the sash, and the gas turned on and a match applied, starting a row of miniature gas lights less than an inch in height and not much bigger than a pin. The contrivance burns but a trifling amount of gas, but heat enough is generated to keep the window free of frost.

The eleventh annual report of the class of 1876, of Dartmouth college, has been issued by William H. Gardiner, chief clerk of the United States bureau of education at Washington, a member of the class. The work was compiled with great faithfulness, and contains a large amount of interesting personal matter. Mr. Gardiner is a native of this city, a son of Joseph H. Gardiner, Esq., and is a graduate of our High school.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Insurance Notice.
THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,
AT THE OLD STAND,
No. 13 Pleasant Street,
PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!
NOTE.—Mr. Isley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

SKIN & SCALP
Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.
For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.
A COMPLETE CURE.
I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.
SALT RHEUM CURED.
I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured. E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.
DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.
Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Kintz, who had teeter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. R. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Is a Positive Cure

For ALL of those Painful Delicate Complaints and Complicated troubles and Weaknesses so common among our Wives, Mothers, and Daughters.

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1839 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently against the line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until it took a round form. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and relieving the pain and dangers of childbirth. Philade phia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means place d before them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

The Drummer's New Game.

"Boys, I've struck a new game since I saw you last, and it is going to be popular sure enough. Cards are all right in a smoking-car with the boys, but what a fellow wants is something that will keep his mind off from the fatigue of traveling and at the same time give him some amusement. Well, when we left Atlanta I ran up against another drummer who knew all about this new game, and we hadn't been at it more than an hour before the whole train of men, women and children were playing it. Now the modus operandi was something like this: The game is to count a thousand points. My friend sat on one side of the car and I on the other. A boy, dog, cow, sheep or horse counted 10, a man 15, a woman 20, a girl 25 and a cat 30. A red-headed girl counted 100. We watched out of the car window until we reached Alexandria, Va. His score was 875, and I saw that in ten minutes he was likely to make the 1,000. I made 730 and I felt pretty certain that I would have to pay for the box of cigars. Well, the train drew into Alexandria, and there were three red-headed girls standing on the platform, and I ran the game out on him right there."—Washington Letter.

New Way of Sawing on Shares.

A short time ago a well-known Augusta physician bought a load of wood which he had piled in the rear of his office. The wood must be sawed and the doctor therefore made this proposition to a neighboring druggist, that if he would saw the wood and bring it in he might have half of it. The trade was closed. Some weeks after, the doctor inspected his wood-pile, and although the wood was still unsawed, he discovered that nearly one-half had disappeared. His neighbor was at once sought out and asked if he remembered the bargain. "Why, yes, doctor," replied the enterprising wood-sawer, "I remember it perfectly, perfectly; and, by the way, I think I have about sawed my half!" The doctor does not have his wood sawed on shares now.—Augusta New Age.

Dear Sir:—I feel it a pleasurable duty to extol your medicine to the very highest. I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and never found anything to have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. About 3 months ago I was induced to try a bottle of your invigorator, which at once gave me relief, and I have not had a vomiting spell since. I feel like a new man, and am perfectly well. I have tried many medicines, but none had the least effect until I took your Invigorator. Hoping you may go on in your great work for suffering humanity, I am Truly yours,

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful patent nostrums.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The tones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distress-ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably, though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates those processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion, are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

The city that does not unearth a gang of boodle aldermen in these days can hardly be considered first class. The latest one to put in a claim is Brooklyn, where an electric-light franchise was voted away for half a million dollars, which went into the pockets of the city fathers instead of the city treasury.

The most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and tonic influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

A portion of the town of Cornwall, Canada, was inundated by an ice jam in the Ottawa river, and much damage was done to property. One man was drowned.

Mellin's Food, the only substitute for mothers' milk, is recommended by our most prominent physicians as the best and safest food for infants. It contains no farinaceous matter, which so often produces disorders of the stomach.

The Belgian government has prohibited the export of horses from Belgium until the war needs of the cavalry service are supplied.

Do not rot or injure your clothes by using washing powders or compounds, but use Beach's Washing Soap. Will not injure the finest fabrics.

BEACH SOAP CO., Dover, N. H.

When the London Standard can no longer endure the lengths to which the British government is going in behalf of the Irish landlords, but denounces recent evictions as barbarous and inhuman, it may as well be believed that the case is pretty bad.

James Pyle's Pearline is highly indorsed by housekeepers and others who have tried it. No soap is required, and cleaning is done with a saving of much time and labor. All housekeepers should use it.

Cardinal Taschereau, of Canada, has been ordered to Rome, to attend the coming consistory.

The best is the cheapest. Hop Plasters contain active medicinal agents for the cure of pain.

The report which gained circulation through its publication in the Vienna press that two British Indian officers had been arrested as spies in Moscow, is declared wholly without foundation.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills are far superior to all others for biliousness and kidney complaints. 25c. at all druggists.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites. Is prepared in a perfectly agreeable form, at the same time increasing the remedial Potency of both of these specifics. It is acknowledged by leading physicians to be marvellous in its curative powers in consumption, scrofula, chronic coughs and wasting diseases. Take no other.

Few Good Judges of Cigars.

A tall young man of rather dudish appearance was leaning on the cigar-case in an old-established Broadway tobacco store, talking to the owner, when a reporter entered. The young man had evidently been there for some time, and had said a great deal more than his listener cared to hear. There was a look of weariness and impatience upon the proprietor's intelligent face, which gave way to one of relief as he turned to wait on several new customers who came in with the reporter. He attended to the wants of each with such apparent deliberation that the young man, seeing there was little chance of his being able to resume the conversation, or monologue, for some time, buttoned his short overcoat and started out.

"That young fellow will force me to 'bounce' him yet," said the cigar man as soon as his loquacious customer had departed. "He has been coming in here for the last month about three times a week for a '15-center,' and each time he stops and talks as long as he can about how his cigar smoked, and how that one did not suit him, and how he can tell a good cigar on sight, and all that sort of thing, until I am ready to fall asleep."

"You do not consider him a connoisseur, then?"

"Well, I should say not. A competent judge of cigars is hard to find. The longer I am in the business the more I am convinced that there is no article in the world which men think they know so much about, but in reality know so little of, as a cigar. I feel perfectly safe in saying that not one man in a hundred can tell a good cigar when he sees it, or even when he smokes it. Oh, of course, you smokers won't admit this to be true, but it is, all the same. Don't imagine that I have an exalted opinion of my knowledge of the subject. I have been in the business over twenty years, and yet I would not venture to assert with any degree of assurance whether a cigar was a domestic or an Havana.

"The imagination works almost as extensively in the smoking of a cigar as it does in the construction of a novel. I have proven this to my own satisfaction again and again. Sometimes, just for the fun of the thing, I put a few 'two-for-a-quarters' in the 5-cent box, and then watch the look of disgust that comes over the faces of the patrons of that box as they light these expensive brands. Sometimes they will actually throw the more costly cigars away. On the other hand, I've seen the 'two-for-a-quarter' customer enjoy the aroma of a '5-cent straight,' which for a joke I had put in his favorite box.

"The popularity of a certain cigar depends upon the smoker's liking for that flavor. To obtain various flavors manufacturers have secret combinations of tobaccos, and these are as numerous as the combinations of the notes of the music scale. A sample one is a Pennsylvania filler and a Havana seed or Sumatra wrapper. An honest 10-cent cigar is made up of a Connecticut, Pennsylvania, or Wisconsin binder with an Havana filler or Sumatra wrapper. Havana seed is the seed of Havana tobacco grown in this country. A mild form of imposition is to mix the Havana filler with domestic tobacco. Few smokers or dealers know the difference. There is no business in which a good name is worth more than in mine. A place that has the reputation of handling good stock can sell almost anything. Taste in cigars is most deceptive, and a dozen men would have as many different opinions on the same weed. Hence it is almost impossible to sell cigars on their merits. Many are sold simply on the advertising they receive."—N. Y. Tribune.

Chinese Treatment of Animals.

They never punish; hence, a mule that in the hands of a foreigner would be not only useless but dangerous to every one about it becomes, in the possession of a Chinaman, as quiet as a lamb and as tractable as a dog. We never beheld a runaway, a jibing, or a vicious mule or pony in a Chinaman's employment, but found the same rattling, cheerful pace maintained over heavy or light roads by means of a tur-r or cluck-k, the beast turning to the right or left and stopping with but a hint from the reins. The treatment is extended to all the animals they press into their service. Often have I admired the tact exhibited in getting a large drove of sheep through narrow, crowded streets and alleys by merely having a little boy to lead one of the quietest of the flock in front; the others steadily followed without the aid either from a yelping dog or a cruel goad. Cattle, pigs and birds are equally cared for.—Travels on Horseback in Mongolia Tartary.

The Land of Poesy.

The West is giving us to-day our sweetest poetry. There is still much true music in the song of the Eastern bard, but there is a conventionalism, a polish of the schools, about it that makes it compare unfavorably with the fresh, exultant, unrestrained melody of the Western singer. The American muse has removed her headquarters to the land of the setting sun.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Mrs. Frederick, a daughter of the late Colonel William Lewis, of Sweet Springs, Greenbrier county, W. Va., has recently been left a large fortune by a gentleman named Montgomery, who courted her in early life. Disappointed he went to the East Indies and there acquired great wealth. He died recently, bequeathing his fortune to Mrs. Frederick on condition that she assume his name.

Salvation Oil, the celebrated American remedy, is guaranteed to cure rheumatism, sore throat, swellings, bruises, burns, and frosts-bites. Price only twenty-five cents a bottle.

Boston is humiliated. In a sparring match, alias prize fight, at Minneapolis, Minn., in presence of an audience of 6300 people, the Hon. John L. Sullivan was "bested" by Patsy Grady, who weighed about twenty pounds less than the Boston champion. Grady banged Sullivan in the mouth at the start, and made him cautious, but Sullivan in the next round hit the western man across the neck hard enough to break his own wrist. The referee decided the fight a draw, although Grady had the best of it all through.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. Kate L. Terry, a rich woman of New York city, has sued the World for $100,000 on account of alleged libel. What does she want, the globe?

The Massachusetts Senatorial Election.

The democrats in the Massachusetts legislature seem to have taught a lesson to the republican members who affected a horror of the machine in politics, and preferred to go into the election of a senator without the implied obligation of a caucus vote. Ex-Gov. Robinson, who was not a candidate, seemed to have as many supporters in the house of representatives as did Ex-Gov. Long, who was the Advertiser candidate, but whose canvass was regarded as overdone. The result shows that when a political majority of the members of a legislature enter upon the election of United States senator without the formula of a previous caucus, or as it now may be more in accordance with the nicer ideas of the Massachusetts politicians, denominated, a conference, it is well to consider just which way the minority will be likely to act.

In the Massachusetts election, the democrats have doubtless saved much time to the state, endorsed their civil service ideas of continuing faithful public servants in office, and voted for the leading candidate of their opponents with the satisfaction of seeing their votes count.

Hiscock Wins.

The New York legislature on the 19th voted in convention for United States senator, without result, the vote standing as follows: Smith M. Weed, democrat, 61; Warner Miller, 43; Levi P. Morton, 33; Frank Hiscock, 11.

In the evening a caucus of the republican members was held, and sixteen ballots were taken without effecting choice of a candidate; on the seventeenth ballot thirty-six votes were changed from Morton to Hiscock, and three from Miller to Hiscock, making Hiscock's vote 50 to Miller's 43.

Mr. Hiscock was elected by the legislature on the 20th.

Smashing the Baggage Smasher.

The baggage car attached to the New York limited express which arrived in Pittsburg, Pa., on the night of the 18th inst., was almost blown to pieces by dynamite contained in a trunk, a few miles east of Altoona, Pa. The baggage master, Harry Mingus, was badly hurt. The trunk was put on at Duncanon, near Harrisburg, and checked through to Pittsburg. Mingus was arranging the trunks in the car. He picked up the trunk and threw it on top of some other baggage, and the explosion followed. The trunk belonged to a Hungarian coal miner, who was arrested at Pittsburg when he presented his baggage check. He maintains that there was nothing explosive in the trunk.

Attempt to Lynch a Prisoner in Court.

An exciting scene was witnessed in a justice's court in Greenfield, Mich., Jan. 18th, at the examination of George Hazard, a burly negro, charged with having on the night of Jan. 11th broken into the Catholic school of St. Alphonsus in Greenfield, and assaulted Sister Mary Hoefler, twenty years of age. The sister was unable to appear against the negro, and he was taken to the convent, by the officers for identification, and thence back to the court room. When Hazard's identity was clearly established as the guilty man there were murmurings among the crowd. He was held to the circuit court for trial, and while the prosecutor was making out the commitment papers some one in the crowd threw a slip noose in a 50-foot rope about the prisoner's neck. A score of hands instantly pulled it tight, and the negro was dragged twenty feet before he could utter a cry. His eyes bulged, his tongue protruded and he was trembling with fear. There was great excitement among the spectators, and it was only the prompt action of the officials that saved the prisoner from immediate lynching. After a struggle the rope about his neck was cut, and he was secured in the justice's office until it was safe to venture him to jail.

AROUND HOME.

The Young People's Association connected with the North parish had a sociable in the chapel parlors on Thursday evening, which was largely attended. An oyster supper was partaken of at the first of the evening, after which the young people enjoyed themselves by playing games, etc.

The Boston & Maine railroad has since the big snow storm been running over its lines a machine called a "flange digger," which cuts a clear space through snow or ice inside of each rail down to the tops of the spikes which hold the rails to the ties, so as to allow the flanges of the car wheels a fair show to keep the cars on the iron. Outside the stations and when clear of switches, the machine does its work at the rate of eight miles an hour, doing the labor, it is said, of 2000 men, and doing it better than it could possibly be done by picks and shovels.

Our attention has been called to the statement in our issue of 19th inst., copied from the Times of the night previous, purporting to be the storage capacity of the coal pockets of the different dealers of this city, and after due enquiry we have come to the conclusion that the statement is about as near correct as many of the daily reports of the weather bureau have been lately.

Col. William H. Sise, president of the Portsmouth board of trade, has been appointed to and has accepted membership in the national board for promoting the celebration, in 1889, of the 100th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States, and the 400th of the discovery of America by Columbus. President Cleveland has sent to Congress a message recommending the national observance of the Constitution's centennial.

Rev. Mr. Dillingham was on Wednesday, the 19th inst., installed as pastor of the Peirce Memorial church at Dover, the exercises being as follows: Voluntary on the organ; anthem by choir; invocation, by Rev. J. S. Cutler of Rochester; reading of scriptures, by Rev. L. H. Fisher of Portsmouth; hymn by choir; sermon, by Rev. E. H. Capen, D. D.; hymn; prayer of installation, by Rev. Joseph P. Sheafe, Jr.; address to people, by Rev. S. H. McCollester, D. D.; address of welcome, by Rev. W. H. Morrison of Manchester; hymn; benediction, by the pastor.

Wednesday forenoon, the 19th inst., the eleven o'clock express train on the Salem branch of the Boston & Maine railroad struck a man who was walking on the track near the Wakefield rattan factory. He was a soap peddler from Everett by the name of Doty, and did not see the engine until it was almost upon him. He was very severely cut and bruised, and internally injured. He was taken to the Wakefield Centre depot, and several of the physicians of the town attended him, but it was thought that he could not survive.

The coroner's inquest held at Biddeford on the death of Robert B. Williams, Jr., of Roxbury, Mass., who was killed at Wells on Saturday, Jan. 15th, by jumping or falling from the cars while in motion, rendered a verdict exonerating the Boston & Maine railroad, and its employes, from all blame.

The wife of Moses Hurd, mail agent on the Boston & Maine road between Boston and Portland, and proprietor of the South Berwick hotel, died at her home in South Berwick on the night of Monday, the 17th inst.

Kittery follows York by voting in town meeting not to aid in the construction of the York beach railroad. Are not those ancient and honorable bailliwicks standing in their own light by taking such a position? It certainly looks so.—Biddeford Journal.

—The Tichborne claimant is exhibiting in western dime museums, and the patent-medicine advertisements in the newspapers present various scenes in his real or imaginary career. One cut shows him tending sheep in Australia, and represents him sitting on a rock with a long crook in his hand, a veritable cross between the Prodigal Son and Little Bo-peep.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, by constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did take the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

CHAS. O. V. BAGLEY, Grocer,

STILL IT IS THE KEARSARGE.

One could manufacture more sentiment over the threatened condemnation of the Kearsarge if a bar of metal or stick of timber or scrap of material of any sort that was a part of the Kearsarge of history entered into the composition of the present ship. We believe that there is a tradition that the old sternpost, or a part of it, of the Kearsarge that sunk the Alabama survives in its namesake of to-day. But even this tradition is more or less legendary. Still it is the Kearsarge, and if human beings are allowed to change their substance every seven years without losing their identity, why not a ship? —New York Commercial Advertiser.

If all the bars of metal and sticks of timber which were part of the Kearsarge of history and still enter into the composion of the present ship, were to fall off a three-story house and land on the Commercial Advertiser man's head, he would feel mighty flat. There are several bars of metal and scraps of material in her engine, for one thing, which is the same that was first put into her. And there is enough of the original wood remaining—keelsons, floor timbers, knees of New Hampshire pasture oak, etc.,—to keep him in tooth picks all the rest of his life.

Though she was put together in a hurry, the timber used in her construction was the very best, having been seasoning in the bottom of the timber dock at this navy yard for years; and as a consequence its lasting properties, even under the adverse conditions of fire heat from the furnaces, were out of all proportion when compared with the green timber of which the vessels built at a later period of the war, after all the seasoned timber had been exhausted, were necessarily constructed.

THE BURLESQUE SHOW TO-NIGHT.

No burlesque company which has ever entered Louisville has been more successful in pleasing the public than the Ella Hill company. Fox and Ward everybody knows are a whole team in themselves, while Miss Polly Wilson has undoubtedly one of the sweetest voices in the soubrette ranks. The company is a decided hit.—Louisville Courier Journal.

This company will give an entertainment at Music hall this evening; see advertisement. Tickets can be procured at Goodrich's book and fancy goods store.

"A PHENOMENON."

Under the above heading we find in the Penny Post the following communication:

Messrs. Editors: A day or two since we noticed an item in a local paper referring to a certain gentleman's receiving severe shocks while handling his steam pipes and radiators at his residence on Middle street, supposed to have been caused by the electric light wires passing his house. There has been considerable curiosity to know who this gentleman is, but since it has leaked out that he is a large owner in the Portsmouth Gas Co., the stock of which is said to have depreciated about forty per cent since the advent of the electric light, the mystery and shocks are solved. "RATS."

Our contemporary's "rat" has apparently gnawed his way into a mare's nest. What he knows, and what he thinks he knows, if heaped up, would make a big pile, though if put into two heaps there would be a marked discrepancy in the relative sizes of the heaps. Our item stated that the shocks were "very perceptible," which the "rat" translates into "severe;" and the electric light wires were not mentioned in the item, nor thought of while it was being penned. At to the forty-per-cent depreciation of Gas Co.'s stock which the "rat" has heard of, we know nothing, though we are of the opinion that if he has any of it to sell he will be able to get about as much for it as it cost him; but we are very positively assured that the gentleman who according to the "rat" is such a "large owner in the Portsmouth Gas Co.," does not now and never did own the company's stock to the amount of one share or one dollar, the only business connection with the company he ever had being the regular payment of his gas bills.

An incident similar to the one we mentioned took place a few evenings since in Mr. A. P. Preston's drug store, a gentleman receiving from accidental contact with the radiator an electric shock which startled him. Mr. Preston and his assistants experienced nothing of the kind on grasping a pipe of the radiator, but the gentleman alluded to could not touch his finger to it without receiving a shock.

BROUGHT THE WHOLE FAMILY.

For a week or ten days previous to the coldest snap of the season, a gentleman living on Pleasant street had been visited every morning by a pigeon, which on the first call was very lame, some cruel person having wound about its feet a piece of twine in such a manner that the circulation of blood was nearly stopped, causing the claws to swell until the twine was buried in them. A few mornings' feeding rendered the bird so tame that it allowed itself to be caught, and with much difficulty the string was cut away and removed, after which the patient rapidly recovered the use of its feet. On the morning of the 19th inst., when the thermometer was down to about twenty below zero, and the gentleman went into his yard with the customary handful of food for his feathered protege, he was surprised to find thirty-one other pigeons there as well, and all evidently anticipating a good square meal, for instead of flying away on his appearance they fluttered around him with an air of confident expectation which of course secured its own realization. The benevolent gentleman is confident that the lame tramp, finding its mates suffering from hunger in consequence of the heavy fall of snow, piloted them to the place where its own wants had been relieved.

ODD FELLOWS' VISIT.

Osgood lodge, No. 48, of this city, was visited on Thursday evening, 20th inst., by the grand master of Odd Fellows of New Hampshire, and by a large delegation of the officers and members of Wecohamet lodge of Dover, the latter coming down on a special train, and returning at the close of the festivities. In the early part of the evening a Canton of Patriarchs Militant was organized, with about forty charter members. On the assembling of Osgood lodge the canton visited the lodge, and witnessed the work. A banquet, followed by speeches and music, closed the evening's festivities.

There will be an entertainment in the Methodist vestry this (Friday) evening, conducted wholly by the children of the society. Ice cream, cake, home-made candy, etc., for sale after the literary exercises. Admission ten cents.

—She—"Have you read the article on Henry Clay in the December Century?" He—"No, but I would like to very much." She—"You admire him, then?" He—"I have never met him personally, but I have smoked a great many of his cigars."

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the fingertips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured. E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Kietz, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Is a Positive Cure

For All of those Painful Weaknesses and Complicated troubles and Weaknesses so common among our Wives, Mothers, and Daughters.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1939 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city to whom I recommended your medicine was thrown violently against the life line and the injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until quite a tumor formed. Her physician finally advised her to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor became dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Philadelphia ladies appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language, yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means place i be re them of saving themselves all, if not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Had Never Been There Before.

When the Emperor Maximilian, whom the French, English and Austrians had put upon the throne of Mexico, had been deserted by his European allies on account of the unfriendliness of the United States to his enterprise, he was overcome by the military forces of the revolted Mexican people, and condemned to death for his usurpation. He was shot at Queretaro, June 19, 1867, and with him his Mexican prime minister, Miramon, who was condemned for treason to the republic.

Before they were executed Maximilian and Miramon were allowed to walk in the garden, attended by guards. As they were breathing with relish the fresh air outside their prison, the bell upon a neighboring church began to toll rather dismally.

"Is that our death knell?" Maximilian asked of Miramon.

"I cannot tell you, sire," said Miramon. "I am not acquainted with the way they go about it, because this is the first time in my life that I have ever been executed!"

Maximilian laughed heartily at his companion's grim jest, and both soon after died bravely.—Boston Courier.

General John Hammond, of Crown Point, N. Y., has just erected a handsome granite monument over the grave of his old war horse, "Pink," who died last winter at the age of thirty-one.

Stoneboro possesses a ten-year-old young America of remarkable enterprise. So anxious was this little fellow to see Oil City the other day, it is related, that he crawled under the pilot of a locomotive that was standing on the track at Stoneboro, and fixing himself on one of the cross bars, took a firm grasp of the iron, expecting to enjoy a novel ride and see the glories of Oil City besides. Fortunately for him, however, the engineer, as he was oiling the locomotive, found him before he had been in his perilous position five minutes. The younger was yanked out in a jiffy and given a seat in the cab, where he could be watched until the train started.

I have been a sufferer from the dreadful disease dyspepsia from childhood, and very often after eating have vomited up the greater part of my victuals. Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful experiments.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated by all our skill. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the mucus so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distress-ing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, all for $1.00.

Another Snag.

The marriage-license clerk of Chicago having found that he has no warrant in law for refusing to issue a license for the marriage of Miss Van Zandt and the condemned murderer Spies, has issued it; but another and more formidable snag has been struck by the silly young fool in her attempt to associate her name with that of the miserable ruffian. The sheriff in whose custody Spies is, very properly refuses to allow her to enter the jail to see him; and as Spies, being under sentence of death, cannot conveniently get out, the foolish wedding cannot take place. The girl's wealthy relatives have discarded her.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the minute sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

My Head Was Fairly Rotten,

And how much I suffered it is hard to describe. That loathsome disease, catarrh, caused the above, and the doctors said they could not relieve me. I paid hundreds of dollars, for which I received no benefit. I got more good from two bottles of Sulphur Bitters than from all the money I paid to doctors. I shall continue the Sulphur Bitters, as I have great faith that they will cure me.—S. M. Day, 41 Hanover St., Boston.

The Rapidity of Progress Toward Health,

Even when a good remedy for disease is selected, depends in some measure upon the manner in which it is taken. Irregular, interrupted doses can afford no fair test of the efficacy of any medicine, however salutary. Taken in proper doses at prescribed intervals, a reliable curative will effect the object of its use. Among remedies which, systematically and persistently used, accomplish thorough and lasting cures, and prevents the recurrence of periodical disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ranks specially high. In cases of dyspepsia, debility, rheumatism, fever and ague, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, constipation, and other organic maladies, it is a tried remedy, to which the medical brotherhood have lent their professional sanction, and which, as a tonic, alterative and household specific for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, has an unbounded popularity.

Dangers of Tea-Drinking.

"The afternoon tea-drinking, after the English fashion, which has been introduced in this country, will very likely lead to an excessive use of that cheering beverage among our women," remarked a south side physician.

"With the exception of the overworked wives of northern farmers who are prone to resort to tea as a stimulant for their exhausted nervous system, hurried factory operatives, and seamstresses who do their sewing at home. American women have not, until lately been addicted to tea-drinking. Coffee is the national drink. It has been shown that a greater quantity of coffee is consumed annually in the United States than of any other beverage. True, the use of beer is increasing, many persons thinking it preferable because of its sedative and nourishing qualities. There are good authorities who object to the use of coffee in such a climate as ours.

"In my opinion coffee is a more desirable fluid, as a constant drink in this climate, than beer or tea. That is, I believe the use of tea three times a day or beer three times a day at meals will have a worse effect than an equal quantity of coffee.

"In England the evil effects of constant beer-drinking at meals have become so evident that a revolt has been organized against it. The English people are now drinking about $5,000,000 worth of beer less per annum than their former average.

"Beer, in fact, has been the English laborer's greatest curse. If used as extensively in this country it will be even a heavier drawback to the prosperity of the working people, because the atmospheric or other influences here cause the brain of the same person to be muddled by a smaller quantity of alcohol in America than in Europe.

"I foresee from tea-drinking a harvest for physicians. The ladies will acquire a taste for it from the adoption of a silly fashion which is the outgrowth of this absurd aping of English manners. They will eventually use it extensively at all hours of the day. It is a stimulating infection, and when the system becomes partially habituated to its use it not only creates a craving for it, but requires that the quantity be increased.

"I've seen a few tea-topers who always kept a pot of tea brewing, so necessary had it become to their existence. Without exception they were invalids and afflicted with nervous ailments.

"The habitual tea-drinker, too, eats but little nourishing food, but depends for sustenance on the stimulant.

"The injurious effects of an excessive use of tea are far beyond what is generally supposed. Tea contains two powerful substances—tannic acid and theine. The first is the astringent known as tannin. It is this property, obtained from bark, that converts skin into leather. Theine is a violent poison. They act on the nervous and digestive systems, causing atonic dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, insomnia, irritability, and brain fatigue.

"I recommend a judicious use of tea at a portion of the meals. It should be taken with judgment, like all other drugs of a stimulating or tranquillizing nature which may be beneficial in small doses, but are harmful, if not dangerous, in large quantities." —Chicago News.

A Hingman lady, having complained of being unable to tell her mince pies from her apple pies without testing, was advised to mark them. She did so, and complacently announced: This I've marked 'T. M.'—'Tis Mince, and that I've marked 'T. M.'—Tain't Mince."—Hingman Journal.

The girls at Poughkeepsie draw each other into a corner and mysteriously inquire: "Do you know why Prof. Blank wears a plug hat?" "No; why is it?" "To cover his head, of course." Then they te-he-he and ho! ho! ho! and write home to ma that they passed 98 per cent in Hoyle.—Detroit Free Press.

"O, George!" she exclaimed, catching her breath as she gazed out to sea, "there seems to be no limit to old Neptune's broad expanse; and the waves, George, how playfully they gambol along the shore!" "The waves are very foolish, dear," said George with a sigh. "How foolish?" "To gamble where there is no limit."—Life.

The family had just returned from listening to this handsome young Englishman, who is just thrilling America with his lectures on "Palmistry," and they were discussing the subject with great enthusiasm. "Ah me," sighed Billy the kid, moving uneasily in his chair, "talk about palmistry; he should have known you, mamma."—Burdette.

The Chicago Anarchists have adopted a new line of defense in case they get a new trial. They will claim that no bomb was thrown at all; that it was only a woman who ran through the crowd with an umbrella in one hand and a market-basket in the other. The only weak point in this defense is that the carnage was too slight.—Burdette.

Scene at Harvard College: Junior (translating the New Testament)—"And the-an'—and the Lord said, Lord said unto—unto Moses." Here he hesitated and looked appealingly to a neighbor, who, also being unprepared, whispered, "Skip it." Junior (going on)—"And the Lord said unto Moses, skip it." Great consternation ensued. —Texas Siftings.

When the base-ball fever was at its hight here the last season some very bad cases of it appeared among the youngsters. One 6-year-old organized a nine and challenged another juvenile nine to mortal combat; but the game didn't materialize. "Why didn't you play?" asked the father of the 6-year-old captain. "O!" was the reply, in a tone of disgust, "two of my men were sick."—St. Albans Messenger.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stage. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

"Adam the goodliest man of men since born," still could not be called exactly enviable, for when he tilled the ground in the dewy twilight and caught a sharp ouch of rheumatism, he had no Salvation Oil for his cure, and no twenty-five cents to buy it.

At the annual meeting of the Granite State Fire Insurance Co., of Dover, Charles H. Sawyer of Dover, Charles B. Gafney of Rochester, Thomas G. Jameson of Great Falls and E. H. Rollins of Rollinsford were elected members of the board of directors.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

But It Is Strongly Republican.

Dakota, which the democrats in Congress will not admit to the Union of States, reports through its superintendent of public instruction 3905 schools, with 5055 teachers, in the territory. The people paid during 1886, $691,900 to the school teachers. The value of school property is nearly $3,000,000. For the instruction of his children Dakota employes twice as many teachers as either Connecticut or New Jersey or Maryland or Arkansas or South Carolina or New Hampshire. Louisiana has not one-fourth as many, and Florida not more than one-sixth. Thirteen states have each fewer school houses. It is because Dakota has so much schooling for its people that the democratic house refuses to admit it to the Union as a state.

They Do Not Like it.

Miss Nina Van Zandt appeared at the Chicago jail on the 20th inst., disguised as a boy, and sought an interview with Spies; the jail officials, however, in obedience to the sheriff's order, refused to allow her to enter. The silly girl is twenty years old, a graduate of Vassar, a granddaughter of Thomas S. Clark, a millionaire of Pittsburg, Pa., and prospective heiress of his wealth and of that of a maiden aunt. The strangest part of the affair is that Miss Van Zandt's parents approve of her conduct, and encourage her in her course. The Van Zandts have been notified by their wealthy and respectable relatives that they are wholly discarded, and will be absolutely ignored hereafter.

Tweedledum Is Not Tweedledee.

Says the Dover Democrat: "It is awful black treason for a democrat in New Hampshire to vote for Sawyer for governor or say anything in his favor, or refuse to support McKinney for Congress; but it is the very essence of true democratic loyalty to party and principle for democrats to vote for and elect Republican Dawes to the United States senate from Massachusetts."

YORK COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

An adjourned meeting of the York county democratic club was held at a Biddeford hotel on the 18th inst., George F. Clifford of Cornish, president of the club, presiding. The matter of increasing the number of vice presidents so as to include one from each town in the county was discussed, and the number was finally so enlarged. It was also voted to have a banquet at the Biddeford house on the night of Feb. 22d, and the arrangements for it were left in the hands of the executive committee. Many of the leading democrats of Maine are expected to be present at the banquet, and invitations will be extended to prominent members of the party in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, among whom are Gen. Collins, Col. Charles W. Taylor and Chas. Levi Woodbury, of Massachusetts, and Hon. Frank Jones, Col. A. W. Sulloway and Col. Henry O. Kent, of New Hampshire.

SANITARY CONVENTION.

A Sanitary Convention, under the auspices of the State Board of Health, will be held in the city of Manchester on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 25th and 26th. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present at all sessions of the convention, and take part in the discussions. Papers of special interest to school teachers will be read at the evening sessions. Among the essays to be presented on Wednesday there will be one by Dr. John J. Berry, city physician of this city, entitled "How can the mortality from consumption be reduced?" and one by Col. T. E. O. Marvin, president of the S. P. C. A., entitled "Milk from diseased cows." During the sessions Rev. C. B. Crane, of Concord, will discuss the relation of "The pulpit and sanitary reform;" and Mr. Edward H. Fellows, director of gymnasium at Phillips Exeter academy, will tell of "Physical training in college preparatory schools." There will be other addresses, papers, and discussions, and the exercises will be of great interest and value.

The barque St. Cloud, Stacey master, from Boston bound for Bath, was in the lower harbor on the 20th inst. This barque, which cost $60,000, but has been hauled up in Boston for several years, was recently bought by bath owners for about $8,000, and will be made into a barge, to carry coal between New York and Boston in tow.

A teamster of Exeter who was on Wednesday, the 19th inst., driving through "the Birches" on the road to Epping, found a man dead in the road. He proved to be a man named Shaw, of Epping, who left that town on foot for Exeter the night before. There were marks in the snow where he had rolled about, apparently in a fit or from a sudden attack of sickness.

Arthur F. Breed of North Hampton, the schoolboy who with a dull knife deeply gashed his left arm in six places on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 19th inst., in the railroad station at Newburyport, was taken to his home on the afternoon of the following day, and will recover. On returning to consciousness (he was insensible from loss of blood when found) he said that on leaving home Wednesday morning he had some words with his mother; he remained about the Newburyport station all the afternoon, brooding over the idea of suicide, and finally attempted to end his life. It is thought that too close application to study has affected his mind.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

When one has been suffering the agonies of a severe attack of rheumatism, neuralgia or sciatica and relief comes, it seems as if a new lease of life had been granted. Such have been the feelings of thousands who, after trying physicians and numberless remedies, have used Athlophoros and found to their great joy that this medicine really did cure these diseases.

Great Falls, N. H., March 25, 1886.

Some twenty-two years ago while in the U. S. Navy, quartered at New Orleans, I like many other sailors, by constant exposure became afflicted with an attack of rheumatism, for which I was treated by the doctors with all sorts of medicines, liniments, etc., but no matter what I did take the relief was for a few moments only, and the pain, that terrible pain, came on me again worse than ever. Why the pain was so sharp and sudden as to almost fell me to the ground as though I had been struck on the head. I continued in this condition for years, one week in every four. I was confined to the house one day hobbling around when a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by Athlophoros asked me why I did not give the medicine a trial. I had taken so much medicine and got no better I felt sure there was nothing to cure rheumatism, but thought again it could do me no harm and so bought a bottle. The very first dose of Athlophoros took hold of me in such a way I knew it would do me good. I continued until two bottles were used, and my rheumatism of so many years standing, that everything failed to touch, was at last gone, and I have never suffered the least mite since. I tell you Athlophoros will do the work every time. I can't say enough for it.

CHAS. O. V. BAGLEY, Grocer,

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney disease, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, &c., Athlophoros Pills are unsurpassed. 2

VISITATION AND BANQUET.

Osgood Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., was highly honored on Thursday evening last by a visitation of distinguished Odd Fellows from different parts of the state and Kentucky, also by a large delegation from Wecohamet lodge, No. 3, of Dover. And perhaps at no one time have there been so many notabilities of the order in this city before. It was an occasion in the history of Osgood lodge long to be remembered.

Previous to the opening of the lodge the ceremony of mustering in Canton Senter, No. 12, Patriarchs Militant, of this city, was very impressively performed by Lieut. Gen'l J. C. Underwood, Deputy Grand Sire of the I. O. O. F., assisted by his staff, which was a very interesting feature of the evening's exercises, all present being invited to remain within the hall.

The grand master of the state, Bro. John A. Glidden, and Wecohamet lodge of Dover, were invited to visit No. 48 on this evening to witness the work in the initiatory degree, which was very finely performed, words of praise being heard in different sections of the hall. At the close of the lodge work D. D. G. M. Albert E. Rand took charge of the company, and acted as master of ceremonies for the evening; and he deserves much praise for the manner in which he conducted the exercises. After repairing to the banquet hall, where was spread one of those feasts for which No. 48 is famous, and the wants of the inner man being well satisfied, the company was called to order, and the grand master was introduced, who entertained the brethren by very interesting remarks, showing he was to a large degree interested in the work of the Order, at the close of which he was greeted with rounds of applause. Lieut. Gen'l Underwood being called upon, took the boys by storm, or in other words the boys took him by storm. Quiet being restored, he began to talk, holding his hearers' attention to a great length, every word he uttered being full of the spirit of Odd Fellowship. After listening to remarks by members of his staff, Gr. Rep. W. W. Cotton, and the noble grand of Wecohamet lodge, the exercises closed at a late hour; the boys returning to Dover on a special at one o'clock Friday morning. C.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION.

The public installation of officers, and banquet, in commemoration of the consolidation of Strawberry Bank and Mt. Sinai Encampments of Odd Fellows, after having been twice postponed on account of the weather, was on Friday evening most successfully carried out. The arrangements were in charge of an able committee, of which Major David Urch was chairman, and the programme was as follows:

Welcome.....David Urch, P. C. P.
Music.....Orchestra.
Singing.....Quartette.

March to Banquet Hall.
Banquet.

The installing officers were Truman Smith, G. P.; C. H. Clough, G. H. P.; W. W. Cotton, G. S. W.; A. E. Rand, G. S.; C. E. Hodgdon, G. T.; A. R. Junkins, G. J. W.; John H. Rose, G. I. S.

The following were the officers installed: Frank E. H. Marden, C. P.; Oliver H. Locke, H. P.; J. H. Wells, S. W.; Langdon M. Perkins, J. W.; James A. Rugg, Sec.; A. R. Junkins, Treas.

The address of welcome by P. C. P. David Urch was appropriate, earnest, and well delivered, as were also the remarks of G. P. Truman Smith. The vocal and instrumental music, and Mr. Rockwood's reading, were highly enjoyed, and the stirring and eloquent remarks of Brother Joseph Kidder of Manchester, Rev. Dr. Alden, Rev. Mr. Fisher, and Prof. Pickard, of this city, and others, were received with great applause; but possibly the most popular number on the programme was the "march to the banquet hall," unless the banquet itself excelled it. The tables in the spacious banquet hall were loaded down with the substantials and delicacies of the season, and there was enough unconsumed to have supplied another throng equally as large, although the attendance was limited only by the capacity of the rooms.

The arrangements were so complete that everything from first to last went on like clockwork, and the celebration of the consolidation of the two encampments was an occasion to be remembered with pleasure by all who participated therein.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, Jan. 21st.

Jeremiah Murphy, Jr., charged with committing an aggravated assault on Mrs. Annie Edwards in her own house on the evening of Jan. 12th, was held in $300 for the April term of the supreme court. From the testimony it appeared that Murphy and one Barrett had a fight on the day or evening of the assault, and Muaphy had an idea that something said or done by Mrs. Edwards was instrumental in causing the trouble; so he went to the house where she and her husband live, knocked her down, pulled her hair, twisted one of her arms until it was dislocated, etc. After this gallant act he heroically skipped across the line into Maine, which accounts for his not having been arrested sooner. This Murphy is the same fellow who was before the court a few weeks ago charged with an assault as cowardly and brutal as it was unprovoked, on a newspaper reporter of half his size, which however could not be positively proved against him.

ALLEGED POISONING CASE.

A gentleman who came to this city from Eliot, Friday morning, reported that the family of Mr. John Mathes, proprietor of a brickyard on Sturgeon creek, had been poisoned by eating canned corned beef; that Mrs. Mathes died on Thursday, and on Friday one daughter was hopelessly ill, and Mr. Mathes himself in a critical state, his feet and legs having swollen to such an extent that his boots had to be cut off in order to get them removed.

A physician who was called to attend Mrs. Mathes on Tuesday, the 18th, in the absence of the regular family physician, says he found her suffering from blood poisoning, caused by disease; he made another visit on Wednesday, the 19th inst., when he found her in a comatose state, and told the family she could not live. He then turned the case over to the family physician, and from that time up to Friday evening had heard nothing further from the family. One little girl, who had had diphtheria, he noticed had her feet and ankles somewhat swollen. Mr. Mathes took the doctor from the Eliot railroad station to his place, and back to the station, and he was in apparently good health then. He doubts the correctness of the story of poisoning by eating corned beef.

"A DANIEL COME TO JUDGMENT."

The opinion of Hon. Daniel G. Rollins, surrogate of New York city, in the matter of the will of Miss Harriet Gross, has been published. The testatrix died at the age of fifty-seven, leaving a brother and two sisters, who were her only next of kin. Miss Gross in her will gave $20,000 to a cousin in Paris, $5,000 to her pastor, and $12,000 to her maid servant, but omitted bequests to her brother and sisters. Of course, these nesa relatives contested the will, on the grounds that it was not formally exectued; that Miss Gross did not possess testable capacity, or had an insane delusion; and that the will did not embody the free and unbiassed wishes of the testarix as to the disposition of her estate. The learned judge overrules all of these objections, and in his opinion sustains the validity of the will, and thus adds another instance to the number of persons in New York who can be permited to dispose of their estates according to their own wishes. The opinion is exhaustive, and the positions seem to be uncontrovertibly taken.

In a recent pen and ink sketch of Surrogate Rollins, in the New York Tribune, are some historic statements of local interest. It seems that the great-great-grandfather of the renowned surrogate of New York was Ichabod Rollins, who when New Hampshire first became a state in 1776 was appointed as the first judge of probate of Strafford county, an office held by the surrogate's father, the late Daniel G. Rollins, from 1857 to 1866. It was in this city, where the late Daniel G. Rollins lived from 1823 to 1826, while agent of a sugar refining company, that he met his future wife, then Miss Jackson, who was a pupil at a boarding school. It will be seen, therefore, that the ability of the surrogate as a probate judge is perhaps to no small degree an inherited trait. Blood will tell. The New Hampshire man transplanted to a field of sufficient extent almost invariably developes a stalwart growth.

The first Rollins who came to this country from England settled in Newington, where his lineal descendants have continued to live. On the Rollins farm, a place to which the late Edward A. Rollins made frequent visits, always with deep interest, is a tract of land known as "the Ichabod Rollins field," a designation always maintained since its earliest ownership. The surrogate was born at Great Falls in 1812, and was the ninth child of a family of eleven. His father died in 1879, and his mother still lives in his native town at the advanced age of eighty-two. His brother, the late Edward A. Rollins, was formerly commissioner of internal revenue, and afterward president of the Centennial National bank of Philadelphia. The surrogate was graduated at Dartmouth college in 1860, and among his classmates were C. F. P. Bancroft, now principal of Phillips Andover academy; the late George H. Chandler, brother of William E. Chandler; Albert S. Bickmore, superintendent of the Museum of Natural History; and Rev. Dr. Arthur Little, of Chicago.

The big bill-board which has so long been standing on Pleasant street near the "Universalist field," was taken down on Friday.

There was not a large audience at Music hall on Friday evening to see the Ella Hill burlesque company's performance.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Quaker Testimony.

Mrs. A. M. Dauphin of 1839 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, has done a great deal to make known to ladies there the great value of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as a cure for their troubles and diseases. She writes as follows: "A young lady of this city while bathing some years ago was thrown violently on a sharp stone. The injuries received resulted in an ovarian tumor which grew and enlarged until death seemed certain. Her physician finally advised the trying Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. She did so and in a short time the tumor was dissolved and she is now in perfect health. I also know of many cases where the medicine has been of great value in preventing miscarriage and alleviating the pains and dangers of childbirth. Ladies like myself appreciate the worth of this medicine and its great value."

A Constant Study of a Noted Woman's Life.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, for years, made the diseases and weaknesses of her sex a constant study, and as a result of it was the famous "Vegetable Compound." Her knowledge equalled that of any first-class physician and therefore the remedy can be taken with perfect confidence. The subjects of treatment are so delicate that it is hard to be understood without trespassing on the grounds of what may seem improper language; yet it is a well known fact that not one woman in ten is free from pain and troubles, therefore there is no good reason why they should not have the means placed before them of saving themselves all. If not the greater part of the periodic and other suffering. The medicine is exclusively for good purposes.

Recent Sale of Guinness' Brewery.

The Guinness Brewery, in Dublin, has recently been converted into a stock company. While the colossal size of this business is notorious, few would realize the amount of money that would be put into the stock of the new company. The subscriptions for stock were received by Baring Bros. The scene at their office is described as little short of a riot. Men literally fought to get near the counter. Prospectuses sold freely at half a crown and three shillings apiece. The stock was divided into three classes—ordinary, preferred, and debenture—the premiums on which this sale ranged from 67 down to 18 per cent. The capitalization had been fixed at £6,000,000. On this sale the market value rose to £8,610,000 or about $40,000,000. The actual value of the stock and fixtures, beer on hand, manufacturing plant, and real estate was estimated at £2,500,000, showing a public estimation of the value of the "good will" at over £6,000,000, or nearly $30,000,000. It is said that over one hundred millions of pounds sterling of capital were offered to Baring Bros. The last statement, however, is pronounced as open to doubt.

Fay Templeton's Diamonds.

A son of Claus Spreckels, the Sandwich Islands sugar millionaire, was deeply fascinated with Fay Templeton while she was playing in San Francisco some years ago, and he presented her with numerous elegant and costly diamonds. The town knew of his passion. One night the funny man of the company approached Miss Templeton on the stage and wetting his fingers touched one of her largest diamonds and asked: "Paste?" Quick as a flash she retorted: "No! Sugar!" The whole house in an instant saw the point and a roar of laughter went up such as never before or since has been heard in 'Frisco.—Philadelphia Times.

Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings. He felt tired instead of vigorous; nervous instead of strong. His appetite became poor and his sleep broken. He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and that the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the Captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it whenever they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife, (whom the best physicians of New York said was dying of tumor,) to perfect health, I swear by it."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney Liver and Urinary Diseases.

The Rapidity of Progress Toward Health,

Even when a good remedy for disease is selected, depends in some measure upon the manner in which it is taken. Irregular, interrupted doses can afford no fair test of the efficacy of any medicine, however salutary. Taken in proper doses at prescribed intervals, a reliable curative will effect the object of its use. Among remedies which, systematically and persistently used, accomplish thorough and lasting cures, and prevents the recurrence of periodical disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ranks specially high. In cases of dyspepsia, debility, rheumatism, fever and ague, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, constipation, and other organic maladies, it is a tried remedy, to which the medical brotherhood have lent their professional sanction, and which, as a tonic, alterative and household specific for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, has an unbounded popularity.

Two unknown robbers entered a store in White Plains, N. Y., on the evening of Jan. 20th, and shot dead a young man who opposed them. They then fled in a sleigh, but were both shot dead by the chief of police. The assassins, one of whom was about twenty-two years old and the other about thirty, were each armed with two revolvers and a dirk with ten-inch blade.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

In Portland, Me., on the evening of the 20th inst., Lizzie McDonald, a young woman twenty-two years old, laid down on the floor at her boarding house about nine o'clock, and remained there two hours. At eleven o'clock the boarding mistress, Mrs. Cameron, called to her and told her she had better get up and go to bed, but receiving no reply and noticing that the young woman did not move, she approached her, and touching her body was startled to find that she was dead. Coroner Gould was notified, and upon making an examination decided that an autopsy was necessary.

Buy a Rope for Him.

The jury in the case of one De Leon, a New York "astrologer" charged with sending girls to Panama for immoral purposes, returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence was deferred. After the close of the trial an old woman called on the district attorney and stated that De Leon had abducted her daughter a year ago, and sent her to Panama. It is also stated that a girl who was murdered a few nights ago in a Newark bagnio, was one of De Leon's victims, having been sent to Panama by him, and thus started upon her life of shame.

A Prince's Escapade.

An English naval officer, at present in this city, gave your correspondent to-day an interesting little story about the heir-apparent, once removed, to the English throne, writes a Washington correspondent of the New York Star. Prince Alfred in 1862 was a midshipman on the St. George, to which vessel my informant was assigned at the time it was in the Baltic sea. The young prince had two existences. While he was aboard he would be treated in just the same manner as the other fellows of his mess, and pranks were played upon him as frequently as upon the rest. But whenever he went ashore he was a prince of England, and went in state, always accompanied by Maj. Cowell, now Sir John Cowell, who was his governor. One of the sublieutenants would be obliged to steer the barge for his royal highness, holding his hat in his hand meanwhile.

"The very idea of a lieutenant steering the boat for a young midshipman like you," said a chaffing officer to the prince one day as they rowed to shore. "I'll make you pay for this when you get aboard again."

"Really I can't help it; it's not my fault," the lad replied, laughing.

The St. George was lying off Reval, in the Gulf of Finland, one day, and all hands had been ashore playing, cricket. Prince Alfred and his chum, Tom Larkin, who belonged to a yacht in the harbor, determined to go ashore again that night. So after everybody was asleep the prince stole from his bunk and dropped over the side of the vessel into a fisherman's boat alongside and made for the yacht. There Larkin joined him, and they set off for a spree—and they had it. Meanwhile Maj. Cowell was informed of the disappearance of the prince, and there was a tremendous disturbance on board. Every nook and corner of the vessel was searched, and two boats were sent out to dredge the bottom of the gulf in the fear that the prince had fallen overboard. Other boats were sent ashore and the town was searched, without success, however. The prince caught sight of Maj. Cowell and ran and hid himself under an upturned boat and covered himself with some old sacks lying around. The searching party returned to the vessel, and while a consultation was being held as to what to do next the prince returned to the vessel, climbed up the chains, and was soon in his berth. Here he was found shortly after, and Commander Edgerton immediately sent for him.

"Where have you been, sir?" he demanded angrily.

"I've been in my hammock," the prince replied, very innocently.

"I desire no prevarication, sir!" stormed the commandant. "Have you been ashore to-night?"

"Yes, I have," Alfred Guelph answered.

"Who was with you?"

"That I positively refuse to tell."

It was found out, though, later, and poor Tom Larkin was absolutely forbidden the privilege of being presented at court. This was not a great privation to him, as he died shortly afterward. Young Alfred was punished by having his stripes removed, being reduced to the rank of a navel cadet, and made to do double duty for a month. He was to have been at Carlsruhe three months later to stand as godfather to the child of one of his sisters, but Queen Victoria, who was much displeased with his escapade, refused to allow him even to be present.

Child Labor in the Coal Regions.

The miner's boys and girls have no childhood. Hundreds of children from 7 to 15 years of age are at work at the hard-coal mines slate picking, and at the soft-coal mines coke trimming and mule driving. Hard, drudging toil is the lot of these little ones, all day long, in the dust and grime of the picking shed, winter and summer. What wonder that the majority of graves in the miners' cemetery are short ones. A stunted, defrauded childhood, a sickly and infirm youth, and a manhood old and decrepit before his time, this is not an uncommon experience among these coal workers. It is true that there is a law forbidding the employment of young children in collieries on the statute book, but the evidence is convincing that it is very rarely enforced. The poverty of the parents and the indifference of the employers stand in the way. As late as 1883 there was no compulsory school law in Pennsylvania, and if there be now, it is, like the law referred to above, almost never enforced in the coal regions. When work is slack the miner sends his boys to school, where they get all the education they ever have. At other times they, as well as their father, must work.—George A. Denison, in Work and Wages, Holyoke, Mass.

Dan Rice on Jay Gould.

"Jim Fisk, Jay Gould, and I came near being partners, but Fisk died. Why, I recollect a story of Jay Gould that goes to show that as the twig is bent the tree's inclined—the inclinations of the boy are the doings and character of the man. When Gould was a boy in pantaloons and jacket one day he had five cents, and passing a pie-shop saw a nice cherry pie in the window. It made his mouth water, and he went in and the woman said ten cents. So when her back was turned he put his fingers in it and mussed the pie up, then he went in and bought it for a nickel. That's what he's been doing ever since.

The devil speed him,
No man's pie is freed
From his ambitious fingers.

says the Bard of Avon, and it fits. Why, he's been doing nothing but spoiling and buying railroads ever since,"—

Confirmed.

The senate has confirmed Gen. Samuel D. Leavitt as collector of customs at Eastport, Me. There was a letter or two sent to the senate with some court record extracts showing that Leavitt had many years ago been connected with smuggling, and been sentenced to pay a fine. There was also an affidavit concerning the importation of morphine, but the latter case was not tried, as the circumstances were plausibly explained by the general's counsel, Hon. Bion Bradbury, a former frontiersman who knew all the methods of Quoddy commerce, and easily put the charges to sleep. No one would suppose that when a passenger by the St. John boat passed to his friends on the dock, at Eastport, a bottle of brandy for immediate use, that there would be much of it left by the time it could reach the custom house. The salt air which blows across Campobello creates a constant thirst on Moose island. The goverment, in the new collector, has secured the services of one to the manner born, who knows full well that the payment of duties on certain goods on the frontier "is a custom more honored in the breach than the observance." How it will be when the experiment of setting a democrat to catch a rogue is attempted, is a matter for the future statistics of the treasury department to develope.

A Blunt Challenge.

Archbishop Corrigan, who suspended Rev. Dr. McGlynn for taking an active part in the George campaign in New York, is charged by Mr. George with having himself been active in politics. In last week's issue of his paper, the Standard, he says:

In the last issue of the Standard I made, in an article to which I attached my signature, a statement that Archbishop Corrigan had in the last campaign endeavored, through priests of his diocese, to defeat the call for a constitutional convention. He has been quoted as saying to a Herald reporter, that this statement was false, and to a Tribune reporter that it was ridiculous. Such denials are too vague to call for specific reply. But I am not in the habit of lightly making statements of this kind, and this statement I now reiterate. If Archbishop Corrigan sees fit to deny over his own signature the assertion I make over mine, and, in language which gives room for no equivocation, declares that he did not use his influence against the constitutional convention by communicating with priests of his diocese for that purpose, I will either give authority for my statement or publicly retract it.

THEY WILL RUN THE NAVY YARDS.

The Brooklyn Eagle last week published the following, which indicates that the Knights of Labor are not afraid to go for high game:

The Knights of Labor have taken the initiatory steps in a movement which promises to be the most serious they have yet undertaken. It is no less than a battle for recognition from the national government. Late the other afternoon a well dressed man called on Capt. Whiting, equipment officer at the Brooklyn navy yard. To the officer he refused his name, but said: "I am from branch Forty-Nine of the knights." He then handed Capt. Whiting a set of grievances dated Nov. 26th, 1886. He stated that the sailmakers employed by the government are hired at a lower rate than sailmakers outside, and that the foreman employed incompetent men as first-class mechanics at $1 and $1.50 less than union rates outside. This Capt. Whiting forcibly denied, and said many "grievances" were unjust. The knight said: "I know nothing about how you conduct things. I was only sent by the order to submit the grievances." "You can return to the order and tell them these grievances are a set of lies throughout," answered the officer. Capt. Whiting then went up to the sail loft, and calling the men about him, said: "If any man has a grievance he should come to me, and not waste time going to the Knights of Labor, for the government will not recognize them." It is well known that nearly every man employed in the navy yard belongs to the knights, and the fight with the government will be watched with great interest.

A Hard Life and Tragic Death.

The dead body of Mrs. Kate Scales, better known throughout northern New Hampshire as Kate Clark, was found in a snow bank beside a railroad track near Concord, Saturday forenoon, under suspicious circumstances. Her maiden name was Clarissa Abbott; on her 13th birthday she married George Clark, and a few years later, having been divorced, married John N. Foss, now a stable keeper of Manchester, from whom also she was divorced. She had served terms in the state prison for adultery and for burglary. She was married last year to George Scales, whom she met at the state prison in May, when both were discharged after serving sentences. There are suspicions that she was murdered. She leaves a son by her first husband.

Mrs. Lizzie N. Mathes, wife of John H. Mathes of Eliot, who died on Wednesday night of last week after a very brief illness, at the age of thirty-nine years, left two daughters, Nellie and Minnie; her funeral took place on Friday. It was the death of Mrs. Mathes, and the previous illness of one of the young girls with diphtheria, which gave rise to the sensational reports about the poisoning of the entire family by eating canned corned beef, for which report, so far as we have heard, there was no foundation whatever.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Jeremiah M. Mason of Limerick to Oscar Laighton et al. of Kittery, Duck island and Smuttynose island, Isles of Shoals, for $510; Jeremiah M. Mason to Oscar Laighton et al., Appledore island and Cedar island for $90. York—Frank P. Emerson to Jane E. Keen, real estate for $150. South Berwick—Charlotte Warren to George E. Cox, land and buildings for $675; Josiah Paul to Ida E. Robbins, real estate on Paul street for $400; David Cummings of Somerville, Mass., to Jacob Brierly of South Berwick, real estate on Paul street, South Berwick, for $160. Wells—Barak Maxwell to Charles L. Perkins, the "Stevens place" for $600.

The recently organized York county democratic club has elected a formidable string of vice presidents, twenty-seven in number, being one from each town in the county. Among these are Ephraim C. Spinney of Kittery, George A. Hammond of Eliot, Charles Junkins of York, S. P. Parcher of South Berwick, Harry V. Moore of Berwick, H. G. Ham of North Berwick, L. C. Stevens of Wells, Charles C. Perkins of Kennebunk, and William H. Hutchins, Jr., of Kennebunkport. If they can only get all these to the polls they will be nearly able to carry the county without any other aid.

Gov. Bodwell of Maine has appointed Walter H. Downs of South Berwick to be a trial justice, and Charles F. Sanborn to be a justice of the peace.

does not refer possible purchasers to his victims. The Athlophoros Co. gladly refers sufferers from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous or sick headache, kidney and liver complaints to those who have been cured of these diseases by Athlophoros, and will furnish names and addresses of many such persons to those desiring them. Athlophoros is the only remedy for these diseases that can stand such a test.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

Of all medicines that claim to cure rheumatism there is only one that will or can do it and that one is Athlophoros. I have for years been troubled with muscular rheumatism, and these severe attacks keep me in bed for 14 or 15 weeks at a time, taking all kinds of medicine, none of which would give me more than temporary relief. The last time I was down I commenced to use Athlophoros; the first bottle got me out of bed in quick order. I was then able to get around on crutches, a second bottle I am happy to say laid away the crutches, and I shall never need them again, for in case I should ever be troubled again with rheumatism I can get a cure in Athlophoros. NORMAN HOWE.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

After suffering with inflammatory rheumatism for six years, and having tried everything with no result, I was one day induced to try Athlophoros; it was a last resort; in three hours after the first dose there was such a change for the better, that my friends were surprised; in all I took two bottles, and to-day I am hale and hearty, not a sign of rheumatism about me. With such a simple and effective cure, the day must soon come when that dread disease will be a thing of the past. J. F. MAHONEY.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athiophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

SUPREME COURT.

In the supreme court at Exeter, January term, Judge Bingham presiding, eight divorce cases were heard last week.

The Sanborn will case has been especially assigned for trial at the April term, on Monday of the third week.

The trial of cases by the court commenced on Thursday, the 20th, and will continue through the week.

Following are the petit jurors, all of whom were dismissed Wednesday, 19th: all jury cases having been settled or continued to the April term, which will also be held by Judge Bingham: Charles E. Atwood, Jewett Conner, Chase Wiggin, Exeter; Edward Adams, Frank P. Bradford, Derry; Harrison G. Burley, A. T. Gilman, Newmarket; Fred W. Moses, John E. Milton, ward 1; Cyrus H. Rand, Benjamin Tripp, ward 3, Portsmouth; John N. Sleeper, Amos C. Clement, Plaistow; Plumer B. Corson, Charles W. Lane, Raymond; H. George Brown, Arthur L. Goss, Rye; Wm. S. Tilton, Edwin C. Mills, Sandown; John N. Chase, Samuel J. Smith, Seabrook; Herbert J. Brown, Frank O. Towle, South Hampton; James H. Wilkinson, Jeremiah Towle, South Newmarket; Charles E. Gear, Henry S. Lane, Stratham.

HARD TRAVELLING.

On of the occupants of the police station, Friday night, was a man giving the name of Thomas Cass, and hailing from Halifax, N. S. His feet were in a very bad condition, he having frozen them on the road between Hampton Falls and North Hampton on the previous Tuesday, and only managed to reach this city on Friday night after much suffering. He says that he applied to farmers on the road, telling them of the condition of his feet, offering to pay for his keeping, but they would not admit him to their houses, and he further says he paid one man five cents for a small piece of cloth with which to do up his feet. He received treatment at the police station on Saturday by the city physician, and we understand that the county commissioners have decided to send him home to Halifax.

SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS.

There were ninety-three deaths, fifty-four births and twenty-eight marriages in Newmarket during the year 1886. Of the ninety-three persons who died, fifty-ty-four, more than half the entire number, were under the age of ten years, and nineteen of them were under the age of one year, most of these infantile deaths occurring in the families of the French Canadian residents. Eleven of the decedents were over seventy years old, and five over eighty. The oldest in the list was aged eighty-eight years and nine months.

AN ODD RUNAWAY.

The Pullman train due in this city at 8:55 o'clock Saturday evening did not arrive until about ten o'clock, not having left Boston until after eight, in consequence of an unusual accident, the tracks at Prison point having been blocked over two hours by a collision between a Saugus branch train and a "wild" engine. The engine was standing on a side track, with steam up but without either engineer or fireman on board, and suddenly started off on its own hook, striking the rear car of the Saugus train on its side, knocking it from the track and turning it nearly bottom up. Several passengers were injured, but only one seriously. Had the car taken fire a number of lives must have been lost, as it was some time before all the passengers were extricated.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

The mild air and warm sunshine secured a large attendance at the churches, notwithstanding the bad walking, on Sunday. The services were conducted by the resident pastors, Mr. Fisher, the Universalist minister, officiating for Mr. Hainer at the Court street Christian church. In the evening, at the North church, the subject was "The Philosophy of Reform in a Republic," being a general discussion of the principles and prospects of the temperance reform, which service will be supplemented this (Monday) evening by a temperance lecture illustrated with a powerful stereopticon, to which parents are especially invited to bring their children.

"Manners" was the subject considered in the Universalist church yesterday, the text being Matt. 5:48, "Ye therefore shall be perfect even as your Heavenly Father is perfect."

There is no essential dispute to-day upon the saving power of morals. Yet there is much mistaken and superficial thinking done on the philosophy of goodness. The most rigid Calvinist will not, in his soul, send to hell the heretic that he loves; yet he would not own that the heretic's morals saved him; it was his winning manners. Thus he would shut manners out of morals. Morals, with him and others, mean prim asceticism. If Jesus was a moral man, morals mean manifest love to God and man. Manners is the manifest soul. It tells if a man's goodness is a mask, an exertion, or if it is a loving passion. Manners are visible morals, and therefore are the advertisements of how much goodness one sincerely enjoys. Men trust you with money, for your morals; they trust you with their confidence and love for your manners. So morals are wrongly so-called, unless they prove that one is long accustomed to them, and that the soul naturally loves them, by their spontaneous flow through manner. This instinctive, easy-mannered love-making to goodness, this power of loving morals, rather than a nervous exertion to avoid one's own self, is that quality of feeling which Jesus calls eternal life. God is necessarily infinitely good in his manners. He loves to be good. Man, to be saved from evil, must passionately and with unaffected manner love the good. For every instance in which man does this, he is perfect as his Heavenly Father is perfect. This is "going to Heaven."

The entertainment in the vestry of the Methodist church on Friday evening of last week, given by, and wholly under the management of, the children of the society's Sunday school, drew a crowded audience, there being present many persons from other denominations. There were twelve numbers on the programme, and all were pleasingly filled by the little performers. At the close of the literary and musical exercises ice cream and cake were served, and a goodly sum was realized from the evening's entertainment.

Hon. Frank Jones is burning wood—mostly pine and hemlock—in the furnaces at his brewery, instead of coal; the wood is hauled from the old town farm in Greenland, which was purchased by Mr. Jones some time ago, and a great amount of it is consumed daily.

A large number of teams were on Saturday engaged in hauling ice from the pond near Rye town farm to Perkins & Gardner's ice-houses on South street.

Owners of pool tables and billiard tables should not forget that it is against the law to allow a minor to play those games without the written permission of their fathers or guardians. This law it is alleged is continually disregarded; it is a wholesome and proper law, and should be rigidly enforced. A PARENT.

Lawrence, Farrow master, the largest schooner that ever entered this harbor, and which brought the largest cargo of coal (2016 tons) ever landed here by any vessel, sailed on Sunday for a coal port, going down river in tow of the tug Clara Bateman. This big schooner carries but one mate, and seven men before the mast, her company consisting of but eleven men all told. A ship of the same size would have more seamen than that in each watch.

Heavy slides of snow and ice were numerous from the roofs of buildings in this city, Sunday forenoon, consequent on the melting temperature. A slide from the roof of Exchange buildings caused the wooden awning in front of C. E. Laighton & Son's store to bulge downward five or six inches, broke one of the supports of the Central Oyster house awning, and smashed a pane of glass in the saloon window.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Latimer, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured.

E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Klotz, who had tetter on her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of Itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.

Preparation of Sealskins.

There is a popular notion that the sealskin as we see it at the furrier's is just as it is taken off the animal. Nothing, however, could be more contrary to fact. Raw skins are less attractive than this at first, as the fur is completely covered and hidden by the dull gray-brown and grizzled overhair. This mask has, then, to be removed, and this is an operation requiring a very great amount of patience and skill, with a consequent increase in price. The unhairing is effected by warmth and moisture, which softens the roots of the overhair and enables it to be pulled out, or by shaving the inner side very thin, which cuts off the roots of the hair, which penetrate deeply, and leaves untouched those of the fur, which are very superficial. Whichever method is employed, the hair must be taken off uniformly or the fur will never lie smoothly, but always have a rumpled look, which can never be corrected by any subsequent treatment. This will explain to some extent the cause of the high price of sealskin jackets and cloaks, and also the cause of the different prices one hears of, as a good many skins are more or less spoiled in the dressing. Another cause, too, is the quality of the dye and the workmanship employed in its use. The liquid color is put on with a brush, and the points of the standing fur carefully covered; the skin is then rolled up fur inside, and then, after a little time, hung up and dried. The dry dye is then removed and a further coat applied, dried, removed, and so on till the requisite shade is obtained. One or two of these coats are laid on thick and pressed down to the roots of the fur, making what is called the ground. From eight to twelve coats are needed to procure a good color. No wonder a first-class sealskin is expensive; it is just as true now as ever it was; but in these days of universal cheapness one is apt to forget that if you want a really good thing you must pay a good price.—All the Year Round.

On the vestibule of a house recently put up in Boston the frieze is a copy of one in the Parthenon, and the tiling is given a mellow effect of age to correspond with the antiquity of design.

A New Book.

The mysterious author of "The Story of Margaret Kent" has completed another novel called "Sons and Daughters," which will be published in a few days, and which is reviewed at length from advance sheets in the Boston Traveller of Friday, Jan. 12th. It is published by Ticknor & Co., Boston. The Traveller predicts that it will be the great novel of the season, and will be the leading thing in fiction, in social discussion and interest.

The Pioneer Quakers: by Richard P. Hallowell, author of "The Quaker Invasion of Massachusetts." Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Portsmouth, sold by Mercer Goodrich; price, $1.00.

Mr. Hallowell, whose volume above referred to, published in 1883, treated of the rise of Quakerism, and gave us authentic information of the Friends, in the present publication reproduces a lecture written at the request of the Saturday Morning club of Boston in March last. In this volume, the author undertakes to point out the errors of such writers as the historian Hildreth, and Dr. Palfrey; while for less ambitious authors of our day, such as John Fiske, H. E. Scudder and Charles Carlton Coffin, there is a castigation for not taking sufficient pains to inform themselves with the record while they travel in well-worn paths of false historical conceptions. The book has ninety pages in addition to a full index. In correcting historical errors, and giving a review of the progress of Quakerism in the Massachusetts colonies from its advent down to 1724, when the Frjends secured exemption from taxes imposed for the support of the Orthodox clergy, the work will have its value as a reliable historical publication.

To live beneath sorrow one must yield to it, to live without pain ladies should use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

During the recent campaign of the Salvation Army in Saco a quarrel arose among the soldiers, which led to the use of high words, and finally to a lawsuit. Honestus Peaslee, who for a time was secretary of the organization in Saco, sued John B. Smith for slander, the charge being that James called Honestus a "liar, thief and hypocrite" in a public meeting of the army. The case occupied the court several days. Eighteen persons called as witnesses for the complainant swore to hearing the three words used, while an equal number of witnesses swore that only two of the slanderous words, "liar and hypocrite" were used. This discrepancy is the more remarkable from the fact that the law of Maine does not punish a man for calling another a liar and hypocrite, but does make it actionable to call him a theif. After patient hearing of the case the jury gave a verdict for the complainant, assessing the damages at one cent. From this verdict it would seem that the jury thought the defendant's witnesses were all mistaken, and that he did call the complainant a thief.

The White Plains, N. Y., assasins and suicides have been identified as John Tristram, aged nineteen, and Thomas Tristram, aged seventeen, sons of James Tristram of New York city, a wire merchant. They had always been respectable, and their fatal folly was no doubt due to wholesale reading of dime novels and "boys' story papers" of the flash variety.

You'd Better Pay as You Go.

It is a very convenient thing, writes Emily S. Bouton in the Toledo Blade, to have a standing account at a store where you can go at any time, order what you please, and have it charged, without the worry of having to consider whether you have enough money in your purse to pay for it or not, but it is also true that these items, small though they may be, mount up with appalling rapidity into a sum that always surpasses expectation. Besides this, the very best calculators, and those who generally use a wise economy, buy things in this way which they could easily do without did they take the time for reflection which cash payments would often compel. It is so easy, when an article that seems at the time desirable is seen, to order it sent and charged for, that temptation overcomes the buyer before the strength which comes from looking at the matter on all sides enables her to resist the impulse to buy. Often purchases are made in this way and regretted, while something that was far more necessary must in consequence be gone without.

Merchants understand that a great deal more is likely to be bought where there is a running account than when cash is paid down which explains their readiness to trust those whom they have reason to believe will pay what they honestly owe. The excess will, in nine cases out of ten, more than compensate for the loss of interest upon the outstanding sums, though there is no question but that they sometimes lose large amounts by the failure of individuals through misfortune, sickness, death, or deliberate rascality to discharge their debts.

Of course there are very many women who cannot control this matter. Their husbands are the treasurers and dispensers of the family finances, and cash payments are impossible without the masculine approval. They see the matter only in the light of diamond cut diamond. Their customers make them wait for their returns, why should they not proceed in the same way. Nor can they be made to see, even from a selfish point of view, that the pay-as-you-go system, so far as family expenses are concerned, is far cheaper in the end, to whatever extent it can be made practicable. And truth to tell, it would be far easier in most cases to carry it out than they will acknowledge even to themselves.

The women, however, who can command the money, and those who earn their own living, will be far wiser to adopt the rule of buying nothing which they cannot immediately pay for, or for which the money is at their command in a future so near as to make it a certainty, than to have things charged week after week, with the expectation of settling it in a time which may find them in a position that will render the payment a most difficult matter. Uncertainty is an element entering very largely into this life, and those people who have the fewest odds and ends floating out, to become tangled at some inopportune moment, have generally the greatest measure of happiness. A little self-denial in the present may save you a large portion of discomfort in the future, for to the thoroughly honest person, that one who means to deal fairly by his kind, a debt that cannot be paid is an ever-pressing nightmare.

Expert Shots on the Stage.

Billy Limberger, "Wick," the shootist, who has made shooting guns and dogs a study for the last fifteen years, said this morning:

"A good deal of this shooting that you see on the stage and you read about in exhibitions is not what it looks to be. I know a little about this thing. Take for instance Capt. Stubb, the Arkansaw shooter, who hit little vials thrown up in the air fifteen or twenty feet from him with bullets of forty-five calibre. Every one who sees him shoot them actually supposes he is shooting and breaking them, but instead of a solid bullet he has about a quarter of an ounce of chilled shot in his shell, and it is a poor shot who would miss a vial or even a mosquito with that charge. Then there is W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," Dr. W. F. Carver and other exhibition shooters, traveling with such shows They announce that they will shoot balls riding on horseback and in other ways with a Winchester repeating rifle loaded with a solid bullet. All their shooting is done, without question, with shot in place of a solid ball. A solid bullet would not be allowed in any city, and they must assure the authorities that they will not shoot a solid bullet before they will be allowed to exhibit.

"Many go to the theaters and see an expert shot or to shoot thimbles off one another's head. The thimble has a string that is invisible attached to its and when the explosion of the gun take, place it pulls these strings attached to the thimble. Then there is another trick of snuffing the candle with a rifle bullet. That is done by placing the candle in front of a solid iron plate. Any shot striking within an inch and a half or even two inches of the wick will put the light out. The concussion and splash of the bullet does this. The match trick is a similar one—that is, lighting a match with a rifle bullet. Twelve matches are set to make a circle on an iron plate, the heads of these matches all point toward the center. If the bullet hits anywhere in the circle, the splash of the bullet will ignite one or all of the matches, the more the merrier

Every glorious act of a great life starts forward an eloquent fact. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the glorious act of a life's study, and it is a positive fact that it stands without a rival.

Among the nominations confirmed by the senate last week were those of Col. F. A. Barker of Keene to be United States marshal for the district of New Hampshire, and the following-named postmasters in this state: W. S. Barrows at Hinsdale, O. D. Colony at Keene, W. F. Harmon at Great Falls, C. E. McIntyre at Lancaster, C. A. Morse at Newmarket, C. E. Dalton at Suncook, and H. H. Follansbee at Bristol.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Another Eight-Hour Strike.

A Chicago despatch says another eight-hour movement of even greater magnitude than the one which failed last year is being organized by local labor agitators, to be inaugurated May 1st next. The various carpenters' unions have already adopted resolutions declaring that they will demand eight hours, and pay at the rate of thirty-five cents per hour. The other branches of the building trades are being reorganized as fast as possible, and they will probably follow the example of the carpenters in a week or two. It is probable that all the building trades of the city will be consolidated and organized into a separate district assembly of the Knights of Labor. Efforts tending to bring this consolidation about are being made by members of the different unions.

Digestible and Indigestible Food.

The following table, especially prepared by an eminent New York physician, will be found of practical interest, as giving a clear idea of the food easily digested, that which is moderately easy of digestion, and lastly, what is difficult to digest:

Moderately digestible—Beef, lamb, rabbit, young pigeon, duck, wild waterfowl, woodcock, snipe, soups, eggs (not hard boiled,) butter, turtle, cod, pike, trout, raw or stewed oysters, potatoes, beets, turnips, cabbage, spinach, artichoke, lettuce, celery, apples, apricots, currants, raspberries, bread, farinaceous puddings, jelly, marmalade, rhubarb plant, cooked fruits, cocoa, coffee.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., Jan 24th.

Mr. Alex. Thompson, a man over sixty years of age, with the biggest yoke of oxen in York, (weighing over 4,200 lbs.,) was the first team out to break the roads in this vicinity after the recent blockade.

Mr. J. P. Norton on Wednesday evening last, while in his saw-mill just before closing time, got his foot under the mill carriage as it was running swiftly back. The foot was considerably injured and Mr. Norton has suffered much pain, but he rode out Saturday, being one of the kind of go-ahead men who don't want to sit in the house. He is, with his large crews of men, mules and horses, doing a large business this winter in stripping wood and timber land, and also in getting out stone for a portion of "our" railroad. We learn that some of our people are not much pleased, in fact are exceeding wroth, because the road is destined to go through "Juniper Town." Chickens go home to roost!

"One was afraid and the other dare not" was the way some of the officials stood in the matter of breaking out the roads. The Cider Hill district remained impassible for six days (to the danger of travellers and the shame of its denizens as well as the authorities,) till finally word was given from the chairman of the board of selectmen, and the town pays the bill of about $15.

Bragdon Bros. have purchased and are stripping a wood lot. Smart and good boys.

York is getting to be a lively place. The hauling of piling and stone for that railroad, and the large crews of men digging and otherwise connected therewith, cause quite a boom in our usually quiet vicinity. There is one peculiarity about this railroad line or lines; it has been seen from the start that each survey going outside of the preceeding circular survey has caused the distance to grow shorter. It used to be the other way; a straight line was the nearest between two points.

Mr. S. E. Grant and wife, of Limerick, have recently visited friends here.

S. W. Junkins, Esq., recently recieved a slight injury from being kicked by an animal in the barn; lamed him a little for the time, but he is all right now, and ready to survey land—if the snow isn't too deep to be able to tell where the land is.

Dr. Stewart is as busy as his Satanic Majesty in a gale of wind.

Miss Haley, the revival preacher now laboring at Ogunquit, it is understood is coming here to exhort sinners to flee from the wrath to come. There is unquestionably a grand-sized field for such labor here. P.

AN EASTERN MAN OF WESTERN GROWTH.

A recent number of the "Magazine of Western History," published at Cleveland, Ohio, in a series of articles on the Michigan lumber interests has a sketch of Ammi W. Wright of Saginaw, a noted business man and financier of Michigan.

Mr. Wright is a native of Grafton, Vermont. In 1850 he went to Michigan. At one time he had as partners Messrs. Charles H. Davis and Reuben Kimball, who went from Portsmouth. Mr. Wright is president of the A. W. Wright Lumber Co., of which W. T. Knowlton is secretary. He is president of the Commercial bank of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., and of the Merchants' National bank of Duluth, Minn.; and is also director of the First National bank at Saratoga and in the National Bank of Commerce at Minneapolis.

He is a type of the successful, comprehensive man of New England birth, who goes west not so much to grow up with the country, as to have the country grow up with him by means of a development which his industry, broad ideas and New England thrift and energy is sure to produce.

The excellent steel engraving of Mr. Wright with which the magazine is adorned shows the face of a man of remarkable traits as well as of prepossessing appearance.

Cardinal Jacobini has resigned the office of Pontifical secretary of state.

A SWINDLER does not refer possible purchasers to his victims. The Athlophoros Co. gladly refers sufferers from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous or sick headache, kidney and liver complaints to those who have been cured of these diseases by Athlophoros, and will furnish names and addresses of many such persons to those desiring them. Athlophoros is the only remedy for these diseases that can stand such a test.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

Of all medicines that claim to cure rheumatism there is only one that will or can do it and that one is Athlophoros. I have for years been troubled with muscular rheumatism, at times so severe as to keep me in bed for 11 or 16 weeks at a time, taking all kinds of medicine, none of which would give me more than temporary relief. The last time I was down I commenced to use Athlophoros; the first bottle got me out of bed in quick order. I was then able to get around on crutches, a second bottle I am happy to say laid away the crutches, and I shall never need them again, for in case I should ever be troubled again with rheumatism I can get a cure in Athlophoros. NORMAN HOWE.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

After suffering with inflammatory rheumatism for six years, and having tried everything with no result, I was one day induced to try Athlophoros; it was a last resort; in three hours after the first dose there was such a change for the better, that my friends were surprised; in all I took two bottles, and to-day I am hale and hearty, no sign of rheumatism about me. With such a simple and effective cure, the day must soon come when that dread disease will be a thing of the past.

J. F. MAHONEY.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

The Thermometer at the CHRONICLE Office, at 4:00 o'clock this morning, indicated 24 degrees above zero.

Sky Clear.

GAMINS FRIGHTENING LADIES.

Saturday evening, Jan. 22d, as two ladies were walking on Pleasant street a young hoodlum suddenly made his appearance from the shadow of the high steps leading to the residence of Mr. Geo. Hill, running rapidly towards them on his hands and knees, startling and frightening them very much. They hastened on their way, and in a few moments met a lady friend to whom they related their adventure. They were told that at the corner of the street another boy, probably a companion of the other, was amusing himself in the same way. Being thus forewarned they were ready for the young rogue, and when he made his appearance one of the ladies lustily belabored him with her umbrella, while the other seizing him by the collar shook and cuffed him until he cried for mercy. It is to be presumed he will be more careful about playing his pranks in future.

SOFT WEATHER.

Seldom does a large amount of snow and ice disappear more rapidly than has been the case in this city since Saturday evening. The street commissioner had a large number of men employed on Saturday, and a good number on Sunday, clearing the snow from the sewer-inlets and cutting channels along the streets where needed, to allow the water a fair get-away when a big thaw should come; and the work was not done any too soon. On Monday the snow in the road-beds had become so much softened that in many places the horses' feet would slump through to the ground, making travelling somewhat risky. It will pass for a January thaw of the old style.

WOMAN'S TEMPERANCE LEAGUE.

At the last regular meeting of the Woman's Temperance League, the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Pettigrew;
1st Vice Pres., Mrs. Deverson;
2d Vice Pres., Mrs. Sanborn;
Rec. Sec., Mrs. Smart;
Treasurer, Miss Candage;
Asst. Treas., Miss Fritz;
Chaplain, Mrs. Taylor.

WANT UNIFORM WAGES.

The freight brakemen in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad company last week presented the general manager with a request for an advance in their wages to the uniform rate of $2 per day, their present pay being of three different grades — $1.75, $1.80 and $1.90; also that ten hours should constitute a day's work, and that all time worked over ten hours should be paid for pro rata. The general manager of the road stated to the committee representing the employes that the request should receive his attention, and that the Boston & Maine railroad corporation would pay as much to its men as any railroad running into Boston.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

MONDAY, Jan. 24th.

Joseph J. Morrison, for drunkenness, was fined $20, with costs taxed at $6.90; and in default of payment, was sent to jail to board it out. Morrison was convicted in October, 1885, of being a tramp, and was sent to state prison, from which institution he was only a few days ago released, since when, it is reported, he has been going about breathing forth threatenings of slaughter and destruction against all who contributed to his incarceration by testifying against him. This probably accounts for the unusually high price the city charges him for one drunk.

Alexander McCavitt and Alvin H. Emery, two simple drunks, without any tramp or bully attachment, so far as was put in evidence before the court, were fined $3, costs $6.90, each, and it not being convenient for either of them to pay that sum, they were sent to the county's country seat to earn it.

PERSONAL.

Hon. Frank Jones and wife are to leave Boston to-day for Florida, where they will remain some time.

Hon. Charles H. Sawyer and wife, of Dover, are in Washington on their way to Florida, where they are to spend some weeks.

Hon. Christopher E. Kymes and wife, of Somerville, Mass., sailed last Saturday for the Bermudas, to remain for the balance of the winter.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Annie F. Conlon finished discharging her cargo of coal last Saturday. She will load 1,500 barrels of apples for Charles H. Hayes, and proceed to Baltimore, where she will load again with coal for this port.

The fish receipts from Sunday morning to Monday evening were very heavy, E. Newton & Co. receiving from the schooner Bertha Miller 10,000 lbs.; from the John Twombly, 4,000; E. A. Williams, 3,000; Mary Amanda, 5,000; Golden Rule, 8,000; A. C. Newhall, 6,000; Georgia Hagan, 17,000; Franklin S. Schenck, 40,000, (two trips of 20,000 lbs. each;) Charles Dyer, 2,500; Helen F. Tredick, 4,500; John W. Caswell, 7,000; Alice Lee, 500. Capt. Edw. Jameson received from the Comet 5,500 lbs.; Amos Cutter, 19,000; Josie Johnson, 8,000; Alabama, 5,000; Grace Choate, 12,000; Rover's Bride, 7,000. Daniel L. Randall bought the Flora Temple's fare, 3,000 lbs.; others firms, the Hattie N. Reed, 15,000; Bonita, 6,000; Lady Thorne, 8,000; Albert Woodbury, 4,000; Fannie Reed, 4,500; Clyde, 5,000.

The schooner Freddie L. Porter, of Boston, Russell master, has been abandoned at sea in a sinking condition, on the passage from Charleston to Mobile. The Freddie L. Porter was built at this port in 1865; was 129 feet long, twenty feet beam and fifteen feet in the hold, and registered about 350 tons.

There were shipped to Boston on Monday by the fish firms of this city, 130 boxes of fish—over thirty tons.

The crew of the fishing schooner Franklin S. Schenck divided up a little over $50 to a man, for her two trips landed at this port Sunday and Monday.

George Burke, one of the crew of the fishing schooner Georgia Hagan, of Newcastle, in attempting to board his vessel at Rollins' wharf on Monday evening with a pitchfork in his hand, in the intense darkness missed his footing and fell into the dock, striking a pile and receiving considerable injury.

HE'S NO JUDGE.

It was a great mistake to give Capt. Greely charge of the weather of this great country. When the temperature gets up to zero he puts on carpet slippers and a linen duster, and calls for a palm leaf fan. He may do for serving out comfort in the summer, but his ideas as to the kind of weather needed during the winter are widely at variance with those of the rest of the people.

Rev. George W. Savory, of Stratham, on Monday evening delivered in the North church, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, a lecture illustrated by a powerful sciopticon. The pictures were vividly presented, and the lecture was an earnest and interesting presentation of the evils of strong drink and the perils of indulgence therein.

The roof of a shed on Summer street, opposite the Catholic church, fell in Sunday morning, from the weight of accumulated snow upon it. Fortunately no one was in the building at the time. The roof fell only to the second floor, where it rested. Messrs. Moulton & Brooks are repairing the damage.

The Manchester Mirror reports that Mr. David R. Ambrose of that city has sold his place in Portsmouth, known as "Willow Springs Farm," to George A. Clough and Edward B. Clough, for $3,300. This is the fine farm near Great swamp (which is now no swamp at all, having been cleared, drained and brought almost wholly under cultivation within the past twenty-five years,) opposite the Tabor place on Greenland road, and now occupied by Mr. William C. McCallin, the milkman.

The Devil's Auction, a spectacular extravaganza which was at Music hall last year, and greatly pleased a large audience, will show at the same place next Saturday evening, with even more gorgeous scenery and dresses than on the former occasion, and with additional ingenious and surprising mechanical effects. Though patterned something after the style of the Black Crook, it is superior to that noted spectacular piece.

Two coal trains, one drawn by two engines and the other by one, left this city over the Concord & Portsmouth railroad on Sunday.

The telegraph wires of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad have been connected with the Boston & Maine wires at the office of the station in this city.

Miss Florence Burdakin and Master Osgood Tarr, pupils of Miss Isa Frisbee of this city, played at a concert given in Boston on Thursday evening last. Both gave evidence of natural talent, but above all, careful training and confidence, most essential qualifications in young musicians. Miss Frisbee may justly be proud of her pupils.

Hugh Archibald of Portland, Me., at work on the railroad bridge at Biddeford last Friday, was struck by a plank and badly hurt. Half an hour later James Isener, another Portland man, was hurt at the same place in a similar way, and it was feared fatally. Both men were taken to their homes.

Mrs. Betsey (Stevens) Sands, widow of Thomas G. Sands, died in Saco on the 21st inst., aged eighty-five years and seven months. It is related of her that during the war of the rebellion she knit with her own hands 113 pair of mittens and stockings, which she gave to the Saco Soldiers' Aid society for the benefit of the soldiers.

Rev. D. S. Hibbard, formerly pastor of the Congregational church in Eliot, is now settled in Capioma, Nemaka county, Kansas, and is doing a good work.

The secretary of the navy has ordered Naval Constructor Frank L. Fernald, now on duty as a member of the naval advisory board, to be detached, and he is to report at San Francisco on the 7th of February as inspector on the Charleston, one of the new naval vessels, which is to be constructed by the Union Iron Works of that city.

Hong Kong has experienced a bank defalcation of stately proportions. Thus do the enlightening influences of our national progress illume the unsophisticated nations of the eastern hemisphere.

Mrs. Boulanger of Branch county, Mich., gave birth to twins two years ago. A year later she gave birth to triplets. Last Christmas she added four more little Boulangers to the family.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming 'smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.' I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

SKIN & SCALP

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

For cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Disfiguring Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scaly Head, Scrofula, and other inherited Skin and Blood Diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible.

A COMPLETE CURE.

I have suffered all my life with skin diseases of different kinds and have never found permanent relief, until, by the advice of a lady friend, I used your valuable CUTICURA REMEDIES. I gave them a thorough trial, using six bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, two boxes of CUTICURA and seven cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the result was just what I had been told it would be—a complete cure. BELLE WADE, Richmond, Va. Reference, G. W. Lathner, Druggist, Richmond, Va.

SALT RHEUM CURED.

I was troubled with Salt Rheum for a number of years, so that the skin entirely came off one of my hands from the finger tips to the wrist. I tried remedies and doctors' prescriptions to no purpose until I commenced taking CUTICURA REMEDIES, and now I am entirely cured. E. T. PARKER, 379 Northampton St., Boston.

DRUGGISTS ENDORSE THEM.

Have sold a quantity of your Cuticura Remedies. One of my customers, Mrs. Henry Kintz, who had her mother and her hands to such an extent as to cause the skin to peel off, and for eight years suffered greatly, was completely cured by the use of your medicines. C. N. NYE, Druggist, Canton, Ohio.

ITCHING, SCALY, PIMPLY.

For the last year I have had a species of Itching, scaly and pimply humors on my face to which I have applied a great many methods of treatment without success, and which was speedily and entirely cured by CUTICURA.

Mme. de Stael as a Flirt.

Mme. de Stael was equally complaisant in her invitations to Mr. Morris to come to her Tuesday evenings, when she gathered her familiar friends round her, and, throwing off all ceremony, admitted them in morning collet, and in offering him every opportunity for a flirtation informed him, he says, "with a refreshing naivete, calculated to demolish all ceremonious barriers, that she rather invites than repels those who incline to be attentive. We become engaged in an animated conversation at table, and she desires me to speak English, which her husband does not understand. In looking round the room I observe in him much emotion, and I tell her that he loves her distractedly, which she says she knows, and that it renders her miserable. After dinner I seek a conversation with the husband, which relieves him. He inveighs bitterly against the manners of the country and the cruelty of alienating a wife's affection. I regret with him, on general grounds, that prostitution of morals which unfits them for good government, and convince him, I think, I shall not contribute toward making him any more uncomfortable than he already is."—Gouverneur Morris' Diaries.

The Great Educator.

"Young man," said the editor of the Lost Creek Stereopticon, "you can draw your pay and evacuate the ranch. I've no use for you." "Why, what's the matter now?" gasped the new local. "That account of the Beaseley-Oppendorff wedding." "Why, I thought I did myself proud on that. The two families have ordered more'n a hundred extra papers." "Well, it won't do. You headed it 'The Beaseley-Oppendorff Wedding,' instead of 'Wedding Bells.'" "Bells! why there ain't a bell in the county except when a steamboat comes along, and the river isn't open now." "Makes no difference, 'Wedding Bells' is the head for marriage notices; it was there on the standing galley, and this office doesn't allow any dead capital lying around. Next thing I know you'll be saying that some citizen went to Chicago, instead of 'departed for the East.' You can go."—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

CAPTAIN S. GREENWOOD,

Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings. He felt tired instead of vigorous; nervous instead of strong. His appetite became poor and his sleep broken. He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and that the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the Captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it whenever they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife, (whom the best physicians of New York said was dying of tumor,) to perfect health, I swear by it."

This Great Remedy absolutely cures all Kidney Liver and Urinary Diseases.

The Rapidity of Progress Toward Health,

Even when a good remedy for disease is selected, depends in some measure upon the manner in which it is taken. Irregular, interrupted doses can afford no fair test of the efficacy of any medicine, however salutary. Taken in proper doses at prescribed intervals, a reliable curative will effect the object of its use. Among remedies which, systematically and persistently used, accomplish thorough and lasting cures, and prevents the recurrence of periodical disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ranks specially high. In cases of dyspepsia, debility, rheumatism, fever and ague, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, constipation, and other organic maladies, it is a tried remedy, to which the medical brotherhood have lent their professional sanction, and which, as a tonic, alterative and household specific for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, has an unbounded popularity.

Miss Grace Morrison, of Rochester, was the first lady to go down the Dover toboggan slide at Garrison hill; and Miss Ida Hodsdon of Dover was "the first lady to fly off at a tangent" there, the Dover Republican says.

Much of the discomfort of wash day is removed by the use of James Pyle's Pearline. It removes dirt without the least injury to the most delicate fabric. For sale by grocers generally.

The coroner's jury decided that Kate Scales of Concord died from exposure.

South Hooksett has an epidemic of whooping cough; nearly every family is affected, two deaths have occurred, and the schools are closed, every scholar having the complaint.

Hop Plasters are a New England production from fresh hops, burgundy pitch and gums.

Ted Timoney, formerly a rough and "fighting man" of Biddeford, Me., but later of Dover, and an alleged participant in several prize fights, was arrested in Dover on the 24th inst. on a charge of feloniously assaulting Amanda A. Goodwin.

To live beneath sorrow one must yield to it, to live without pain ladies should use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Two leading members of the Strafford county bar, Messrs. Burleigh and Gafney, lost their wives by death last week.

The people of Dover and vicinity are crazy—stark, staring mad, over their toboggan slide at Garrison hill, which was informally opened the latter part of last week. There were 400 persons at the slide Saturday night; and over 1000 went to the grounds on foot, Sunday, and as many more in teams, though of course there was no sliding allowed or attempted.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

Dispatches from Brisbane, the capital of Queensland, Australia, say that colony has been swept by a fearful cyclone, accompanied by a rainfall of such extraordinarily copious showers that twenty inches fell in a short time. The result has been disastrous floods. In the city of Brisbane some of the thoroughfares are submerged to a depth of twenty feet. The city is entirely cut off by the floods from its suburbs. The reports say that many persons were drowned.

It does not add to the pacific look of things in Europe that almost daily one nation or another "officially" declares that it has no intention of starting a fight.

Lead Your Constitution a Hand.

Constitutions are much alike, and in nine-tenths of us the same causes produce the same effects. Vertigo, dizziness, or pain of any kind, excepting that of an injury, can come only when there is in our bodies some impurity of the blood which we have not sufficient vitality to throw off without help. Therefore, the proper thing to do is to get immediately the necessary help. No aid is so effective as Brandreth's Pills. When you feel these ills coming on take from three to ten of these pills, according to your weight, and be relieved at once. Never put off the feeling by thinking you will soon be over it. Take the pills and do not rack the constitution.

Commander T. F. Jewell, commanding the U. S. S. Essex, reports to the navy department, under date of Singapore, Dec. 18th, that on the 14th, while exercising with torpedoes, a premature explosion of an exercise torpedo, containing 4 1-2 lbs. of gun cotton, occurred before the torpedo was submerged. The fragments of the torpedo case killed Peter Hagel, an apprentice, and wounded Wm. C. Hammond, August Fettig, and R. F. Gerbrach, apprentices. A board of inquiry was ordered to investigate the cause of the explosion.

Dennis Kennedy, who was slashed with a knife in the hands of George W. Collins, his rival for the favor of a Salmon Falls girl, is recovering. He will have a good chance to spark the girl while the other fellow is in state prison.

Nathaniel E. Tuck of South Hampton was married recently to Miss Mae B. Morrill of East Kingston. Mrs. Tuck is chairman of the board of education, and has served as superintending committee of the public schools, in her town. The couple will make an extended bridal tour through the western states and California.

Mr. Bishop's Latest Feats.

In a report of some exhibitions of "mind-reading" given in Boston recently the Transcript says:

Mr. Bishop was removed to the anteroom and blindfolded, and in the meantime Mr. Kennard gathered a knife from a gentleman and a reserved seat check and an opera-glass case from two ladies. These he tied up in a white handkerchief and made a round of the hall, stopping for a moment to make the future trace the more difficult. Then he proceeded to the upper balcony and deposited the package in the hollow of the base of Apollo's statue in sight of all. Mr. Bishop then announced that the experiment would be made without any physical contact, in order that the question of "muscle-reading" might be settled. Mr. Kennard placed his hand about five inches above that of Mr. Bishop, and almost instantly the latter started rapidly down the hall, Mr. Kennard following as best he could. They passed out at one of the side doors toward Tremont street, and in a very short time appeared in the rear of the second balcony. Here Mr. Bishop paused before a young man, over whom he passed his hands, and then, without hesitation, pushed rapidly forward to the statue and brought out the package. The articles were rapidly re-delivered, the only hitch proceeding from Mr. Kennard's uncertainty as to the person from whom he took the knife.

Mr. Bishop next repeated his feat of reading the number on a concealed bank note through the impression produced on him by the committee who had committed it to memory. It was an exceedingly difficult test, being no less a figure than 18,340,793. Mr. Kennard stated to the audience that he thought it was due to Mr. Bishop to say that nobody but himself had ever seen the number of that note till he had produced it in the hall, as it was fresh from the treasury.

The closing test was with Prof. Lyon of Harvard, who wrote upon the back of the blackboard a word, a language unknown to Mr. Bishop and unseen by him. With infinite labor Mr. Bishop, still with his eyes bandaged, wrote upon the face of the board, in view of the audience, an almost exact reproduction of the characters, which were Assyrian. This was the closing test. It is but fair to say that Mr. Bishop was successful in every one of his attempts, with a single exception, and that was due to the fact that his directions were not complied with. Evidently the believers in muscle reading will have to revise their theory.

Nature's Fortress.

It seems scarcely possible that in any part of the habitable globe there should be a natural refuge wherein criminals can openly defy the law, and where it is impossible for crime to receive punishment. However lax we may be at times in our judicial proceedings, still we know it is possible to lay hands on the evil perpetrators, even though we desire not to punish them. In the Island of Formosa, however, nature herself has formed a fortified home for bloodthirsty criminals. Formosa is an island about ninety miles off the coast of China, from which country it is separated by the channel of Fokien. It was unknown to the Chinese until the year of 1403, and in 1634 the Dutch established a settlement there, but after twenty-eight years of peaceful residence they were expelled by the famous rebel Coxinga, whose successors ruled the island until 1683, when the Chinese took full possession. Then the population was from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000; now it has dwindled down to little more than 190,000. Although only 250 miles long and eighty miles in breadth, nothing is known—by civilized beings—of the interior portion, for it is inclosed by an enormous volcanic range, and it is within this that all the aborigines now herd together. These natives have a slender form, olive complexion, long hair, and blacken their teeth. They have no written language, and their religion is confined to a superstitious belief in demons and sorcerers. No wonder then that they are easily governed by some of the more advanced descendants of the rebel Coxinga, many of whom have taken up their abode with them, and a wild and desperate life they lead. They take advantage of the asylum offered by this belt of country to make organized expeditions therefrom for purposes of pillage, and even go so far as to arrange defensive operations against the dwellers on the seacoast as a pretext for the levying of money. More than 1,000 cases of murder are committed by these people every year, and the Chinese authorities are completely set at defiance.

The mountainous nature of the country, and the large numbers to be dealt with precludes all success of the Chinese soldiers against them. The brigands know every loophole, and can get outside, whereas the others are unable to find their way in. The policy of the present Governor of Formosa seems to be to draw all the natives outside and away from their associates. This plan has partly succeeded, but there are still at least 100,000 natives leagued with the brigands, and nature's lofty volcanic walls still remain a fortress impossible to storm, but easily held by these red-handed desperadoes.—San Francisco Call.

Going out of the car the other day I saw a bright little miss of my acquaintance with a library book in her daintily gloved hand, and, noticing the title was that of a rather abstruse subject, I said: "Why, my dear, you select very deep literature for your reading; I had no idea you were so studious." She answered: "O, is it? Well, I did not know what to get, and so took this, as the cover compared so beautifully with my hat. Did you ever see a more perfect match?"—Springfield Homestead.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become relegated to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful nostrums.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and of tasting are affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

It is the old, old story: Love at first sight! A walk in the beautiful moonlight night; both catch a dreadful cold and give up all hope, but finally find relief in a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, get married, and are at last happy.

The Institute of Technology in Boston finds itself in a condition of financial stringency, and asks the legislature to appropriate $200,000 for the further endowment of the school.

Captain Mitchell, of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains, but receiving no benefit, at his wife's request began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. He immediately began to improve; in two months his rheumatism was all gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. Hood's Sarsaparilla will help you. Sold by all druggists.

Harvard college had an income, including gifts for immediate use, for the year ending September 1886, of $688,218.56, and expended $626,889.80.

3,000 Skyrockets exploded at one time as a finale to the fireworks display in Washington, March 4th. This is on par with the methods of some advertisers; one rocket a day in each paper, fired at the public in the right position, gives them to understand that G. O. Taylor Pure Rye or Old Bourbon can be relied upon for purity and be obtained from leading druggists or grocers. See that Chester H. Graves & Sons' firm name is over each cork and on each label.

For sale by the bottle or case by John Laighton.

Retaliatory Legislation.

The senate on the 24th inst. passed, by a vote of forty-six to one (Riddleberger of Virginia voting in the negative), the bill authorizing the president to adopt retaliatory measures against Canadian commerce in case of further outrages upon American fishing vessels. They should also pass a bill demanding that the American secretary of state shall be an American, and not a Briton in disguise.

A Serious State of Affairs.

The coal handlers' strike, instead of being ended, has spread to an immense extent. The New York longshoremen refuse to handle any coal, and the Knights of Labor have ordered a general cessation of mining in the soft coal districts of Maryland and the hard coal districts of Pennsylvania. The brakemen on railroads leading into New York, Jersey City and Hoboken from the coal districts refuse to brake an coal trains. The coal shovellers and boatmen have all joined the strike, and the situation is one of the utmost gravity.

Gets Off Easily.

The case of Richmond J. Lane, charged with embezzling funds of the Abington (Mass.) national bank while its president, came up in Boston on the 24th, but further proceedings were stopped by the announcement made by the district attorney that the case would probably be compromised, for the reason that while it was fully apparent that the accused had withdrawn about $120,000 of the bank's funds unlawfully, yet he had made the fullest restitution in his power, and as far as the goverament are able to ascertain, he had not himself profited by his operations. The judge then held the case over until the May term, to allow for the arrangement of a compromise.

Pension Legislation.

The pension bill proposed by the Grand Army of the Republic provides that all persons who have served three months or more in the military or naval service of the United States in any war in which the United States has been engaged, and have received honorable discharges and who may be suffering from mental or physical disability which incapacitates them for the performance of labor in such a degree as to render them unable to earn a support, and who are dependent upon their daily labor for their support, shall be placed upon the invalid pension list and receive $12 a month for such total disability to procure a subsistence by daily labor. It is provided that the pension shall commence from the date of filing the application at the pension office. The act also provides, in the case of dependent parents, that it shall only be necessary to show that they are without other means of support than their own manual labor or contributions of others not legally bound to support them, provided the soldier left no widow or minor children. It is said that there is little doubt of the passage of this bill.

Mrs. Secretary Whitney recently gave a little lunch to some of her lady friends. There were eight courses, representing the eight naval bureaux which the secretary seeks to have consolidated. Mrs. Whitney has passed in her career of splendid entertainments long enough to present her spouse with a dear little baby girl. The new comer, at present, shows symptoms of structural weakness, but it is hoped that the nourishing sustenance of the Whitney mansion will remedy this little defect, and the daughter will soon be able to "receive" in accordance with the rules of Washington society.

In one of the Boston churches on Sunday last $2025 was contributed for foreign missions. There is no estimating the amount of good which might result from the expenditure of this sum in reclaiming the lost tribes of the modern Athens.

Some years ago a southern Illinois editor of an investigating turn of mind "interviewed" 100 tramps for the purpose of ascertaining their political weaknesses. He found seventy-one of them to be democrats, eighteen republicans, and eleven greenbackers. He began last fall to take the political census of another hundred of these gentry, and has just completed it, the weather having been unpropitious of late for work of this sort. He now reports the total disappearance of the old parties. The entire 100 were labor reformers.

The Dover Democrat of the 24th inst. says: "The York county supreme court is in session at Alfred to-day. Many liquor dealers of Biddeford and other places in the county are 'rusticating' here until the term of court concludes. This morning a York county sheriff was in town, and it coming to the ears of the 'rusticaters' they went out of Dover quite rapidly, some to Alton Bay, others to Haverhill, and one to Lowell. They need not have been afraid of being taken back by the sheriff, for he was here on other business." But the wicked flee when no man pursueth, now as in days of old.

A POEM TO GRANDMA.

A little miss of our acquaintance, a young child, twelve years of age, seated beside her mother one Sabbath afternoon recently, suddenly looking up with a radiant face said, "Mamma, I feel inspired to write some poetry for Grandma," and taking her pen she composed the following. It is given exactly as she wrote it, and is a remarkable production for so young a child. Her love for her grandmother, who was very aged and sick, was intense, and she had been talking and thinking of her for several days:

TO GRANDMA, GOD BLESS HER.

There is a brook which widens
To a river strange and bright,
There's a land beyond this river
Of never fading light.

When life's journey waftsus onward
Up this river we shall go,
Where we shall see our loved ones,
Where no sorrow we shall know.

We shall see our long lost loved ones
Who have gone from us before;
Our sisters and our brothers
Will be waiting at the door.

When we've gone beyond this river
To that wondrous land of light,
We shall walk about in calmness
With our spirits ever bright.

You are growing old and gray Grandma,
And your time has nearly come
To cross this shining river,
To that bright eternal home.

When you've crossed the shining river
You will often come,
To tell us of your blessings
In that bright eternal home.

And you'll tell us of the mansions
So beautiful and pure,
And the happiness that waited you
As you neared your own home door.

In regard to the death of Mrs. Lizzie N. Mathes (nee Young) of Eliot, reported at first to have been caused through poisoning by eating canned corned beef, her brother, Theodore L. Young of Dover, gives the following as the facts in the case: Mr. Mathes one day being sick, Mrs. Mathes went to the spring and brought a bucket of water; on entering the house on her return she complained of feeling unwell, took to her bed and soon became unconscious, and did not speak again, though she lived three days. The sensational story of poisoning by food was absolutely without foundation. Mrs. Mathes probably injured herself internally in drawing water, and rapid blood poisoning resulted.

MARINE CHRONICLE.

PORT OF PORTSMOUTH.

Star Reading, Smith, for this port cld Philadelphia 22d inst.

Bark Antioch, Hemingway, Hong Kong for New York, passed Anjier Jan 14th.

A SWINDLER does not refer possible purchasers to his victims. The Athlophoros Co. gladly refers sufferers from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous or sick headache, kidney and liver complaints to those who have been cured of these diseases by Athlophoros, and will furnish names and addresses of many such persons to those desiring them. Athlophoros is the only remedy for these diseases that can stand such a test.

Himsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

Of all medicines that claim to cure rheumatism there is only one that will or can do it and that one is Athlophoros. I have for years been troubled with muscular rheumatism, at times so severe as to keep me in bed for 14 or 15 weeks at a time, taking all kinds of medicine, none of which would give me more than temporary relief. The last time I was down I commenced to use Athlophoros; the first bottle got me out of bed in quick order. I was then able to get around on crutches, a second bottle I am happy to say laid away the crutches, and I shall never need them again, for in case I should ever be troubled again with rheumatism I can get a cure in Athlophoros. NORMAN HOWE.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

After suffering with inflammatory rheumatism for six years, and having tried everything with no result, I was one day induced to try Athlophoros; it was a last resort; in three hours after the first dose there was such a change for the better, that my friends were surprised; in all I took two bottles, and to-day I am hale and hearty, no sign of rheumatism about me. With such a simple and effective cure, the day must soon come when that dread disease will be a thing of the past.

J. F. MAHONEY.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athiophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

THE CITY ALMSHOUSE.

Messrs. Editors: The Times and the Journal both advocate the sale of the city almshouse and farm, as it is proper they should do, if they consider it for the city's interest, and that the poor could be more economically and better cared for in a smaller building on a smaller farm. The Journal is flat-footed against the removal of the city poor to Brentwood, and says any proposition to make such removal would awaken such a storm as would be very unpleasant to its promoters. It further says:

This being conceded, why the old rattle-trap buildings now encumbering the ground, and the land pertaining to them, should not be sold, and a suitable modern structure erected in their place, is hardly apparent. The present buildings are entirely out of repair, are veritable fire-traps, are very expensive to keep up, and most unsightly, and it is only a question of time when they must be disposed of, either by sale or free gift.

The Times talks in a similar vein, and speaks as follows of the farm and the condition of the buildings:

The support of the farm demands a large yearly appropriation, and is a source of little or no revenue. The buildings are sadly out of repair, and a large expenditure will soon have to be made to make them barely comfortable.

If the buildings are so much in need of repairs, it is only because no appropriations have been made in recent years to keep them in repair. Under the false pretence of economy or under no pretence at all, they have been suffered to go without repairs year after year; and now their inevitable condition is adduced as a reason why they should be sold. Possibly it was in order that this reason might be adduced, that the buildings have been suffered to fall into decay. But there is no danger of the structures falling down of their own weight just yet. The brick walls, I am assured by an expert, are perfectly sound and good, and as trustworthy to be used for a manufactory or any other purpose as when they were put up; and if the farm is to be sold, the buildings should certainly not be given away on the ground that they are worthless from old age.

THE DEVIL'S AUCTION.

This spectacular extravaganza, which now holds on the stage the place once held for a dozen years or more by the Black Crook, is to be at Music hall Saturday evening. The great amount of scenery and properties required in its presentation are transported on three sixty-foot cars built expressly for the purpose, and it is given in the smaller places with the same effects as in the large cities. Of it the Baltimore American says:

Since last season it has undergone changes that amount to a thorough reconstruction. Every feature of the performance is marked by a change, and the alterations constitute an immense improvement. The premiers and ballets met with great favor, and were simply grand. The contortionist is very fine, the acrobats marvellous, and the costumes gorgeous. The spectacular portion of "The Devil's Auction" is grand, and is the best on the road.

The New Orleans Chronicle says that "taken all in all, the spectacle is a great success, and is presented in a far superior manner to what it was last season." The Brooklyn Eagle says "it is simply great, and the best spectacular piece ever produced in Brooklyn." And the Boston Globe remarks:

Continual merriment or admiration is elicited at every stage of the proceedings. There is not a dull moment in the whole piece, and there are periods when the mirth is such as to excite uncontrollable laughter. The stage clothing throughout is simply magnificent; the ballet varied and artistic; the acrobats never excelled—the same may be said of the jugglers—Salamonsky Brothers, contortionist, and pantomime duelist.

Reserved seat tickets for this show are now on sale at Goodrich's. See advertisement.

MATRIMONIAL.

The marriage of Mr. Walter Bailey of Portland, Me., and Miss Clara B. Leman, formerly of this city, took place on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 20th, at No. 439 Shawmut avenue, Boston, the residence of Mrs. Thomas Gammon, the bride's mother, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Minot J. Savage. The bride looked charming in an exceedingly becoming dress of surah silk, decorated with garlands of the choicest flowers. After the wedding pair had received the congratulations of about one hundred of their relatives and near friends, and an hour or more had been passed in inspecting the array of beautiful and costly presents, which included diamonds, silverware, elegant bric-a-brac, etc., the company pastook of a wedding supper, after which Mr. Bailey and wife took the seven o'clock train for this city, where they remained until Saturday. Among the guests at the wedding were J. C. Fernald and wife and C. B. Lozier and wife of this city, Mrs. Martha Gray, Dr. E. M. Wilson of Portland, C. G. Mudge and wife, Miss Mollie Stevens and others.

The treasurer of "Faith Home" for Old Ladies very gratefully acknowledges the receipt of thirty dollars on Jan. 24th, from "a friend of old ladies." Also of a donation of ten dollars and another of five from other friends during the week previous.

Prof. Boyd will meet the public school teachers at the city rooms on Friday afternoon next, for giving instruction in and holding consultation on music.

A singing school under direction of Prof. Boyd, teacher of music in the public schools, is to be held in the new Methodist vestry on State street, commencing on Friday evening, Jan. 28th, and continuing through a course of twelve lessons; terms for the course, $1. Tickets can be purchased at John L. Randall's store, corner State and Pleasant streets, and John P. Sweetser's store, 46 Market Street.

The sixteenth anniversary ball of Damon Lodge, No. 9, Knights of Pythias, to be given in Franklin hall next Monday evening, January 31st, promises to be one of the most successful affairs of this nature ever given in the city. Already a sufficient number of tickets have been disposed of to ensure its being a grand success. Large delegations are expected from Dover, Newburyport and smaller neighboring towns.

Thomas Cass, the man who arrived in this city one night last week with his feet in bad condition from having had them frozen, was put on board the eastbound Pullman train on Monday evening by City Marshal Norton, and his passage paid to Halifax, N. S., where he belongs.

Mrs. Henry Works of San Jose, Cal., who has been making an extended visit to her friends in this city and vicinity, and in Biddeford, Me., left Boston on Tuesday, Jan. 18th, with the "Smith's Excursion to San Francisco by way of New Orleans." During her stay here Mrs. Works arranged with Mr. F. B. Coleman, the druggist, to take the agency for the celebrated Mansfield's Capillaris, and at his store a supply of this valuable medicine can always be found.

Mr. John E. Kennedy of Dover, for several years past clerk at the Boston & Maine freight office in this city, has resigned the position, and Mr. Charles F. Richards has been appointed to it.

Postmaster Corse of Boston is in Washington advocating a fast night mail train to leave Boston at 11:30 P. M. and reach New York at 5:30 A. M., and a similar train to leave New York at 11:30 P. M. This would give our Portsmouth business men all their New York letters mailed before ten P. M., and also letters reaching New York from the south and west before that hour, by the morning mail from Boston, while letters for New York leaving here at 7:30 P. M. would reach their destination early the next morning.

The new preferred stock of the Eastern railroad was being distributed in large quantities to its owners on the 25th inst., and 140 was bid for it that morning.

As a party of Newmarket boys were sliding down Long hill, on the Durham side of the river, Saturday evening, a quarrel arose between the French and Yankee boys, and a French boy named Bean, about sixteen years old, challenged James Langley, about the same age, to fight. The challenge was accepted, and Bean was getting the worst of the contest, when two of his brothers seized Langley and held him until his late antagonist drew a knife and gashed him in the side, face and neck, when the other Yankee boys interfered, drove the French boys from the field, and took Langley home. Bean was arrested and held for trial, but the case was afterward settled, his father paying Langley $50, and the costs of suit.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Freddie L. Porter, which went to the bottom a few days ago on the passage from Charleston to Mobile, was built at the Raynes ship yard in this city in 1865 by William F. Fernald. She was recently put in complete repair at Boston, at a cost of $3000 or over, Mr. Fernald having been compelled to decline an offer to repair her, in consequence of there being no satisfactory facilities here for hauling out so large a vessel.

The Dominion government has reduced the fine of $400 imposed on the schooner A. R. Crittenden of Gloucester, for alleged violation of the customs laws, to $25 and costs.

Mr. J. L. Frisbee of Charlestown, Mass., will submit to the New York yacht club a design for a yacht to beat the Thistle. It is a model for a boat seventy-five feet long on the waterline, with nine feet draught and twenty feet beam. Mr. Frisbee says the lines are much like those of the Puritan and Mayflower, but he believes superior to either.

Saturday afternoon, Jan. 22d, David Hayes, a workman in the leatheroid mill at Kennebunk, called at Dr. F. M. Ross & Co.'s drug store and asked for alcohol for bathing purposes. The clerk filled the bottle, adding a small quantity of arnica, and instructing the purchaser not to use it except for external purposes. Hayes went directly to the mill and treated five companions from the bottle, but did not drink himself. Seth Robinson died in a few hours. The others were somewhat affected, but have recovered. Robinson was thirty-four years old, and leaves a widow and one child. This action of Hayes' would seem to be a pretty close imitation of murder.

The Pepperell Manufacturing Co. at Biddeford pays a dividend of thirty dollars a share, Feb. 1st; and the Laconia Co. pays $12 a share on the same day.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

Insurance Notice.

THE OLD INSURANCE AGENCY,

AT THE OLD STAND,

No. 13 Pleasant Street,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

To my Old Customers and Friends. Are you insured? When your home or other property is being consumed by a raging fire, a good insurance policy is a great comfort. The subscriber, with his experience of fifteen years, is now prepared to place your Insurance in the Insurance Companies of New Hampshire, and in Companies organized in other States. No one can place your Insurance better or safer!

NOTE.—Mr. Ilsley, my late copartner, still states in his published card, that he purchased of me all my right to the "Fire Insurance Business of our late firm." I have heretofore denied this statement. He never offered to buy of me the business or goodwill of the firm, and I never offered or even thought of selling out my business. I hired our old office, and advertised to carry on the business in all its branches, weeks before a final settlement. Now, if he has a bill of sale, bond or any agreement whereby I conveyed to him any rights to the goodwill of the old firm or any rights to do a Fire Insurance Business in New Hampshire with old or new customers, let him prosecute me for a breach of contract, or cease publishing or repeating his false statement. I am ready to meet this issue in any court of justice. I make this statement in justice to my customers and friends and to vindicate my own integrity.

Austrian Student Life.

The students of the Vienna university, celebrated rather for their love of occasional fight and their predilection for cliques than for their sympathy with quiet study and "brotherly love," are endeavoring to bring about a reform. They have published on the blackboard of the university an "open letter," in which an appeal is made by "a small circle of colleagues who have become acquainted with each other in the lecture room, the laboratory, or at the dissecting table," inviting all students to help in bringing about a reform of student life at Vienna. "Have we a united student life?" the letter asks. "Are we all alike before science, which belongs to all? Unfortunately we have to answer emphatically no, we are not. We are separated by national aspirations and by religious prejudices; our student organization consists of the broken parts of what was once a beautiful, perfect vessel. * * * Our conventicles serve only the cult of Bacchus, and not infrequently the treatment of things with which the ideal youth should have nothing to do." The committee intends to make practical proposals as to the reform of student life at meetings, which will be organized by the energetic party of reformers, who, however, seem to have forgotten the well-known fact, proved on innumerable occasions, that what is an Austrian's meat is almost always a Czech's poison. And the latter are very numerous at the Vienna university.

Thiers and Guizot once met on neutral ground, the latter being prime minister and the former leader of the opposition. "But, M. Thiers," said Guizot, in course of political argument, "you and your friends do nothing but criticise us. What would you do if you were in power in our places?" "We would sing the same song you are singing," replied Thiers, "only we would sing it better."

The February number of the "Eclectic" has a well chosen assortment of selections from the best current foreign literature. Prof. Caird's paper on "Goethe and Philosophy" gives a penetrating view of the influence of the great German poet on modern thinking. This is followed by a spicy article by Grant Allan, entitled "American Jottings," being an account of his recent visit to this country. Rev. John Verschoyle discourses on "The Character of Shelley," and Sir William Gregory writes of the loyalty of the Mohammedans of India to the British crown. "Mohammedanism in Central Africa" is a paper bearing on recent events in Egypt and the Soudan. "A Parisian" writes of France as it was and is, and two interesting papers on topics near us are "The Railway Bubble" and "Financial Frauds." Rev. Canon Westcott makes a strong plea for "Christianity as the Absolute Religion;" and one of the most interesting papers in the number is by John Baker Hopkins, under the title of "Lazarus to Dives." Other well-written essays, together with short stories, poems and sketches, make up the number, which contains twenty body articles. The Eclectic fully sustains its standard reputation as an admirably edited periodical, whose monthly visits are welcomed in thousands of homes in all the four quarters of the globe. Published by E. R. Pelton, New York; terms, $5 per year.

The Rapidity of Progress Toward Health,

Even when a good remedy for disease is selected, depends in some measure upon the manner in which it is taken. Irregular, interrupted doses can afford no fair test of the efficacy of any medicine, however salutary. Taken in proper doses at prescribed intervals, a reliable curative will effect the object of its use. Among remedies which, systematically and persistently used, accomplish thorough and lasting cures, and prevents the recurrence of periodical disease, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters ranks specially high. In cases of dyspepsia, debility, rheumatism, fever and ague, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, constipation, and other organic maladies, it is a tried remedy, to which the medical brotherhood have lent their professional sanction, and which, as a tonic, alterative and household specific for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, has an unbounded popularity.

Mr. Lee Vanderpoole, formerly war correspondent of the Paris Figaro, has been recalled from New York by that paper on the supposition that war will be declared between France and Germany.

Much of the discomfort of wash day is removed by the use of James Pyle's Pearline. It removes dirt without the least injury to the most delicate fabric. For sale by grocers generally.

The American steamer Aries was last week wrecked on the New Jersey shore; loss on vessel $75,000; on cargo $100,000; latter insured. The Aries was a British blockade runner during the war.

The most stubborn cases of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and tonic influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

The packet schooner C. Graham, from Bermuda for Halifax, N. S., was wrecked on the Shad bay shoals, Nova Scotia coast, Jan. 24th, and all hands lost. She had a crew of six men, and probably some passengers. Other disasters are feared, as there is much wreckage all along the coast.

Murdered.

The body of Julius Baer was found by freighters five miles west of here Tuesday morning, in a terribly mangled condition. His head and face were smashed, so as to be hardly recognized, and numerous wounds were found on his body. Mr. Baer was agent for the great blood medicine, Sulphur Bitters. Robbery was undoubtedly the motive, as he was well known to have a large sum of money on his person. As we go to press there is no clew to the perpetrators.—Colorado Press.

The revival spirit appears to be catching in wicked Boston. In addition to the Sams—Jones and Small—Rev. Phillips Brooks opened Faneuil hall on Sunday night, Jan 23d, with a sermon to non-church goers. The unusual spectacle of an Episcopalian clergyman preaching outside the portals of the "Established" church ought to impress the sinners of the hub city with a sense of their exceeding sinfulness and the need of speedy repentance.

Took All His Pains Away.

A. M. Chisholm of No. 2724 Stoddart street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "During my long residence in Canada I suffered for years from severe pains in my back, across the region of the kidneys, and by the constant use of Allcock's Plasters invariably obtained great relief. Upon removing to St. Louis, I was again troubled with the same complaint, and was advised to use magnetic and other kinds of plasters, without being relieved of pain, so fell back to my old friend Allcock's, who gave me more relief than any other I have ever tried. I always recommend them to my friends and all who suffer from pains and aches of any kind."

"I was troubled with an eruption on my face, which was a source of constant annoyance when I wished to appear in company. After using ten bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the humor entirely disappeared."—Mary M. Wood, 40 Adams street, Lowell, Mass.

"One of the abominable inconsistencies of the dictionaries," says the editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, "is the spelling of nog in eggnog with one 'g.' While they were about it why didn't they drop one of the g's from egg, and make the word egnog? Most people would look upon 'egnog,' however, as rather weak. Those who use it at all in the holidays want four g's in it. Eggnogg is the word." The world at large will be perfectly willing to accept the Courier-Journal man as a competent authority on "eggnogg."

Cardinal Simon, of Gran, the primate of Hungary, was a son of a poor shoemaker. Now he enjoys the reputation of being the richest of the Hungarian prelates. It was to him that Pius IX. addressed at the ecumenical council the half-reproachful remark: "You are too rich." Last month he celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his priesthood.

The only pack animal in Jackrabbit district, says the Pioche (Nev.) Record, is a squaw. She packs all the wood on her back down the mountains to the cabins of the prospectors, packs up the packages and bundles sent out from Pioche by stage from the station at the road to the camp, and frequently packs off things that she finds lying around loose.

A patent has been obtained by a gentleman of San Francisco for what is claimed to be a fire and collision-proof railway car. It is made wholly of iron and steel, and the weight will range from sixteen to twenty tons for ordinary passenger coaches, and from twenty-two to twenty-five tons for sleepers. The floor is a single sheet of metal, and the roof also a single sheet. The beams are of rolled steel.

Many of the Flatheads, on their reservation in northwest Montana, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, are given to dudish ways. For instance, they wear good clothes, own fast steppers, possess the showiest kind of blankets and carry plenty of silver. Some of them own one or more race horses, and do nothing else for a living except gamble with each other, on the result of a race, but principally with outsiders.

There is at Leeds, England, an ornithological association. Among other things they study the songs of wild birds. Not long ago they pitted a full-song, acclimated nightingale against a Yankee mocking bird. They sang together, and they sang apart. First the nightingale led off, until everything he sang was duplicated and improved upon by our national songster. Then the mocking bird struck off into a new field of song. The nightingale listened, but did not repeat. He pined away and died within a week.

John C. Anderson, the New York tobacconist, went to New Haven, Conn., a few years ago, built for himself the finest private residence in the city, and furnished it magnificently. Recently he has preferred to live at a shore house at West Haven, and last week an auction sale was held of the furniture and ornaments of the mansion. Three thousand people attended the sale. In general the prices realized were low. A fine orchestrion, which is said to have cost $3,000 in Europe, was sold for $450.

When the first photograph of the late Prime Minister in his tree-felling deshabille came out an American journalist got a copy, and was hesitating to send it across the Atlantic because he thought it was a hoax. He showed the photograph to a friend of Mr. Gladstone, explaining his doubts. The friend looked at it through a magnifying glass and pointed to the absence of the forefinger of the left hand as proof that it was genuine. Few people know that Mr. Gladstone was at one time a sportsman as well as a statesman, and that the loss of a finger was due to an accidental explosion of his gun.

A method of utilizing paper is the process of manufacturing paper rails, which is to be adopted in the paper rail works at St. Petersburg. It is claimed that these can be made at one-third the price of steel rails and that they are very durable, the paper being condensed by great pressure. Being lighter than metal, they can be carried and laid at much less cost. They are made of greater length than ordinary rails, and the oscillation and wear and tear of rolling stock will be proportionately diminished. The question of durability will be the principal one to be settled.

Mrs. Frederick, a daughter of the late Colonel William Lewis, of Sweet Springs, Greenbrier county, W. He died recently, bequeathing his fortune to Mrs. Frederick on condition that she assume his name.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly has one in common with consumption. It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and be combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the sense of hearing, of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stage. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each package contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price, $1.

Important Cases Before The United States Supreme Court.

There is a notable gathering of eminent lawyers in Washington, upon the occasion of the argument before the Supreme Court of the United States of the cases, five in number, in all of which the American Bell Telephone Co. is appellee. The counsel present are widely known as patent lawyers, a branch of the profession which is to-day perhaps better remunerated than are any other specialists. The cases in the Circuit courts have been decided against Dolbear and others and in favor of the Bell company, and from these decisions the Dolbear and other parties plaintiff appeal. What will be the result of the cases in this court of last resort it is of course impossible to conjecture. The only certain thing about it is, that the lawyers will be well remunerated. Although it is a severe contest it by no means follows that this will prove "the charge of the light brigade."

He May Mean Well, But He Don't Know.

A despatch from Ottawa, Ont., says: "Mr. Foster, minister of marine and fisheries, in an interview concerning the Belmont bill, said that while the bill appeared to assume that American fishing vessels had trading rights in Canadian waters, the treaty of 1818 gave them no such rights. He says the Canadian government has not in a single instance refused any fair rights of hospitality to American fishermen. Measures of retaliation looking to the complete abrogation of trade between the two countries, Mr. Foster says, he does not believe the American people will ever sanction."

Mr. Foster seems to be as ignorant concerning the feelings of the American people in this matter, as Secretary Bayard has appeared to be since he became a member of President Cleveland's cabinet. He will in time learn that the American people will not only sanction, but demand, the adoption of whatever measures may be necessary to secure to our fishermen their rights, even though Canada might be seriously incommoded thereby.

A Great Explosion.

A magazine car containing 200 cases of giant powder exploded half a mile west of Fort Scott, Kansas, Jan. 25th, blowing to pieces fifteen freight cars, wrecking the engine, grinding rails and ties to powder for a distance of several rods, breaking $10,000 worth of glass in Fort Scott, and killing one man. Glass was broken in windows many miles from the explosion.

Naval Intelligence.

Advices from Madeira say the U. S. S. Ossipee sailed from there for New York Jan. 18th.

Secretary Whitney has decided to allow the U. S. S. Minnesota to remain on the list of naval ships for a few years longer. Some weeks ago Commodore Gherardi, the commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, received instructions to fit the Tennessee for service as the training receiving-ship for naval apprentices in place of the Minnesota, but Secretary Whitney has been told that the Tennessee is as rotten as the Minnesota, even more so, and that the Minnesota would probably float a little longer than her companion.

Lieutenant John S. Abbott, fleet secretary of the North Atlantic squadron, has been discharged from the Brooklyn hospital and granted sick leave. He was transferred from the flagship Tennessee to the hospital on December 12th, with typhoid fever. Lieutenant John F. Meigs, fleet gunnery officer of the squadron, is now suffering from typhoid fever caught on board of the Tennessee. Both these officers contracted the disease while lying at the Brooklyn navy yard.

The yawl "Outing," a small yacht in which Capt. F. A. Cloutman left St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 12th, on a voyage around the world, was wrecked in a storm Tuesday, Jan. 18th, on the Florida coast, a few miles north of Jupiter inlet. Capt. Cloutman and the mate, George Miller, narrowly escaped drowning. This was the third time the Outing had met with disaster, she having twice before started, and both times been partially wrecked before getting clear of the southern coast; this time she is a total loss, and the foolish attempt will probably be given up. The promoters of the scheme were the managers of the Outing magazine.

It is rumored that Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, the president's sister, will shortly be married to a young clergyman.

Simon Cameron goes to Bermuda to spend the winter. He is in his 89th year.

Mrs. Romeo Doucette, who was supposed to have drowned herself at Lewiston, Me., merely ran away from her husband. Her brother acknowledges taking some articles to the train for her on the day she disappeared.

New Yorkers are apprehensive of a smallpox epidemic.

By a boiler explosion at Sparkesburg, Pa., a mill was wrecked, three men killed and eight wounded, Jan. 25th.

At Philadelphia, Pa., James T. Hand and Barton Nieland, two boys apprenticed to Charles Bockins, a leather merchant, have been sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the county jail. The boys' master complained that they were disobedient and unruly, frequently damaged their work maliciously in order to secure their discharge, and used vile language to himself and his foreman. This is the first time that the law relating to apprenticeship has been enforced.

Two of the largest checks for money ever drawn in New York have been framed and will be hung up in the president's office of the New York Central railroad. One drawn by C. Vanderbilt is for $1,900,000, and the other by W. H. Vanderbilt is for $6,000,000.

Soldiers in the Senate.

Soldiers are getting rather scarce in the senate. At least federal soldiers are, for there are plenty of ex-confederates. In the senate as it stands, seventy-six in number, there are only seven men who fought on the Union side during the war, but sixteen whose names are on the muster roll of the Confederacy. Of the ex-federals it is probable that only three will be left when the senate is called to order at the beginning of the next session. Warner Miller, who is the only private who ever sat in the senate, has already been beaten. Harrison, Van Wyck, and Sewell are hopeless, and Hawley is the only one on the list who comes back; he with Manderson and Plumb will have to answer to all the toasts to the federal soldiers in the United States senate. Of the fifteen republican senators who will be sworn in on March 4th, four wore the confederate gray. This will leave the senate with twenty ex-confederates, and only three ex-federals. "Who was it said that republics were ungrateful?"—Washington Post.

A SWINDLER does not refer possible purchasers to his victims. The Athlophoros Co. gladly refers sufferers from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, nervous or sick headache, kidney and liver complaints to those who have been cured of these diseases by Athlophoros, and will furnish names and addresses of many such persons to those desiring them. Athlophoros is the only remedy for these diseases that can stand such a test.

Hinsdale, N. H., May 18, 1886.

Of all medicines that claim to cure rheumatism there is only one that will or can do it and that one is Athlophoros. I have for years been troubled with muscular rheumatism, at times so severe as to keep me in bed for 14 or 15 weeks at a time, taking all kinds of medicine, none of which would give me more than temporary relief. The last time I was down I commenced to use Athlophoros; the first bottle got me out of bed in quick order. I was then able to get around on crutches, a second bottle I am happy to say laid away the crutches, and I shall never need them again, for in case I should ever be troubled again with rheumatism I can get a cure in Athlophoros. NORMAN HOWE.

Amesbury, Mass., March 3, 1886.

After suffering with inflammatory rheumatism for six years, and having tried everything with no result, I was one day induced to try Athlophoros; it was a last resort; in three hours after the first dose there was such a change for the better, that my friends were surprised; in all I took two bottles, and to-day I am hale and hearty, no sign of rheumatism about me. With such a simple and effective cure, the day must soon come when that dread disease will be a thing of the past.

J. F. MAHONEY.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athiophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

A HINT.

We would suggest to those who wish us to give notice of temperance meetings, prayer meetings or other agencies for good, that in order that we may do so, the notices should reach us before the Chronicle has gone to press on the morning of the day appointed for the meeting. Twice this week announcements of meetings were received just too late for insertion.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 26th.

A resident of this city was brought before the court on a charge of receiving goods stolen from the government, and was held in $500 for his further appearance at noon on Saturday, the 29th, bail being furnished. The story is that clothing of the value of $500 or thereabouts has been stolen from the store at the navy yard; that a sergeant of marines, being confronted with evidence that he was the thief, confessed his guilt, and said he had disposed of his plunder to a man in this city; and a search warrant being sworn out, goods to the value of between $200 and $300, of a similar kind to those stolen, and alleged to be the goods stolen, were found on his premises, and taken to the police station.

RUN DOWN.
